Rusk Plans Asking NATO For Viet Help, Cuba Cut

LARGEST PIECE OF PLANE WRECKAGE—Wreckage from a Pacific Airlines transport that crashed near Concord, Calif., lies strewn on hillside. A rancher, Gordon Rassmussen, said the "plane exploded into small bits . . . there wasn't a piece larger than a foot in diameter." It was reported there were no survivors among the 44 persons aboard. Weapon Brings FBI Into Crash Probe

All 44 persons aboard the turbo-prop airliner were killed.

A quarter-mile of metal fragments, a garbled tape recording, the gun and bits of the victims' bodies were all the evidence that Civil Aeronautics Board investigators had to work with.

The plane, a morning flight from Reno, Nev., went down after stopping in Stockton, Calif., just 40 miles east, San Francisco, its destination.

Seconds before the airliner plunged nose first to earth, a garbled message came over its radio but was lost in a screech of static and electronic squeals. The Federal Aviation Agency had a tape recording of it that investigators hoped would provide some clue.

The FBI took charge of a cocked and loaded 38-caliber revolver. At first it was believed to belong to a San Francisco police inspector, George Lacau, who with his wife, Betty, was a passenger on the plane.

A check in police records, however, showed that none of the three revolvers registered by Lacau had the serial numbers of the weapon found in the wreckage.

Would Fingerprint Dead

"Our captains are authorized to carry a gun," said a Pacific Air Lines spokesman. "But none has ever done so to our knowledge."

Sheriff Walter Young asked the FBI disaster squad to use their special fingerprint techniques to make positive identification of the dead. Coroner Dr. William Bogart refused to allow relatives to view the remains.

"We saw the plane coming in low, flying in kind of a glide, with its left engine not turning at all," said David Silva, 21, who was washing his car when the airliner came in over his house.

Like Sonic Boom

"The right engine was making a terrible roar, revving hard," Silva continued. "Then the plane vanished over the top of a little hill, and at that instant we heard this tremendous explosion, like a sonic boom."

Aboard were about a dozen persons who had taken advantage of an offer by Reno Casinos to gamble all night in exchange for a refund of their plane fares.

At San Francisco airport, Dale Stopp wept. Years ago he lost both legs under a train. His mother, Clara Stopp, and his wife, Judy, had helped him back to an almost normal life. The two women were aboard the plane.

Hoover to Mark 40th Anniversary With FBI Sunday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forty years and seven presidents ago, a young and nervous Justice Department lawyer was summoned to the office of the attorney general, Harlan Fiske Stone.

"Young man," the scowling Stone told John Edgar Hoover, 29, "I want you to be acting director of the Bureau of Investigation."

No Signs of Quitting

Moments later, the young man departed, launched on a career unparalleled in the annals of law enforcement.

J. Edgar Hoover's name was to become a byword for relentless, incorruptible, scientific crimefighting. His organization was to become a beacon to the professions of law enforcement and intelligence throughout the world.

Sunday will be the 40th anniversary of that historic job promotion. And Hoover, now 69, shows no sign of quitting.

He will reach the compulsory government retirement age of 70 next New Year's Day. But President Johnson is expected to issue an executive order today to waive the requirement in Hoover's case. Thus the stocky FBI boss may be expected to stay at the helm as long as he feels fit.

Today, unquestionably, Hoover is fit. His aides report him to be in top physical condition. They say his annual checkups continue to result in clean bills of health.

He moves and speaks with vigor. He maintains his weight at 169 pounds. In public speeches and in private conversation, his voice takes on the familiary angry edge when he talks about

Egypt Tightening Security Plans For Khrushchev

CAIRO (AP)—Maximum security precautions are being quietly tightened for the arrival of Premier Khrushchev Saturday, and special communication equipment has been installed to give the Soviet leader instant contact with Moscow.

Troops, police and plainclothes agents from Egyptian army intelligence have been assigned to guard Khrushchev. Reports said as many as 200 Soviet security agents will accompany the premier.

Special telephone lines to Moscow were reported being set up from Cairo and Aswan, 430 miles to the south, to Moscow.

Khrushchev's route will take him from Alexandria, his port of landing, to Cairo, Port Said and other points.

As a further precaution two special planes have been sent from the Soviet Union to take Khrushchev around the United Arab Republic. Soviet sources said the premier would not fly aboard Egyptian planes—many of which were built by the Soviet Union.

GREETINGS—Former President Harry S. Truman seems pleased to receive birthday greetings from President Johnson. The call to Truman came during a birthday luncheon at Kansas City to honor Truman's 80th birthday which is today. President Johnson called from Washington. (AP Wirephoto)

Truman, 80 Today Has Busy Slate In Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harry S. Truman, feeling just fine thank you on his 80th birthday today, solved problems right and left but confessed that a worry was gnawing at him.

The worry: What will Bess, the former first lady whom he left back home in Independence, Mo., think of his performance in Washington?

"She is always afraid," he said, "that I will insult somebody I am not supposed to insult."

So far Truman, special guest of President Johnson and the nation, has avoided insulting anybody.

But he has given an elder statesman's advice on several problems including:

1. How long should a president work each day. Fourteen hours, Truman said flatly.

2. How can a president avoid being assassinated as he rides through crowds. "Put back the two Secret Service guards who used to ride on the rear bumpers," Truman said.

About Those Hounds

Truman arrived from Independence Thursday in an Air Force plane, and quickly went to Johnson's defense on the handling of hound dogs. The President had got into some hot water recently by lifting "Him" and "Her" by the ears.

Districts May Plan On Balance

Court of Appeals Hands Down Rule

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — In a major decision of only narrow application, the state's highest court has ruled for the first time that school districts may actively seek racial balance in public-school enrollments.

The State Court of Appeals asserted that fundamental principle in a 6-1 decision handed down Thursday. The court held that, in drawing attendance lines for a new school, racial factors could be considered in an effort to achieve racial balance in the schoool's enrollment.

Racial imbalance in school enrollments, resulting from segregated housing patterns in many cities and suburban areas throughout the state, has become the center of bitter controversy.

Many Questions Yet

Because the Court of Appeals ruling was based on a special—and in some ways, unusual—set of circumstances, it left many questions in the controversy unanswered.

The court stated specifically that it had not considered in this case the question of whether school districts were required under law to attempt to eliminate racial imbalance.

The decision left up in the air what legal steps a schoool district might take to achieve balance. A spokesman for the State Education Department said the question of how the decision would be applied in specific instances probably would be the subject of a long series of lawsuits.

Starts in Brooklyn

The case was brought by a group of white parents in Brooklyn who protested an attendance plan by the New York City Board of Education. Under the plan, their children were assigned to a new junior high school, No. 275.

Under previously existeng attendance lines, the children would have attended Junior High School No. 285.

In drawing the lines for the new schoool, the school board expressed the goal of an enrollment that was one-third Negro, one-third Puerto Rican and one-third "non-Puerto Rican white."

A State Supreme Court justice held that the board's plan violated a state law that says "no person shall be refused admission into or be excluded from any public school...on account of race, creed, color or national origin.""

Reversal Made

The Appellate Division of State Supreme Court reversed the justice's ruling and said that the law he cited was "on its face and from its history and plain purpose an anti-segregation statute only."

To apply the law as the justice did, the Appellate Division said, would turn it into a segregation law, "a result exactly opposite to its purpose."

In the majority opinion, writ-

Grand Jury Directs Bookstore Owner, Professor to Justice of Peace Court

A 25-year-old New Paltz bookstore proprietor, James Conrad Warner, operator of The Place bookstore, and a State University College professor, Dr. Gerson Robison, 55, of 10 South Oakwood Terrace, New Paltz, will both have to face magistrate's court as a result of an altercation which took place at the bookstore on April 7.

In a partial report today to County Judge Raymond J. Mino, the April grand jury directed that District Attorney David W. Corwin file an information referring the matter back to the New Paltz magistrate's court for further prosecution.

After hearing the case, the grand jury recommends that the district attorney file an information in justice's court charging Warner with third degree assault and Dr. Robinson with disorderly conduct.

District Attorney Corwin presented to the court an order directing that the directives of the grand jury be carried out and Judge Mino signed the order sending the matter back to magistrate's court.

Corwin said he would prepare and file such information by the first of the week in Justice of the Peace S. Parks Glenn's court in Town of New Paltz.

The matter grew out of an incident on April 7 when, according to State Police who investigated, Dr. Robison was struck on the head with a ball bat after he had allegedly removed a copy of "Common Sense" from the window of the bookstore. The newspaper had been posted in the window. A headline in the issue contained the statement, "Judaism Is Communism."

Prof. Robison entered the store and allegedly removed the paper. An argument ensued in which it is alleged Warner told Prof. Robison "get out of here, you kike." It is alleged Warner then went behind the counter and returned with a ball bat and another paper called "The Thunderbolt" and told Dr. Robison if he tore that one down he would hit Robison with the bat.

A group of college students in front of the store, according to state police, reported they saw the professor tear down the paper and Warner hit him on the back of the head inflicting a wound which required eight sutures at the New Paltz Medical Center.

Warner was held in the county jail under $500 bail on a charge of second degree assault. He later posted bail.

Later Dr. Robison stated that he was "impulsive."

Warner came from Elizabeth, N. J., not long ago to operate the bookstore, which is in a building that formerly housed a restaurant and is owned by George Tsontardies, of Tillson, who operated a service station across the street.

In its partial report to the Court, the grand jury filed 25 open indictments and four dismissals.

The following open indictments were filed by District Attorney David W. Corwin. None of the defendants was arraigned:

Ralph Eaton Wynkoop, burglary third degree, petit larceny, unlawful entry.

Business Heads Say Johnson Understands

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP)—There were plentiful signs, as the Business Council began weekend meetings with high administration officials today, that President Johnson has gone far toward winning the confidence of business.

Several of the 100 top industrialists here for the council's spring conference—mostly Republicans — told reporters privately they feel Johnson has shown sympathy and understanding for the problems of businessmen.

Some said they believed this view was widely held in the industrial and financial community.

Feel He Listens

One explained: "They feel a lot more comfortable with him than they did with President Kennedy.

"They think he really listens to them when he asks for their advice, and they know he always did ask advice from business friends, when he was senator and vice president."

Said another: "He got off on the right foot with business from the start by cutting the budget and promising a dollar's value for every taxpayer's dollar spent."

Appealing Factors

The $11.5-billion tax cut, paring of the federal pay rolls, and the President's apparent appreciation of the role of corporate profits as a basic ingredient of economic growth were among other factors cited as appealing to business leaders.

Most of the council's active membership — which embraces many of the biggest names in industry—have had close contact with Johnson since he became President. Two of them, railroad president Stuart Saunders and auto manufacturer Henry Ford II, headed the Business Committee for Tax Reduction.

Pledge of Welcome

About one-third of the council's members were among the 70 prominent industrialists and financiers who were Johnson's guests at a White House dinner last week and heard the President pledge:

"For as long as I am Presi-

Johnson's Appeal Is Justice Among Races

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—President Johnson, touring the Deep South, called today for "justice among the races." And he suggested that much of the South will find racial peace "before the end of racial strife in the cities of the North."

Johnson made his dramatic appeal for the civil rights cause in an address prepared for a breakfast meeting with members of the Georgia Legislature. His remarks, canvassing what he termed the "many troubles" of the South, were certain to be regarded as unusually significant.

Cites Faithful Guide

Winding up a six-state tour of poverty-pocked Appalachia, the President suggested that in searching for racial justice, Georgia and the South "have a sure and faithful guide—the Constitution of the United States."

He declared: "Because the Constitution requires it—and because justice demands it—we must protect the constitutional rights of all of our people.

"For no one of us is fully free until all of us are fully free. And the rights of no single American are truly secure until the rights of all Americans are secure."

No Single Section

Johnson said that "racial problems have deep roots in Southern soil." However, he emphasized his view that such problems are not peculiar to any single section, saying: "They also trouble the passions of men on the shores of Maryland, in the slums of Philadelphia and in the streets of New York."

Actually, he took a hopeful view of the tribulations of the South, with these words: "We may well find racial peace in much of the South before the end of racial strife in the cities of the North."

Johnson also appealed for rejection of extremism. Conjuring memories of the Civil War, he said:

"Heed not those who come waving the tattered and discredited banners of the past—who seek to stir old hostilities and

Peking Rejects Soviet Move to Resolve Split

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China disclosed today it has turned down a Soviet bid to hold a preliminary meeting this month on the issue of resolving the split between Moscow and Peking. The Chinese Communists suggested May of next year as the earliest possible date.

A Peking broadcast said a reply was sent on Thursday to the Soviet Union's proposal for two-party talks this month to be followed by an international meeting of all Communist parties in the fall.

"Judging by present circumstances, not only is it impossible to hold the two - party talks in May, but it will also be too early to hold them in October," the Red Chinese reply said.

"We consider it more appropriate to postpone them until sometime in the first half of next year, say May. And if either the Chinese or the Soviet party then considers that the time is still not ripe, they can be further postponed."

Is Looking For Tips On Force

Ball Challenges De Gaulle's Idea

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk flies to Europe today to urge NATO allies to contribute more to the fight against Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam and to support the U.S. economic boycott of Cuba.

Rusk will attend a meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization foreign ministers at the Hague next week following a visit to Brussels.

On the eve of Rusk's departure, Undersecretary of State George Ball sharply challenged the idea attributed to President Charles de Gaulle of France that the Atlantic Alliance serves the defense of the West and should be preserved but that its organization is a bad idea.

Some U.S. officials said this reasoning could lead to a conclusion that the basic defense pledge of NATO should be preserved but that the military command system should be radically altered and weakened if not actually abandoned.

Outspoken Discussion

Ball did not mention France or De Gaulle by name, but his speech at Georgetown University was in some ways the most outspoken discussion of the dangers facing NATO heard in a long time.

"The Atlantic world feels increasingly strong and confident of the future," Ball said. "There is danger that, if this happy state persists for long, some may be tempted to regard the obligations of a massive enterprise such as NATO as unnecessarily heavy, and some of our European friends — out of a sense of newfound confidence — may be led to consider NATO as too much an American show. There is already an apparent trend that way."

Wants Suggestions

Officials said Rusk would welcome any suggestions for improving or strengthening NATO, but he does not expect decisions at the Hague conference on NATO issues.

What he hopes to accomplish is agreement by individual Allied leaders to provide greater assistance to the embattled government of South Viet Nam — assistance in the form of technical experts in transportation, agriculture, and the like and also direct economic help.

In the case of Cuba, Rusk be-

Drawing Places Newcombe First On June 2 Ballot

The drawings for position on the June 2 Republican primary ballot held this week in Albany placed Catskill Businessman Lloyd A. Newcombe, aspirant for the GOP senatorial candidacy on the top row and incumbent Sen. E. Ogden Bush, the regular party designee on the second row.

In the draw for ballot position in the contest for delegates to the GOP national convention from the 28th Congressional District, the regular party designees, Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson of Ulster County; Mrs. Myrtle Tinkelpaugh of Columbia County; Neal Brandow of Greene County and Roy Ketchum of Dutchess County were placed on the top line.

Goldwater-for-President delegates Kent Leavitt of Millbrook, Louis Hall of Hurley, Alice Lafko of Poughkeepsie and Archie Fehecht of Valatie drew second position.

The drawings were held in the office of Secretary of State John P. Lomenzo.

Attending in addition to the senatorial hopefuls were Delaware County GOP Chairman Wilbur S. Olds and Maurice Goldberg of Woodstock, representing Ulster County GOP Chairman Wilson, who appeared with Sen. Bush, and Henry Werker of Catskill, who appeared with Newcombe.

Drawings for the position by the secretary of state are held in primary contests above the county officer level. In other instances the drawings are by the county election board.

Paper ballots will be used as usual for the primary elections in Ulster County.

Much to Be Cut Out at Onteora If Austerity Budget Is Adopted

Children in the Onteora Central School District could lose transportation, cafeteria and school lunch services, workbooks, instructional supplies, free textbooks and even uniforms for the athletic teams, if the District Board of Education adopted a so-called "austerity budget" under state law, it was learned today.

Dr. George R. Sullivan, district superintendent, said the possibility of adopting an austerity budget, was one of three courses which the board could take after district voters defeated a $2,696,435 budget in the annual district election Wednesday. The vote was 805 to 787—a margin of 18 votes.

Of 2,822 eligible registered voters, only 1,683 exercised their franchise. A total of 1,139 failed to vote.

Dr. Sullivan said after a special meeting of the board Thursday night, that another special meeting has been called for 8 p. m. Monday in the board rooms. He said that it was expected that thet board would select one of three courses of action at Monday's meeting. The other two alternatives which could be taken, he said, included a revision of the budget or presentation to the voters of same budget, which represents an increase of $426,199 over the 1962-63 budget. Those two alternatives would require another referendum by the district voters, it was learned. The alternative of adopting an austerity budget could be accompanied by vote of the board and under law does not require a public referendum.

Dr. Sullivan, in response to the request of a number of voters in the OCS District, stated a short time ago that legal procedures were provided in case a school budget is defeated at the annual meeting of a Central District.

He said the board of education was empowered to adopt what is known as an austerity budget which is limited to teachers salaries and the ordinary contingent expenses of running a school unless a budget is approved prior to the time the tax must be levied.

In April 1960, he said, Dr. Charles A. Brind, counsel of the State Education Department, issued a list of examples which have been determined as not constituting ordinary contingent expenses and can not be included in an austerity budget.

George Smith, business manager of the OCS District, told the Freeman that adoption of an austerity budget could mean a budget savings of approximately $150,000 to the school district He emphasized that provisions for such a budget were made under state law and not by the individual school district.

Service loses under such a budget, would include:

1. General control. Elimination of fees for evaluation of the school system by the Middle States Association of College and Secondary Schools and for surveying the school system by various individuals, groups or organizations. Loss of rental of

NewTrialOrdered Because Witness Judged Insane

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Because a key witness in a murder trial later was judged insane, the State Court of Appeals has ordered a new trial for a man under a death sentence.

The state's highest court, in a 4-3 decision Thursday, reversed the conviction of Lawrence Rensing of Brooklyn. Rensing had been condemned to die in the electric chair for the shooting of Arthur Holst, 17, a fellow worker in an ice-cream parlor, on Sept. 20, 1962.

The court's majority said there was no question that, "on the record before us, (Rensing's) guilt was established beyond a reasonable doubt."

But the majority contended that the witness' long history of mental illness should have been brought out at the Rensing trial.

With that information, the court said, the jury would have been able to "assess and evaluate the testimony given by him and not accepted it, as undoubtedly they did, as the statement of a normal individual."

The minority opinion held that the evidence against Rensing was so convincing that the jury would have found him guilty without the questioned testimony.

Capt. Alfred Svenson, 31, was returned to U.S. military control at Wartha Thursday. The East-West checkpoint is near Eisenach, where Svenson crossed into East Germany on May 4, 1963, while his tank unit was on maneuvers. The East Germans said he asked for asylum.

No Miracles, Just Resolute Will of People

Much of Clean-Up Is Accomplished As Alaska Rises Again From Quake

EDITOR'S NOTE — Associated Press writer Joe Rigert [illegible] several weeks in Alaska after the March 27 earthquake. He visited areas of major damage and interviewed dozens of officials and citizens. Here is his appraisal of the situation six weeks after the disaster.

By JOE RIGERT

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)— Alaska is rising from the death and destruction of her Good Friday disaster, North America's greatest earthquake.

There are no miracles—only the resolute will of the Alaskan people, their faith in the future, and generous support from fellow Americans.

Time, Money, Work

It is taking time, money and hard work.

The people of this state, a pioneering breed familiar with the challenges of a frontier, have bent to the task.

Much of the clean-up has been accomplished.

Shattered cities are deeply involved in plans to rebuild and even relocate.

Many businessmen have patched up their shops or moved to new quarters.

Repairs are being rushed on the lifeline transportation network of ports, highways and the government-owned Alaska Railroad, which link the cities and towns of the south-central Alaska heartland.

Marks Still Visible

Yet the marks of the earthquake and seismic waves remain plainly visible, despite the clean-up and repair.

The two battered skyscrapers, the hulk of the J. C. Penney department store, the sunken 4th Avenue area — all can still be seen at Anchorage, the state's largest city.

Down the Kenai Peninsula, the Seward waterfront remains cluttered with twisted track, scattered railroad engines and blackened oil storage tanks—the only remains of a once-thriving railport industrial center.

Official Toll Is 115

And throughout the disaster area, damaged or destroyed buildings still offer mute testimony to the terrible force of nature.

The damage estimated from the March 27 catastrophe continues at $750 million, a sizeable portion of the $1.2 billion value of private property in the state. The official Alaska death count has been put at 115.

There has been little actual reconstruction so far — nearly six weeks after the disaster.

It takes time to plan for the rebuilding o cities, even when, as in Alaska now, the planners have been doing months of work in weeks.

Even if the plans were completed and the money available, which is not the case, there would be other obstacles to any immediate start on the Alaskan reconstruction.

Must Await Soil Tests

The short Alaska construction season does not begin until after the spring thaw this month.

Cities like Anchorage, Seward and Valdez also must await the results of soil tests to determine what can be built, if anything, in areas where geologists have warned of landslide hazards.

Major rebuilding is being held up in Anchorage until the land has thawed and settled. The city fears the thaw may trigger more slides, upset foundations and cause additional damage.

Finally, Alaskans are waiting to see what aid they can expect from the federal government.

This is still the biggest uncertainty, the type and extent of assistance to come from Uncle Sam — the benevolent patron who controlled Alaska until statehood in 1959 and continues to play a dominant role in her development.

The Congress, acting in almost unprecedented speed after the earthquake, voted $50 million in disaster relief to help repair the utilities, roads and other public facilities.

More to Be Needed

The Alaska Legislature provided a $50-million bond issue. Other aid has come from the military, scores of state and federal agencies, private relief organizations, sister cities, labor unions, churches and businessmen in other states.

But many Alaskan officials, bankers and businessmen say they will need a great deal more from the federal government, particularly for hard-pressed private businesses and homeowners.

The $50-million bond issue voted by the legislature, says Gov. William A. Egan, is the most this state of 226,000 population can afford.

Egan says he hopes Congress will provide the state with enough budget support to meet anticipated revenue loss and emergency spending caused by the quake.

But the key to future recovery progress, he says, is change in existing law to permit federal agencies to deal adequately with a disaster of the magnitude of the Alaskan experience.

Savings at Stake

Existing uncertainties fall heavily on homeowners whose houses were destroyed or heavily damaged. For some, life savings are at stake. How can they afford a double mortgage—one for a new home and the other on the house that was destroyed?

Businessmen express concern about surviving their setbacks. Low-interest federal disaster loans will help some of them. Federal tax writeoffs also will soften the impact.

Bankers report that many of them also are delaying construction plans until they know how much other aid will come from the federal government.

The Army Corps of Engineers is well under way on the restoration of public facilities, a job it says will cost $92 million.

Water, electricity and other utilities have been restored in most of the disaster area through temporary repairs. Water pipes and even hoses have been placed above ground in many places.

In heavily damaged Valdez, where the utility system was severely ruptured, much of the city still without water and electricity.

The waterfront business-industrial areas of Kodiak and Valdez have been cleared of most of their debris

The survival of Seward, say officials, has been assured by the federal government's decision to restore Alaska Railroad facilities there rather than move the railport north to Whittier.

Anchorage, Seward, Valdez and Kodiak — which bore the brunt of the earthquake-tidal wave damage — are all looking to urban renewal projects to clear their now-blighted areas and rebuild.

The projects could qualify for 75 per cent federal aid.

Anchorage is considering a $50-million plan that would transform damaged areas into parks and parking facilities and shift the central business core slightly to the south.

Valdez, where a bulk of the homes and buildings were damaged or destroyed and geologists have warned of an unstable soil foundations, is planning to move the entire town four miles away.

Seward has developed a proposal that would put a park in its low-lying waterfront area and shift its major industrial section across Resurrection Bay to firm ground.

Additional reconstruction may be necessary as a result of a massive tilting of the earth, leaving sunken coastal areas exposed to periodic flooding from high tides.

SCHOOL ELECTION APATHY

If the vote cast in Tuesday's school election is representative of local public interest in our school system, then a deplorable situation exists. The disgraceful display of apathy in our educational system should be of the deepest concern to all citizens of the Kingston Consolidated School District.

It would seem that more public interest is needed to encourage more candidates to try for these vital public offices. There were but four candidates listed to fill vacancies of three trustees. A large number of candidates with outstanding credentials undoubtedly would generate more interest.

Is it possible that this shameful response in this school district is the result of an ineffectual approach to the selection and election of trustees of the board of education?

The some 30,000 eligible voters who failed to turn out at the polls in the school election forfeited their right to complain about the schools system or the school taxes. However, when new school projects are required, which call for the expenditure of money, then many of these people who shirked their civic duty suddenly become profoundly interested in the education system. On matters of financing, they become wizards and start expounding.

DRESS FOR PEACE

The Russians may shoot down straying planes, but they seem to be unable — and unwilling — to stop the invasion of Western affluence and influence.

The good life, with the problems that come with it, is seeping into the Soviet Union as if the Iron Curtain were no more solid than a sieve, judging by some remarks made recently by Alexei I. Adzhubei, Premier Khrushchev's son-in-law who is editor of Izvestia.

Speaking in Paris, he was quoted as saying that Russian children have "too many things."

"For some years we have brought them up like little Americans, with the result that they are unbearable," he said.

Mr. Adzhubei also revealed Khrushchev's latest party line regarding the ideal wardrobe for the Soviet man and woman.

"He wants the man to own at least three suits, three pairs of shoes, 10 shirts and 10 pairs of socks.

"For women: Two winter dresses or suits, three spring and summer dresses, three dresses and blouses in traditional costume, five pairs of shoes and 10 pairs of stockings.

How long it will be before this ideal is realized is not the important thing. What is significant is that the Russian people, with official encouragement, are devoting more and more energy to raising their standard of living.

When you're wearing a new suit and new shoes, you don't usually go around picking fights.

ELECTRONIC SNOOPING

We have almost arrived at the time when inviolate privacy will be a thing of the past. No man can any longer feel certain — in his home or office, in a hotel room, even riding in his car — that what he says is not being listened to by those who have no right to listen.

This is true because keen, miniaturized electronic apparatus that can be "planted" almost anywhere without so much as a wire to give it away is now available to private detectives and other eavesdroppers. Corporate espionage and other even less savory manifestations of the snooper's art increase as such devices improve.

Further light was cast on the problem when three private investigators were convicted, in Washington, of elertonic eavesdropping with tiny broadcasting devices. The charges were founded on violations, not of wiretapping statutes but of federal broadcasting regulations. Thus a new dimension is added to the already troublesome and complex matter of control over invasions of privacy.

The difficulties are certain to increase rather than diminish. More and more sensitive and sophisticated devices — not only to overhear supposedly private and even whispered conversations, but also to scan mail without even opening it — are being developed. Before the use of these and other techniques gets out of hand, the whole broad problem should be considered with tighter controls in mind. If this is not done soon, the sound concept springing from the old idea that a man's home is his castle will have gone down the drain.

'These Days'

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

THEY ARE STILL GUNNING FOR MacARTHUR

Someone in the Pentagon has it in for the memory of General Douglas MacArthur.

For, out of "hitherto not declassified" files, there is coming a stream of material designed to prove that MacArthur, by wantonly pursuing the North Koreans to the Yalu River, brought the Red Chinese into the Korean War in spite of warnings from Washington that this would happen if he baited them.

Moreover, the same Pentagon source has claimed that MacArthur's plan to spread a radioactive belt across Korea, as outlined to reporter Bob Considine, was both impractical and impossible, and that there simply weren't enough atom bombs in the U. S. armory to permit their use by MacArthur against Red Chinese concentration points if any such points could be found.

The ridiculous aspect of these latest attempts to discredit a great general is that they are mainly a replay of a controversy that was pretty much settled ten years ago.

It will be recalled by anyone with a long memory that MacArthur, both before and after President Truman had relieved him of his command, was under severe criticism for chasing the North Koreans into their own home territory. He had, so it was said at the time, done this in "reckless defiance of superior authority"; he had been victimized by "faulty intelligence" relating to the Red Chinese build-up; and he had chosen to ignore a telecon message from Washington, dated October 4, 1950, that "the potential exists for Chinese Communist forces to openly intervene . . . if U.N. forces cross the thirty-eighth parallel."

The answer to all this was that the United Nations General Assembly, on October 6, 1950, had voted its explicit approval of the crossing of the thirty-eighth parallel, and that the Joint Chiefs of Staff in Washington, in transmitting orders to Tokyo, gave MacArthur permission to go as far as the Manchurian border in pursuit of the demoralized enemy. What MacArthur was warned against was employing air or naval action against Manchuria itself or the Siberian territory of the U.S.S.R.

As for the imputation that MacArthur's own intelligence about the warlike intentions of the Red Chinese was at fault, General Willoughby, MacArthur's G-2 from Bataan to Tokyo, answered the charge way back in 1953 by submitting a random list taken from his daily intelligence summaries that had gone to Washington by special report and radio. These summaries showed that a warning about the Red Chinese build-up had been forwarded from Tokyo to Washington as early as June 6, 1950. On August 31, a Tokyo summary had it that "troop movements from Central China to Manchuria over a considerable period suggest preliminary to entering the Korean theatre . . . total Chinese strength in Manchuria estimated to be 246,000 Regular and 374,000 Military Security forces."

The point which Willoughby, in rebutting the slanders of 1952 and 1953, was careful to make was that MacArthur was briefed every day on what the Red Chinese were doing. The warning of possible Red Chinese interference that went from Washington to Tokyo was simply a relay of Tokyo's own stuff. MacArthur chose to risk the danger of bringing in the Red Chinese because he believed he could isolate them in North Korea by bombing the bridges over the Yalu River, thereby destroying their avenues of supply. However, when the "planned . . . air-interdiction of the Yalu bridges" was countermanded by Washington, in fear that MacArthur's planes might violate Manchurian air space, the possibility of isolating the Red Chinese forces was lost. Moreover, when the knowledge that MacArthur would not be permitted to bomb supply points inside Manchuria was "tipped" by someone to the Red Chinese, the chances of bluffing them out of the war were nullified.

The Pentagon's recent claim that the U. S. lacked enough radioactive cobalt to spread a protective belt across a narrow peninsula might be technically true. But "cobalt," with MacArthur, was a figure of speech. Any radioactive waste from atomic installations would have served the purpose. And it would have taken only three low-grade atomic bombs to discourage Red Chinese use of the three supply roads leading from Manchuria to North Korea. Even conventional bombing would have been sufficient as a deterrent if applied to the right strategic points in Manchuria.

Operation for Hernia Not Always Successful

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—About three years ago I was operated on for a hernia. About six months ago it came back and I have been wearing a truss ever since. I am 60 and don't want another operation if I can help it.

A—Every surgeon in repairing a rupture tries to insure that it will not recur but this sometimes happens even with the best of surgery. The only danger involved with this type of hernia is strangulation—the locking of a segment of intestine in the hernial sac. If your hernia slips back in place easily when you lie on your back and if your truss keeps it from protruding when you are up, there is no harm in treating it in this way.

Q—Is a yeast infection contagious? What would the symptoms be? My doctor says I have a yeast diarrhea. Does this kind of infection come back after it is cured?

A—There are at least 15 kinds of yeast or fungus that may cause disease in man, but none of these diseases primarily attacks the intestines. Some attack the skin; others the lungs or the brain. Diarrhea could be complication of a number of fungus diseases. They vary widely in the degree of contagiousness.

Q—A friend of mine has blood in his urine all the time. Is this because he is an alcoholic?

A—This is always a sign of serious trouble. Alcohol is not a cause but your friend should have a doctor find the true cause without delay.

Q—I read where a woman was nearly blind and she took Hetrazan and was cured. Where could I get this drug?

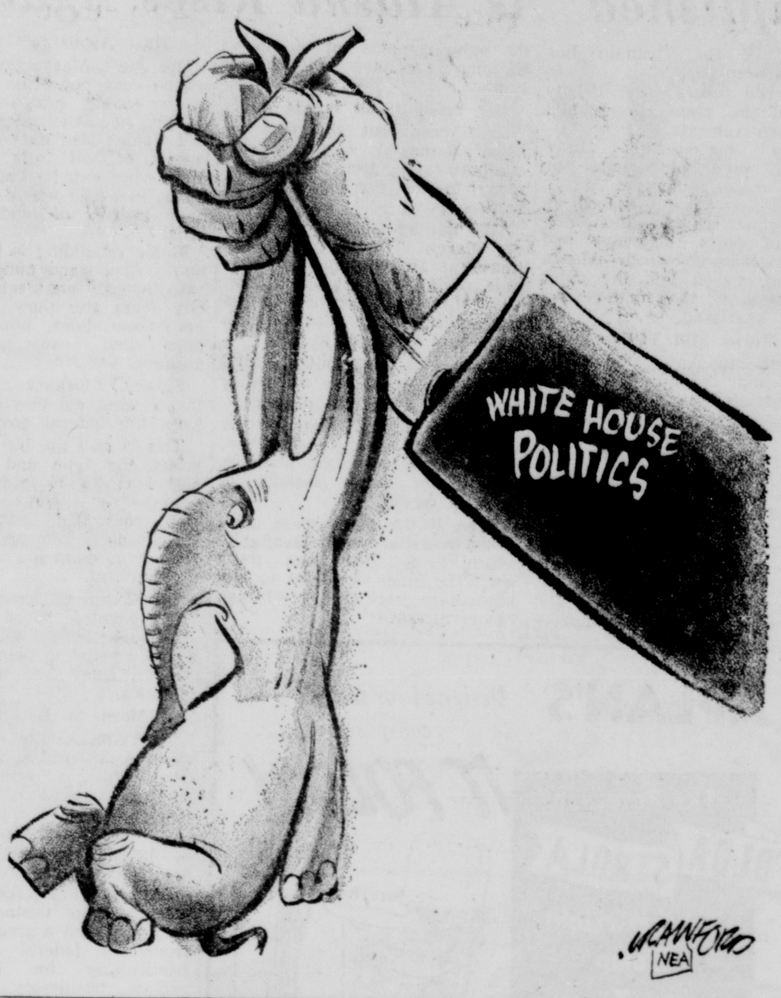

It is true that diethylcarbamazine (Hetrazan) can save the sight of a person whose eye involvement is due to the tropical parasitic disease, onchocerciasis. It would be of no value in persons with any other kind of eye disease.

Q—My nephew, 52, had a blood tumor removed about seven years ago. It seems to be coming back. What should he do now?

A—Your nephew should be examined to determine whether he is having a return of the same condition or whether a different kind of tumor is developing. In either case it would seem wise to have it removed completely.

BABSON on BUSINESS

By Roger W. Babson

BABSON PARK, Mass., May 8 — I have long declared that moral rejuvenation is a "must" if we are to come through the rigors and dangers of the present day and age with our civilization intact. In an effort to specify ways of bringing this about, I have talked with you about religion, ethics, thrift, education, and even a closer attention to land ownership and its responsibilities as possible remedies for today's "moral" problems. At this time I want to discuss the importance of keeping rugged individualism alive in our society.

Trend Against Individualism

Undoubtedly the greatest threat to individuals is the dependence on social groups to bring about "improvements" in today's changing world. For example, politicians and labor leaders want men to be manageable in units. Their goals can be far more easily achieved if individualism can be suppressed. It is next to impossible to get a story across to men separately, one at a time; but if ideas and thoughts can be instilled in social groups, objectives can be gained.

Look at the history of the Soviet Union and its successful expansion of Communism — not only within its borders but in many other countries as well. The Soviets developed collective farms chiefly because an independent farmer would think too much as an individual for them to be able to fit him into the Russian program. Even though the Russians and the Chinese leaders are now in open conflict, they still agree that individuality must be stifled for Communistic success.

Our History of Democracy

It is worth while for us to look back occasionally on the sort of past that brought about the democratic way of life for which we have often been willing to lay down our lives. In America's a-borning period, the rugged individual never let his private convictions be smothered by the group judgement of a committee, a board of directors, or even a political party. A man believed that "one with God is a majority." Democracy came from many hours of "cracker-barrel" discussion in country stores where quiet reigned. Thinking requires quiet, and time enough to relax and chew things over.

The change from the Little Red School House to the conformist type of school of today marked the end of a healthy era. A farmer's son in the days of the Little Red School House began his education in the early dawn. His best schooling actually began with his daily chores, —feeding and watering the animals, operating the farm machinery, planting, growing, and harvesting crops. He had to be alert and ingenious enough to meet emergencies. Sane reasoning was essential. Out of such a life came honesty, thrift, common sense, industry.

Independence and Health

At schooltime, such a lad was not loaded into a bus and driven to some regional school many miles away. He walked to school, building up his independence and his bodily vigor. Even if he had to face into a blizzard, the very resistance to such a storm gave him strength of will at an early age. Even in his local Red School House his individualism was developed by his having to dig out most of the facts he wanted. The rule of "God helps those who help themselves" was implanted in him right at the start.

At recess and at noon there were healthful diversions,—baseball, tag, run-sheep-run. During the walk home at the end of the school day, he had time to go over in his mind and stash away what he had learned. After supper there was homework, a kind of discipline and refresher that some "educators" now talk of eliminating. He did not have to buck the noise and confusion of radio and TV, indiscriminately distracting the eyes and ears, usually making it impossible to think out problems of the day.

Swinging Back Toward Individualism

The atmosphere of the Little Red School House gave America its greatest men, strong and fearless and very definitely rugged individualists. The pendulum has now swung too far in the other direction, tending to make "softies" of our young citizens. We can't swing back simply by noting these facts. But we can encourage our youngsters to do reguler chores, to read more, to think for themselves, and to engage in healthy pursuits such as gardening. I still think gardening — next to the Red School House — is a wonderful character builder.

On School Prayer Ruling: Search for a Compromise

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — A unique idea has come from the chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, Rep. Emanuel Celler, of New York, Democrat. He has suggested that maybe the House and Senate should pass a joint resolution "advising" the Supreme Court of the United States that Congress is in favor of voluntary worship in public schools, and calling for an affirmation of that principle by the court.

Lots of people for years have tried to "advise" the Supreme Court, but to no avail. The members of the court, who are appointed for life, can make any rulings they please, and the only recourse is to adopt a Constitutional amendment to reverse any decision of which the people disapprove.

Actually, there have been many drafts of a new amendment to the Constitution on the question of prayer in the schools, but there are some people in Congress who feel that maybe the problem can be solved another way. Rep. Celler, for example, points to a case in a Federal court in New York which upheld voluntary worship, and he says maybe the Supreme Court will uphold this concept before long.

Meanwhile, those who favor a Constitutional amendment are convinced that nothing is going to be done by the Supreme Court, and that the only way out is to adopt a new amendment.

The situation, has been pointedly summed up by Dr. Charles Wesley Lowry, an Episcopal minister here who now is president of the Foundation for Religious Action in the Social and Civil Order. It was in questioning Dr. Lowry that Chairman Celler suggested a joint resolution to "advise" the Supreme Court. Dr. Lowry nevertheless stood by his testimony, as follows:

"The years 1962 and 1963 will appear to posterity as years of revolution in the relations of church and state, religion and government in the United States.

"The first stage was the decision which struck down the nonsectarian New York school prayer. As this prayer had been uniquely and inter-faith effort, developed by and under Catholic, Protestant, and Jewish leaders, its demolition created a furor. There was a tremendous outburst of indignation throughout the country. The great power elites of our society were aroused nearly as much as the plain people. For example, His Eminence Francis Cardinal Spellman denounced the decision in no uncertain terms. The eminent Protestant theologian Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr, criticized it in the pages of The New Leader. Bishop James A. Pike asserted that the Supreme Court had deconsecrated the nation. Another bishop, I am told, remarked that the court had enacted an Eleventh Commandment; Thou shalt not pray in school. Not a few Jewish teachers were disturbed, among them Rabbi Bernard Zlotowitz and Professor Will Herberg.

"The atmosphere also in both Houses of Congress was very heated. The most outspoken alarm and anger were voiced. The Senate Committee on the Judiciary proceeded almost immediately to hold hearings, which were published in a voluminous and informative volume.

"Then it was, Mr. Chairman, that something quite singular occurred. A combination educational and public relations campaign was initiated, aimed at explaining the court, smoothing down the ruffled feathers of the Congress, quieting the fears of the people, developing support for the extreme ilberal outlook on issues of religion in the public schools, and generally preparing Americans for further and more decisive action by the highest court.

"Members of the Supreme Court themselves get into action to explain their decision—in itself an unusual act. They were joined by various eminent Protestant clergymen, some as individual voices, others in concert. Many lawyers, civic leaders, publicists, and academicians as well as clergy of the major faiths, were drawn into the picture. By the early spring of 1963, when the Supreme Court heard new cases involving the Lord's Prayer and Bible-reading in public schools it was evident that a far-ranging and concerted movement, involving influential elements of key power structures in the country, as in full swing and that its weight was being directed to prepare and condition the American people for a still more definitive and sweeping development.

"The sequel we all know. In June, 1963, the highest court again struck hard. This time there was no technicality available about state officials having composed a prayer or usurping the role of a church. But this lack did not stay the reformatory broom of the justices. They again invoked the no-establishment clause and forbade as prohibited religious exercises saying the Lord's Prayer and reading from the Bible . . .

"So we come back to the remedy of a Constitutional amendment. I was originally reluctant to resort to it, because I am such a believer in the Constitution as we have known it . . . I am, however, now persuaded that an amendment is the only sure, clear, and definite answer. Without such an antidote, the present confusion and cross purposes among our people will increase. Ahead on this course lie treacherous morasses and beyond them an unfathomable abyss. In addition, I am persuaded that intolerance in our country is on the upgrade and I would like to see this quieted by the application of proper remedies rather than allowed to fester and become more inflamed."

Jim Bishop: Reporter

The pride of the prisoner humbled the captors. He stood quietly in the late morning sun, the wrists bound behind him, looking everywhere but up at the rope noose, swinging feebly in the September breeze. The fair, handsome face was alert, interested in the platoon of British grenadiers around him. He asked for a clergyman. The Provost Marshal declined. He asked for a Bible. It was refused.

The prisoner was a spy. His name was Nathan Hale. He was 21 years old, a captain in the colonial Continental Army. He watched the hangman steady a rickety ladder against the old oak, and climb it to gather the loose end of the rope in his hand. The place was 66th Street and Third Avenue, New York City, and the day was September 22, 1776.

Hale was born in Coventry, Conn. He was one of 12 children. They were all patriots, all interested in public affairs. Nathan's mother, Elizabeth Strong Hale, taught the youngsters to be unafraid to speak, unafraid to fight, unafraid to die.

The boy was 14 when he entered Yale College. In spite of his tender years, he was invited to join Linonia, a fraternity devoted to "literary exertion." Nathan was a dedicated reader, but he was also a dedicated athlete. He was 5 feet 9 inches tall, and he was a competitive sportsman at swimming, wrestling, football and track.

When he was 16, he made such a prodigious broad jump that the student body at Yale kept the marks and built a fence around them. He graduated when he was 18, and spent the summer with his uncle, Samuel Hale, at Portsmouth, N. H. There he fished and hunted with his first cousin, Sam.

The views of the boys were divergent. Nathan felt that the colonies should free themselves from Great Britain. Sam was equally certain that there was no better world than that of George III. In Sept. 1773, Nathan began to teach school in Connecticut. His manner was so engaging that he charmed the students and their parents. When the news of the Battle of Lexington reached New London, Nathan Hale made a speech which unified the community to fight for liberty.

On July 1, 1775, he became a lieutenant of militia. Within six months, he was a captain. Hale took part in the siege of Boston and, in a daring feat, stole a sloop loaded with food from under the guns of His Majesty's ship-of-the-line, Asia. The combination of bravery and calculated risk caused Colonel Thomas Knowlton to select him for service in his Rangers.

The British gave George Washington a bad mauling on Long Island. The Continental Army retreated to Harlem, and General Washington told Knowlton that he "had to know" the disposition of the British forces under General Howe. Would they pursue his crippled forces? Or would they retire for a rest in New York City?

Colonel Knowlton stood in front of his Rangers and asked for volunteers. No man moved. He called a second time. Nathan Hale stepped forward. Later, his friend Captain William Hull tried to dissuade him. "No," said Hale. "I wish to be useful, and every kind of service necessary to the public good becomes good, becomes honorable by being necessary."

Hale disguised himself as a school teacher and rode to a point above Hell Gate, hired two men to row him to Long Island at night and walked through the British lines. He counted the soldiers and units and they were few. Between Sept. 12th and the 21st, he made numerous drawings of forts, guardposts and roads in Queens and Brooklyn. Then he took a ferry to Manhattan and was proceeding north through the British lines when he was challenged.

Captain Hale was taken by grenadiers to the headquarters of General Howe. There, he was giving a good account of the life of a schoolteacher when he saw Howe's Deputy Commissioner of Prisoners. It was his cousin Sam. Hale surrendered. In one shoe was found sketches of British formations and forts. He stood erect and gave his name, his rank in the Continental Army, and the object of his mission.

General Howe ordered him to be hanged in the morning, without trial. The prisoner did not flinch. He asked permission to write two letters. Captain John Montresor, His Majesty's Chief Army engineer, stepped forward and offered Hale the use of his tent for the night. Nathan Hale wrote one letter to his brother Enoch; one to Col. Knowlton, who had been killed in action the day before.

When the hangman came down the ladder, the young prisoner with the fair hair and the sturdy legs, made a few remarks about liberty. None of the officers and men listened, except to the last sentence. None of them could ever forget the words, nor the peaceful manner of their utterance.

The rope was already around Nathan Hale's neck when he said: "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country." . . .

Adm. Nomura Dies

Spoke of Peace As Japs Struck

TOKYO (AP)—Adm. Kichisaburo Nomura, Japan's ambassador to the United States when his country attacked Pearl Harbor, died today after a long illness. He was 86.

Stiff Tongue-Lashing

Nomura and special envoy Saburo Kurusu received one of the stiffest tongue-lashings in diplomatic annals when they arrived at the State Department on Dec. 7, 1941 bringing Japan's rejection of the latest U.S. peace formula. Bombs had just begun falling on the Pacific outpost.

Seething with anger, Secretary of State Cordell Hull kept Nomura and Kurusu waiting 15 minutes in an anteroom.

They entered Hull's office smiling and bowing and handed him the Japanese note. He read it slowly, without betraying his fury, even at the sentence, "The immutable policy of Japan is to promote world peace."

Then Hull exploded, telling the two shocked envoys:

"In all my 50 years of public service, I have never seen a document that was more crowded with infamous falsehoods and distortions — infamous falsehoods and distortions on a scale so huge that I never imagined until today that any government on this planet was capable of uttering them."

Nomura, who had been assigned to Washington nine months earlier, repeatedly denied any advance knowledge of the attack which brought the United States into World War II.

"I must have been the worst-informed ambassador in history," he said on a visit to the United States in 1953.

U.S. officials generally accepted Nomura's denial and did not press for his prosecution as a war criminal.

A tall soft-spoken career navy officer, Nomura was drafted for the diplomatic assignment because he was known in Washington as an advocate of peace with the United States.

In the postwar years, he was a business executive. He was elected to the Japanese Senate in 1959, and he opposed the leftist campaign against the U.S.-Japan Security Treaty.

His health failed in recent years and he was under treatment for a brain ailment. He is survived by his widow and a son.

Battle Canada's Fires

TORONTO (AP)—Firefighters battled blazes across Eastern Canada's parched forests today with little help expected from the elements.

One of 24 Ontario fires was raging out of control in Algonquin Park 140 miles northwest of Ottawa. The army was standing by in Quebec. Nova Scotians finally gained the upper hand in battles with 50 blazes.

Rigaud, 40 miles northwest of Montreal, was threatened as strong winds pushed a fire along a two-mile front to within three-quarters of a mile of the town.

Power Fails as Jeep Parachutes to Line

FORT WALTON BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Suburban residents searched for almost an hour before they found the cause of an electricity failure Thursday.

When two employes of the city golf course located the trouble, no one believed them.

A jeep from an Air Force C130 cargo plane apparently fell out of the aircraft and parachuted onto a power line.

A spokesman from the Tactical Air Warfare Center at Eglin Air Force Base said the jeeps are normally secured in the plane.

No one was injured. A power company workman said the lines were only burned.

Wharton Opposes Flight Service Station Closing

Twenty-five statements were presented recently by Congressman J. Ernest Wharton (R-28th District) to officials of the Federal Aviation Agency and the Weather Bureau in Washington in vigorous plea against closing the Flight Service Station at the Dutchess County Airport.

It was reported that most of the statements quoted by Congressman Wharton referred to the peril involved in removing the Flight Service Station and replacing it with a remote control system.

Charles A. McKinnon, manager of the IBM Flight Operations at the Dutchess airport in New Hackensack, was quoted as saying, "I feel that this program of closing Flight Service Stations is really a political play by the FAA which has picked this issue as the one that is most likely to cause the flying public to place the largest protest."

Harold Hurst, a Millbrook farmer pilot who long has used the service, said, "I like to see my tax dollar spent wisely, but not at the expense of someone's life, and it may be your own if you ever fly this way."

21 Appointments Made, 12 Resign

Local School Board Is Out of Co-op Bidding

Members of the Board of Education of the Kingston School District (Consolidated) at a regular meeting Wednesday night, voted to withdraw from an informal agreement entered into with seven other school districts for cooperative bidding on paper and duplicating supplies.

The Board approved 21 professional appointments on recommendation of Superintendent of Schools W. Wendell Hoover, and accepted 12 resignations with regret.

Can Save Alone

Some time ago the board of education entered into an informal agreement with the boards of education of seven other districts for cooperative bidding of paper requirements and duplicating supplies. The other districts were Onteora, Wallkill, Ellenville, New Paltz, Rondout Valley, Saugerties and Highland Central School Districts.

The Kingston board contends that results of cooperative bidding, on the basis of bids received, do not appear to be to the advantage of the taxpayers of the Kingston School District. It was noted that informal quotations received by the school district's business office indicate a considerable saving to be possible, if the Kingston district purchases these supplies individually.

A resolution to withdraw from its informal agreement with the seven other districts, was unanimously passed at last night's meeting of the board, which authorized Richard V. Roth, business manager, to secure bids for the Kingston School District requirements of paper and duplicating supplies for the school year 1964-65.

Appointments Made

Professional appointments approved on probation were: Mrs. Emma Aduchefsky, Miss Carol Cerny, Mrs. Joanne Coutant, Mrs. Lorraine Denis, William Gruner III, Miss Mary Jesinger, Miss Mary Ann Kennedy, Mrs. Mary M. McMickle, Mrs. Alice Pedersen, all elementary teachers; Miss Susan Alexander, physical education; Mrs. Selma DiMuccio, art teacher.

Others appointed were: Science teachers — Peter Castka, John Halvorson, James P. Martyn, and Miss Alice E. Post; Math teachers — Miss Nancy Jo-An Nichols, Mrs. Joanne E. Petramale; English teachers — Miss Paulette Tirc, Miss Susan Umpleby.

Mrs. Viola M. Haggerty was appointed a nurse-teacher, and Nicholas Hondrocostas a social studies teacher.

On recommendation of Dr. Hoover, the board appointed William A. Scafidi as summer high school principal during the summer of 1964. Gabriel Porto was named assistant football coach at M.J.M. School, with a differential in salary of $150.

Resignations Accepted

Resignations accepted with regret included: Mrs. Alice Cross, elementary teacher at Tillson; Thomas J. Giroux, math teacher at Kingston High School; John G. Glennon, art teacher; Thomas Guerriero, elementary supervisor; Frances M. Lake, elementary teacher, Chambers School; Miss Lorraine Lawrence, elementary teacher, Tillson; Miss Nora O'Sullivan, elementary teacher, George Washington School; Miss Lois Prescott, guidance counsellor; Mrs. Louise B. Smith and Gordon E. Eaton, science teachers, MJM school; Miss Georgette R. Dunn, physical education teacher, and Mrs. Viola Opdahl, social studies teacher.

Leaves of absence were approved for Mrs. Marianne Darrow, speech therapist, June 30, 1964 to Sept. 1, 1965; Mrs. Barbara K. Shulman, elementary teacher, June 30, 1964 to June 30, 1965, and Mrs. Veronica Corcoran, elementary teacher, June 30, 1964 to Sept. 1, 1965.

Civil Service terminations and resignations approved: Adolph Scholl, cleaner; Barbara Scheffel, Teri Debrosky Smurl, stenographers; Florence Milano and James A. McCoy, food service helpers; Virginia Robinson, school lunch driver.

New Employes:

Other appointments approved were: Jacob F. Boss, cleaner; Patricia Larkin, a student, clerical with Project Able; Rose Tsitsera, stenographer in MJM School guidance office; Roger S. Jones, school lunch driver, and John Nilsen, a student, high school stage lighting as needed.

The board approved a change in job classification for Mrs. Rose Hopper from machine operator in the business office to payroll clerk.

Flags Fly for Sam

DECORAH, Iowa (AP)— Somebody flubbed and flags in honor of VE Day, the day of Allied victory in Europe during World War II, were put up a day in advance Thursday.

When people telephoned Bill Walker, Chamber of Commerce manager, and Bob Bernatz, street commissioner, they were told:

"Today the flags are being flown in honor of Sam Sande's birthday. They also will be flown tomorrow in honor of VE Day."

Sam was a member of the crew that put up the flags.

Cain Company Plans Largest Ad Campaign

BOSTON, Mass — The John E. Cain Company has unveiled its largest advertising and promotion campaign in the 50-year history of the company as the highlight of its Jubilee Anniversary celebration.

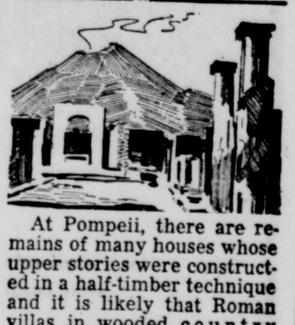

The observance, which was attended by over 800 employes, both wives and husbands, and distributors, was marked by many awards and citations. Mrs. Winifred Cain, widow of John E. Cain who founded the company in 1914, was presented a 50-year pin by her son, Robert H. Cain, president, for "her continous unselfish service to the company for a half century. She also was presented 50 yellow roses by the employes and a gold mantle clock by the officers of the company.

Secretaries of the Retail Grocers Associations throughout New England, representing more than 20,000 retail grocers, presented President Cain a scroll citation for "his outstanding contribution to the New England Grocery Industry."

A complete "new look" in package design and corporate identification was revealed for the first time by Robert Cain. A striking, modern-looking label design of the word "Cains" has been created to tie the complete line together. All corporate communications used by the company will include a new and different corporate signature.

Advertising plans spelled out during the sales meeting include large space newspaper advertising and television commercials.

Today's Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—More jobs are opening up as the economy expands. But the percentage of those in the labor force that can't find work stays stubbornly high.

Jobs Not Enough

Just adding 750,000 more jobs in April—nicely above the usual seasonal trend—isn't enough.

Some years back an unemployment rate of 4 per cent of the labor force was considered too much. Now government officials are happy when they can report it's under 5.5 per cent. Somewhat wistfully they talk of chances of getting it below 5 per cent maybe by next year.

The labor force is the total at any one time of those with jobs or looking for them. The unemployment rate is the percentage of this total that reports it wants to work but can't find a job.

The number of those with jobs keeps rising. It's now above 70 million, some 1.8 million more than a year ago.

But the labor force keeps rising just as fast or faster.

Part of this is due to the much discussed population explosion—the fact that now, and in the next few years, increasing numbers of young people will be reaching the job-holding or job-seeking age.

Attractive Jobs for Some

But in recent months a growing prosperity has increased the labor force from another source. Attractive jobs are opening up now and luring those who aren't interested at other times. They enter the labor force or drop out as the kind of work they like or can handle expands or declines in their communities.

Modern home appliances have made it possible for more married women to handle both housework and outside jobs.

Also complicating any assessment of the nation's labor picture is a growing amount of moonlighting in recent years. This is the holding of more than one job by the same person. Often this is to gain much needed additional income. But often it is to lift the family into a higher status, to provide desired gadgets or more expensive vacations.

Colony Liquor Is Buying 11 Acre Cider Mill Tract

Purchase of an 11-acre tract on Flatbush Avenue, formerly the Deyo Cider Mill, by Vincent J. Andretta of the Colony Liquor Distributors Inc., of Kingston and Albany, was expected to be finalized today.

It was reported that a building will be constructed, containing 45,000 square feet of floor space, which will be utilized as a warehouse and offices for the Colony Liquor Distributors Inc.

A firm spokesman reportedly noted the location will produce a possible nucleus for an industrial park, a good site for industries.

Troopers Step Up 31 to Sergeant

Arthur Cornelius Jr., superintendent of New York State Police, today announced the promotion of 31 state troopers to the rank of sergeant. The troopers are presently assigned to stations in various parts of the state and will assume their new duties on May 18.

The 31 troopers successfully completed a recent examination for sergeant, and comprise the third group promoted to that office in a move to provide more trained men for first line of supervisory duty in the state police department.

Prior to being assigned to new substations in their new office, the 31 men will attend a comprehensive course of training at the State Police Academy for two weeks. This training is in line with the continued improvement in the department for preparing officers for their assignment in higher posts.

Troopers promoted in the Troop C area were: T. J. Chura, Steve Kurpil, L. W. Merritt formerly of the Phoenicia substation under Sergeant H. S. Rhodes, W. L. Pettite, D. C. Ellis, R. W. Richard Rauch, who is being transferred to Troop G, and E. C. Matthewson, who is being transferred to the Troop D Thruway detail.

Can Will Face Firing Squad in Saigon Saturday

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Ngo Dinh Can, younger brother of the late President Ngo Dinh Diem and former viceroy of central Viet Nam, is to die before a firing squad in a Saigon prison Saturday.

Can, 53, who ruled the northern capital of Hue and surrounding provinces with an iron hand until his brother was overthrown last November, was convicted last month of murder.

A military tribunal also convicted him of corruption, extortion and abusing his power in addition to ordering the torture death of three persons in 1956, 1957 and 1958.

Can, member of a family dominant in South Viet Nam for a decade until all except him were killed or exiled, maintained he was innocent.

Cambodia Kayoes Viet Armored Car

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A Cambodian tank knocked out a Vietnamese armored personnel carrier on the border today and captured the vehicle and its crew.

Military sources said at least 10 other Vietnamese vehicles were poised on the frontier, ready to move in and retake the personnel carrier if ordered to do so. It appeared doubtful, however, that the order would be given.

Cambodia charged that 13 South Vietnamese armored vehicles crossed its border Thursday and attacked the village of Taey, in southeastern Cambodia two miles inside the frontier.

Military authorities in Phnom Penh, capital of Cambodia, said a rural guard and five villagers were killed at Taey.

No Americans were involved in the new border incident.

Informants said the Cambodian tank apparently was lying in wait and opened up on the Vietnamese armored car with a salvo.

The tank then quickly moved up to the stricken vehicle, the sources said, and Cambodian soldiers surrounded it. Vietnamese at the scene did not report seeing any casualties.

N. H. Clamps Down on Woods

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Restrictions on the use of the woods in New Hampshire have been severely tightened as a result of the very dry conditions which have greatly increased the forest fire danger in New England.

Gov. John W. King signed a proclamation Thursday banning smoking in the woods.

New Hampshire already had limited activities in the woods due to the drought buildup the Weather Bureau says won't be relieved by rain soon.

New Hampshire had a prior ban on permits for woods fires. Massachusetts closed the 1,800-acre Mt. Tom reservation in the Holyoke area Thursday and many main communities have issued bans on all outdoor fires.

Vermont State Forester Albert Gottlieb said conditions in the Vermont woods were the worst they have been in the last six springs. He said he would recommend that the woods be closed if there is a substantial outbreak of fires. Outdoor fires are banned in the state.

Reverse Hatred Trend, Is Advice on Nixon

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon says the civil rights cause is suffering "from the effect of allowing its leadership to fall into the hands of irresponsible extremists."

They are creating race hate which is endangering civil rights legislation, he said Thursday night.

Uncalled for demonstrations and boycotts have created "a wall of race hatred" in northern metropolitan centers, Nixon said.

"Now this hatred has developed so that any law might not be worth the paper it is written on," he declared. "A law is only as good as the will of the people to obey it."

"What we need now is to reverse this trend of hatred," he told a Brotherhood dinner during a speech in which he called for "an offensive to create understanding and personal responsibility."

Reds Back Sukarno

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Indonesia, which has built the mightiest war machine in Southeast Asia with Soviet aid, has a new promise of Soviet help in its drive to crush Malaysia.

The official news agency Antara said today Soviet Ambassador N. A. Michailov promised "the Soviet government will keep on helping the Indonesian people in their campaign to crush the neo-colonialist project of Malaysia."

"The Soviet support to the Indonesian struggle is concrete and not merely in words," Michailov said.

It was not clear whether this meant the Soviet government would increase the 1961 arms deal which provided Indonesia with $1 billion in modern Soviet weapons, including jet fighters and missiles.

Kindergarten Registration Is Set for May 16

Ronald P. Vanni, Director of Elementary Education at the Onteora Central Schools, has announced that kindergarten registration for next September will be held on Saturday, May 16, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 12 noon at the Reginald R. Bennett School, Boiceville, and the West Hurley elementary school, West Hurley.

Registration will be from 1 to 4 p. m. at the Woodstock elementary school in Woodstock.

Letters will be mailed during the week of May 4 informing parents of the registration location for their child. Children should generally be registered in the building they will attend in the fall. Children who will be attending the new Phoenicia School, however, should register at the Bennett School, Boiceville. Newcomers to the area may call the Bennett School, Boiceville, to determine the building at which their child should be registered.

Must Furnish Proof

In order to be eligible for kindergarten in September 1964, a child must be five years old on or before December 1, 1964. Proof of the childs birthdate in the form of a birth or baptismal certificate and records of vaccination and immunization and a completed health history form should be presented when the child is registered. Health history forms will be mailed in the letters informing parents of the registration location.

The 1964-65 editions of Onteora's kindergarten and Health Department's booklets will be distributed on registration day. The booklets, revised annually by staff members, contain information of interest to parents and will serve as a handy reference throughout the yar. A physical examination of the child will also be distributed. The teacher, school nurse, and principal will be available to answer questions. The children will have the opportunity to tour the building, visit their classroom and meet their teacher and future classmates.

Promotions Set By Fire Company

Three new promotions were announced at the May meeting of Woodstock Fire Company No. 1 by Fire Chief George Haythorne.

Duncan Wilson, who was appointed Deputy Fire Chief by the fire commissioners, tendered his resignation as first lieutenant. The vacancy was filled by elevating 2nd lieutenant Peter Koehn to first lieutenant.

Bruce Reynolds was elected to fill Koehn's unexpired term as second lieutenant.

The company also voted to purchase a 2,200-gallon tank truck to improve service at locations where there is no water available or only a limited supply.

The chief's monthly report revealed that April was a busy month for the firefighters. There were 14 alarms during the month classified as two building fires, eight brush fires, two oil burner fires and two false alarms.

Captain Robert Breitenstein reported that the company held a fire drill on the Bearsville flats. There were two phases in the drill. The first section consisted of setting fire to 200 gallons of oil and then notifying the company by radio. The truck was dispatched to the scene of the fire. The hose was laid, pumper connected to the hydrant and the pump stream extinguished the blaze.

The second section was the setting up of a 1,000-gallon canvas portable tank and filling it with water. The water was then pumped from the portable tank to the tank of the pumper and used to put out the fire. He further stated that there was a good turnout, as the men were still in the firehouse, having just returned from brush fire calls received while they were getting ready for the drill.

Women's League Adopts Rights Study for Year

Mrs. Alvin E. Moscowitz, president of the Woodstock League of Women Voters and its delegate to the national convention of the League of Women Voters of the United States held in Pittsburgh, Pa., April 20-24, today announced the 1964-1966 National League Program adopted at the convention.

A new study item was chosen entitled Development of Human Resources: Evaluation of U. S. policies and programs to provide for all citizens equality of opportunity for education and employment.

The League is concerned with people who may not be able to share in the American way of life and feels that education and employment are a logical starting point for this item. Study possibly could include youth employment, older people and automation, productive vocations, responsibility of the Nation toward people in certain areas, availability of employment opportunities, racial discontent, and other related problems.

Continue Studies

The League will continue their study of (1) United Nations: Support of U. S. policies which strengthen the U.N. system and its ability to keep peace; (2) Foreign Economic Policy: Support of U. S. policies which promote world economic development, maintain a sound U. S. economy, and further international and regional cooperation; and (3) Water Resources: Support of National policies and procedures which promote comprehensive long-range planning for conservation and development of Water Resources.

The League is retaining as their continuing responsibilities the past studies on (1) Loyalty Security: Support of standardized procedures, "common sense" judgement, and greatest possible protection for the individual under the federal loyalty-security programs; opposition to extension of such programs to nonsensitive position; (2) District of Columbia: Support of self-government and representation in Congress for citizens of the District of Columbia; (3) Tax Rates: Opposition to Constitutional limitations on tax rates; and (4) Treaty Making: Opposition to Constitutional changes that would limit the existing powers of the Executive and the Congress over foreign relations.

The League, as an organization, backs only issues on which they have taken a position which is decided on after careful and independent study and discussion by its members.

At Kingston Airport

Gale Brownlee First Woman Accredited as Private Pilot

A Woodstock glamour girl and professional model, is the first woman flier to be accredited for a private pilot's license at the Carroll Air Service.

Gale Brownlee, a native of Woodstock who started flying in September, 1963, in Kingston, is also her instructor's first female student to get a license. The instructor, Henry Cramer, resides in Jewitt, N. Y.

She had taken several jaunts in planes before taking a formal lesson. She soloed on election day, then went to Florida for a week and took additional instruction at the Tilford Flying Service at Palm Beach International.

The private pilot's license arrived on April 10, just under seven months after her first lesson.

She attended ground school in Kingston Airport and now plans to strive for higher ratings, commercial, instruments, etc.

Miss Brownlee has been signally honored by an invitation to join the 99ers, a nationally recognized women's club. She hopes to race as a co-pilot in the annual Powder Puff Derby, if not this year, certainly next year.

The longest cross country jaunt she has attempted so far was to Annapolis, Maryland. She has also been to many other airports around the eastern United States and this past weekend flew up to Burlington, Vt.

The name of her plane, Cessna 172, is "Skyhawk."

Miss Brownlee is also well known in ski circles in the area, as a competitor and writer of ski activities. But this new flying career is the most exciting thing that has happened to her. And in a footnote she adds: "Don't forget to point out that it took a Woodstockian to get the first woman's private pilot's license in this part of the country.

Her offer to take a spin in Skyhawk has been taken under advisement.

Mt. Marion Group Asks Town Board For Assistance

Residents of Mt. Marion Park housing development presented a problem to Saugerties Town Board Thursday night regarding the maintenance of roads in the park, the mall, the flag pole and the picnic beach area.

In a letter signed by 10 families in the park, four situations were outlined in which the group ask the board for assistance.

The letter said the roads in the park are in poor condition; the mall where the flag pole stands needs grass cutting, the flag pole is rusted and the picnic area is in bad shape and requires maintenance.

The board suggested that the group attend a future meeting for a full discussion of the matter.

Thomas R. Trainer, senior building constuction engineer of the State Building Codes Bureau presented the State Building Code for consideration by the board.

Superintendent of Highways William R. Brown told the board that in response to many requests for a full stop sign at the Route 212 intersection with Mt. Marion Road, he is contacting the State Department of Public Works to remedy the situation. The dangerous condition of the intersection was noted.

Scout Pack 130 Has Inspection

The annual uniform inspection, advancements in rank, arrow awards, and induction of two new Cubs were the highlights of the April meeting of Pack 130 at Trinity Episcopal Parish House.

Opening ceremonies were conducted by Den 4.

Cubmaster Thomas Farnham welcomed the guests and parents and announced the schedule of events for the meeting. After the roll call, Farnham introduced John Carlson and William Poythrus from Rip Van Winkle Council who were to conduct the annual inspection. Each Den received a thorough inspection for general neatness and grooming plus a close examination for uniform correctness.

Pack honors went to Den 1 who scored the highest per cent grade for the inspection. However, Dens 2, 3, and 4 were close behind and Mr. Carlson announced that the per cent grades for all dens were very high.

During the inspection the group was entertained with a piano solo by Richard Mandt of Den 1.

Following the inspection, Den 3 directed by Mrs. Lorraine Whittaker entertained the attendance with an original skit on "Beatles" showing the similarity in the garden variety and the more common and recently publicized singing variety.

Advancement ceremonies conducted by Farnham included induction of two new cubs, three advancements to Wolf, advancement to Bear, and Lion and arrow awards to seven cubs.

Awards were as follows: Bobcats, Paul Gosseth and Donald Courselle; Wolf, David Connard, Robert Shultis and Richard Lorenz; Bear, Mark Warfel and Lion, Thomas Cole.

Arrow awards were presented to Fred Maldanado, gold; James Myers, silver; Carlton Whittaker, two silver, Douglas Smith, two silver; Richard Lorenz, gold, and Robert Shultis, one gold and two silver.

Farnham announced the next pack meeting would be held May 29, and the theme would be "Indians." He also announced that there are two vacancies on the pack committee and any interested cub father should contact the committee chairman, John Warfel.

The meeting was formally closed by the cubmaster and refreshments served.

Class of 1939 Reunion Dinner Attended by 113

Saugerties High School Class of 1939 left its mark of accomplishments on the school and the community, it was revealed at a reunion dinner last week at The Flamingo Restaurant attended by 113.

The Sawyer's Reunion name was adopted for the occasion by the committee in order to include the entire class of 1939, as some had to leave before graduation. The committee pointed out that this was a depression year and some students had to leave and go to work before graduation.

Guests included Dr. Grant D. Morse, who was superintendent of schools; Mrs. Morse; High School Principal David Cunningham, who taught science and math at that time; Mrs. Cunningham; Maurice Clements and Mrs. Leona Hogan Clements, who was class advisor; Transportation Supervisor Lawrence Cahill, who was athletic coach; Mrs. Cahill, and Donald Lockwood, who was music teacher.

A moment of silent prayer was observed for the eight deceased members. The committee announced that it had made 100 per cent contact with all graduates of the class.

Richard Smith, toastmaster welcomed the guests and introduced William Bleidner, of Delaware, class president, who delivered the welcoming address.

Mrs. Emily Ricci Spada traced plans for the reunion and said the class had changed the school ring by adding a stone; initiated the use of spiral binding on the Sawyer, an innovation 25 years ago; launched Mrs. Leona Clements as class advisor, a post she held until her retirement.

The Alma Mater song was published in 1939 and the class was happy to have Mr. Lockwood, its composer at the piano while they joined in singing it as a finale to the event.

Mrs. Ellen Gunderson Wolfe was recognized as the member who traveled the farthest to attend, from Bellaire, Ohio. She was editor-in-chief of the Sawyer yearbook.

Others on the committee not already mentioned include Joseph Pfleghaar, who gave a rather hilarious treasurer's report; Dorothy Calder Gade, Mary Frisbie Bonack, Mildred Newkirk, Dorothy Hennegan Stauss, Robert Youngs, Frank C. Sloboda, Ernest R. Ackert, Rhoda Hommel Mower.

Mrs. Spada and Richard Smith were co-chairmen; Catherine and Dean Van Etten were in charge of name tags and Virginia Shackett Gilmore made table decorations.

In conjunction with the reunion, an ambitious souvenir journal was published including a memoriam page listing deceased members and a complete roster listing names and ages of children and present occupations.

Stratton Backed By Nine More Counties, 22 Now

NEW YORK (AP) — Nine more Upstate counties have announced support of Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., for the U.S. Senate, according to a Stratton spokesman.

That brings the total of counties in Stratton's corner to 22, the spokesman added.

The announcement said the counties whose Democratic committees announced their support Thursday were Onondaga (Syracuse), Lewis, Delaware, Jefferson, Madison, Chenango, Cortland, Otsego and Cattaraugus.

Earlier statements by New York City leaders were interpreted as indicating opposition to Stratton as an opponent for incumbent Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y.

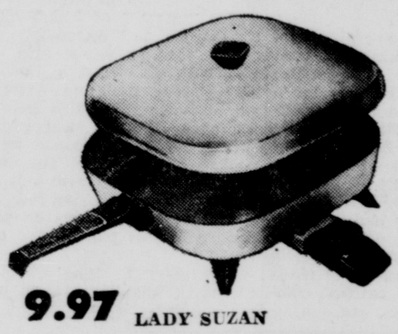

Stratton is regarded as an unannounced candidate for the nomination.

Court Decision Favors DeSapio, Orders New Vote

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Carmine G. DeSapio, former leader of Tammany Hall and one-time power in the national Democratic party, was embarked today on another attempt at a political comeback, thanks to the state's highest court.

The Court of Appeals, in a unanimous decision Thursday, ordered a new primary election in the contest in which DeSapio lost his bid to regain the Democratic leadership of the 1st Assembly District in Manhattan.

When he lost that post in 1961 to Edward I. Koch, a reform movement Democrat, DeSapio became ineligible to continue as chairman of the New York County (Manhattan) Democratic Committee—Tammany Hall.

After he was declared the loser to Koch last year by 41 votes, out of more than 9,000, DeSapio went to court to seek a new election. He contended that 65 invalid ballots had been cast in the first election.

Lower courts upheld DeSapio's challenge of 35 ballots but said 30 others were valid.

DeSapio had contended the 65 ballots could not be counted because the voters had failed to sign registration records at the polling places.

The court of appeals agreed that "the votes so cast were invalid..."

But the court said it could not declare DeSapio the winner because the irregularities made it impossible to determine who had been elected.

The high court ordered the State Supreme Court in which the case originated to arrange a new election and set a date.

Photos of Ralph Radcliffe Whitehead and the buildings which he began to erect at Byrdcliffe in 1902 are included. The coming of the Art Students League, outdoor sketching classes with John Carlson teaching, the activities of Woodstock's art students of many years ago are shown in a series of photographs never before exhibited. They were taken by the late Sam Wylie about 1912. A panoramic photograph of participants in one of the Maverick Festivals of the 1920's shows many people still active in Woodstock life in imaginative costumes.

To many people, the most interesting of all the photographs in the exhibition will be a remarkable portrait of Hervey White as a young man. It's thought to have been taken by the well known photographer and one time resident of Byrdcliffe, Eva Watson Schuetze.

The entire exhibition has been arranged by Alf Evero, Woodstock Town Historian, with the assistance of Leon Carey and Walter Peters. Many Woodstock people helped by lending material or giving information.

• BRIDGE

Easy to Bid, Hard to Make

BY OSWALD JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

There are any number of ways for South to reach seven hearts. I suppose that many of the players in the Inter-collegiate Bridge Tournament reached that contract.

But I also doubt if many of them made it although the play is clear-cut even if you aren't looking at all 52 cards.

South wins the opening club lead in dummy and wants to get to his own hand to pull trumps. He cashes dummy's ace of spades and ruffs a spade with the seven or eight of trumps.

Then he lays down a high trump and gets a slight jolt. West fails to follow.

Still, if South has gone this far, he should be able to go the rest of the way, provided he can get back to dummy. If he tries to get there with a club, he will go right down. Undoubtedly, he will lead a diamond and once he is in dummy he is home free.

He will start by cashing dummy's remaining high spade and will discard his last diamond.

Then he will play high diamonds. If East ruffs, South will simply overruff and draw trumps. If East fails to ruff, South will discard clubs. Eventually both he and East will be down to nothing but trumps. East will have to ruff a club, but South will overruff.

N. Y. Naturalists Find Cranes Out of Habitat

LOCKPORT, N.Y. (AP)—Authorities at the Iroquois National Wildlife Refuge are puzzled by the presence of four demoiselle cranes.

The natural habitat of the cranes is North Africa, the Near East and Southern Europe.

The Buffalo Audubon Society identified the birds, said to resemble American blue herons.

Lawrence Smith, chief of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service at the refuge said he does not know whether the cranes can survive New York State climate. He believes the birds may have escaped from a zoo or someone's private preserve.

CHARLES H. GAFFNEY JR.

Named Selectee To Boys' State

A Kingston High School junior, Charles H. Gaffney Jr., son of Attorney and Mrs. Charles H. Gaffney, was recently named one of 10 selectees chosen by members of the school faculty to attend American Legion Boys' State.

Boys' State sessions will be held the last week in June at Colgate University, Hamiliton.

He will attend under the sponsorship of Kingston Post 150, American Legion.

His extra-curricular activities include membership and treasurer of the Ski Club; membership in the Key Club, Hi-Y, French Society and Junior Class Executive Council.

Districts May

ten by Chief Judge Charles S. Desmond, the Court of Appeals referred to this reasoning of the Appellate Division.

It also noted, however, that the school board's attendance plan did not exclude pupils from any school since the only pupils assigned to the new school had not attended any junior high previously.

"The plan...excludes no one from any school and has no tendency to foster or produce racial segregation," the opinion said.

To the contention of the protesting parents that the new school was not their "neighborhood" school, the court said their homes were "within walking distance of new School 275 and nearer to—or at least no farther from — School 275 than School 285."

Dissenting Opinion

The dissent was written by Associate Judge John Van Voorhis, who argued that the school board's action in drawing the attendance lines to achieve racial balance was "the reverse of anti-discrimination."

"The principle of anti-discrimination is that each person shall be treated without regard to race, religion or national origin," he said. "If persons can legally be admitted because they belong to (minority) groups, then they can be excluded for the same reason."

Ben Is Back, Forgetting

NEW YORK (AP) — Ben Gazzara, who starred in last year's revival of O'Neill's "Strange Interlude," returns next to Broadway as a victim of strange amnesia. Gazzara has signed for "Traveller Without Luggage," an ironic drama by Jean Anouilh, that is marked in for Sept. 17 Broadway arrival.

Drugged Attaches Leave for Rest, To Return Later

MOSCOW (AP)—Two of the American military attaches who said they were drugged in Odessa left today for Leningrad and Finland.

An American Embassy spokesman said they were going to Helsinki, the Finnish capital, for a brief holiday and would return to Moscow.

The attaches are Air Force Lt. Col. William L. Van Meter and Marine Lt. Col. James M. Landrigan.

A third American who said he was drugged, U.S. Navy Cmdr. Summer Shapario, remained on duty in Moscow.

The embassy disclosed Thursday night that it had protested to the Soviet government that the three officers were drugged March 25 while on a trip to the Black Sea port of Odessa, where American ships have been docking with wheat shipments.

The British Foreign Office announced that an assistant British naval attache, Lt. Cmdr. John Harvey-Samuel, was with the Americans and also was drugged. The British joined in the American protest.

British sources said Harvey-Samuel and his wife also had left Moscow, for Warsaw but the sources said they left their year-old son with his English nurse and would return.

The attaches reported they felt unusually drowsy after dinner. The State Department said medical tests showed the men had been given enough barbiturates to cause drowsiness. They suffered no physical harm, however, the department said.

U.S. officials said they did not know of any theft of documents or attempts to compromise the attaches while they were asleep in their hotel rooms.

Last February, two U.S. naval attaches were harassed by a mob in Leningrad. In March, two U.S. Air Force attaches and a British air force attache were surrounded by a mob in Tula. These incidents also were protested, and a U.S. Embassy spokesman said the embassy suspected both mobs were "inspired" by Soviet officials.

Senate Is Taking Saturday Off, CR Pressure Easing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders announced there would be no session Saturday in the civil rights debate. It was another sign that pressure through prolonged sessions was easing off.

Senators applauded when Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., the assistant leader, said the Senate would recess at the close of today's business until Monday.

The Senate has met every Saturday since the debate started March 9 except for the Easter weekend.

Tories Lose More

LONDON (AP)—Heavy gains in local elections increased the opposition Labor party's prospects today for victory in Britain's general election this fall.

Results from all but three of the 358 boroughs that voted Thursday gave labor a gain of 254 seats on borough councils, the great majority from Conservatives and pro-Conservative independents.

The Conservatives showed a loss of 132. Laborites won control of 10 towns, including the industrial centers of Portsmouth and Darlington.

Truman, 80 Today

whether that was the way to handle hounds, Truman asked: "Have you ever had any hounds?"

"No," the newsman said.

"Then what the hell are you hollering about?" Truman said. "That's the way to handle hounds."

Many events are on Truman's schedule today, including an off the cuff talk National Press Club and a dinner meeting with old buddies of the famous World War II Truman investigating committee.

But it is unlikely that any will surpass an event of Thursday when Truman got the Grand Golden Cross of Austria in the plush home of the Austrian ambassador.

Truman on this occasion proved himself adept at shifting from bourbon to champagne and back again without stripping a gear.

Praised by Platzer

The ambassador, Dr. Wilfried Platzer, presented him the magnificent decoration as both men stood under an oil painting of Archduchess Christine, favorite daughter of Empress Maria Theresa of the Hapsburgs.

The ambassador praised Truman for helping rebuild Austria after World War II and keep it free.

Last stop for Truman Thursday night was a dinner of the Washington Masons where he got the award for distinguished service from the grand lodge of the district.

He sent the Masons by confiding that although a lot of hard things had been said about him "I don't give a damn as long as they can't prove them."

2. Instructional services.

a. Free Textbooks. Section 703 of the State Education Law provides these may be furnished only when authorized by the voters. However, under section 701 textbooks may be rented or sold to pupils in accordance with rules or regulations established by the board of education. If free textbooks have been provided in the past, new textbooks may be acquired to supplement the stock on hand. In such case a rental charge must be made for all books both new and old.

b. Student workbooks.

c. Pupil instructional supplies such as pencils, paper and art even though uniformity is educationally desirable.

d. Conference expenses of teachers and administrators, except for teachers' conferences called by superintendents and State School Boards Association, as authorized by board of education.

3. Operation of plant.

a. Use of school buildings by outside organizations.

4. Auxiliary agencies.

a. Transportation of pupils. No transportation can be furnished unless it is ordered by the Commissioner of Education as a result of an appeal to him pursuant to Section 310 of the State Education Law. The Commissioner has no authority under the statute to order transportation for elementary pupils (K through 8) who live less than two miles from the school they attend and for secondary pupils (9 through 12) who lives less than three miles from the school they attend, except in the case of physically handicapped children. The maximum distance that the Commissioner will order for non-public school pupils is at present 8 miles. If the voters authorized a long-term transportation contract at some previous time, the money to defray the annual payment of such a contract could be raised by the board without further appropriation by the voters; in such an event the long-term contract would be carried out in accordance with the provisions thereof.

b. Transportation and maintenance of interscholastic athletic teams.

c. Pupil uniforms whether for athletic activities or otherwise.

d. Cafeteria and school lunch operation, whether or not it is considered self-supporting.

Lack of Interest Blamed

"Lack of Interest" on the part of the school district voters were cited as a "possible' cause for the failure of district voters to approve the 1963-64 budget.

Smith told The Freeman that there were 4,032 eligible voters in the 1962-63 budget year when voters approved a bond issue calling for construction of three new elementary schools. Of that total, 1,517 voted and 2,515 didn't.

This year there were only 2,822 eligible voters, 1,210 less than those eligible last year. The budget vote was 805 to 787 for a total of 1,592 votes on the budget, which meant that some 90 eligible voters failed to vote on the budget.

Classics Next Season

NEW YORK (AP) — Theater classics are to be included in next season's repertory schedule of the Lincoln Center company. Exact choices haven't been set yet, but Harold Clurman — executive consultant for the troupe — said that "they will most probably be foreign plays."

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market moved further into record high ground early this afternoon as steels and Chrysler continued their leadership. Trading was active.

Rails began to move higher after an uncertain start, lending their support to the industrials.

The rest of the stock list had a muddled appearance. Tobaccos and airlines were lower. The pattern was mixed among oils, chemicals, nonferrous metals, retails, aerospace issues and electronics.

A number of the higher-priced office equipments, photographic and computer stocks moved up in response to renewed trading demand.

As the market advance moved into its sixth straight day, however, there were plenty of soft spots. Many issues were unchanged.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .3 at 307.7 with industrials up .4, rails up .3 and utilities up .2.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 1.02 at 831.19.

Chrysler gained a full point. The rally by steels simmered down. Fractional gains were posted for such leaders as U.S. Steel, Jones & Laughlin and Republic.

Texas Gulf Sulphur advanced more than a point.

Control Data ran up more than 3 and IBM added 2.

Prices rose on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds were slightly higher.

Methodists Eye Relief

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Methodists who suffer hardship by joining in racial demonstrations will be able to get financial aid from a fund set up by the church's General Assembly.

A resolution, passed Thursday by the some 900 delegates over protests of Southerners, said both ministers and laymen will be eligible for relief.

Funds, to be collected at Sunday services and in special local drives, will go to "Methodist ministers and laymen who, on the basis of conscience, witness to a racially inclusive church (and) may suffer economic deprivation."

Johnson's . . .

kindle old hatreds—who preach battle between neighbors and bitterness between states. That is the way back toward the anguish from which we came."

The President, covering considerable ground in 2,400 words, even made indirect reference to his own unannounced but obvious plans to seek election to a four-year term in November.

Declaring that "we are today one nation, one people, one America," Johnson said: "I would not be looking forward to November, were this not true. And I am looking forward to November."

Likes His Job

In his swift passage Thursday through Maryland, West Virginia, Ohio, Tennessee and North Carolina, Johnson also made clear his zest for his job and his hope of retaining it.

This was most clear in a speech at Knoxville, Tenn., when he coupled an appeal for support of his antipoverty program with jabs at two Republicans who may try to get his job in the fall—former Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

Johnson said Republicans already are calling his antipoverty proposals a "cruel hoax"—words used last week by Nixon. And he said that if such men had their way, "The 'for sale' sign would be on TVA this very hour." It was Goldwater who once suggested that the Tennessee Valley Authority be put up for sale.

The sharpest jabs, included in Johnson's prepared text, were omitted in delivery. But the traveling White House said he stood by them.

Says Vision Narrow

In these passages, he labeled "cruel hoax" critics and those who would sell TVA as "men of timid faith and narrow vision."

And he added: "I do not believe you want to entrust the American dream to men who would turn it into a nightmare."

In Atlanta and half a dozen other cities in Appalachia and the South, cheering thousands turned out to greet the President. Total official estimates of the crowds along the way came to nearly half a million.

Whatever the number, and official estimates often get inflated, the number was impressive.

For his address to the men who make the laws of Georgia, Johnson obviously sought to make his remarks the more acceptable by linking them to the state's motto—wisdom, justice, moderation.

About Problems

He cited justice in talking about civil rights. He cited wisdom in urging the rejection of extremism. And he cited moderation in touching on the problems of poverty, urban expansion and conservation.

On the latter point, Johnson said: "To meet such problems, in such a varied and ample land as ours, bold action requires broad agreement—and consensus requires moderation."

Recalling Georgian Henry Grady's 1886 prophecy of a "New South," Johnson said Grady's words not long ago "seemed less a hopeful prophecy than a hollow promise."

Alluding to the aftermath of the Civil War, the President continued: "Old ways had crumbled—carrying with them that which was fine as well as that which was flawed—replaced by a blighted land and a bitter people."

Today, he said, "we see a New South—a South of union and freedom."

"You bear the mark of a Southern heritage," he said, "but that which is Southern is far less important than that which is American."

Investment Clubbers Need Only One Change

Q) "We are an investment club owning the enclosed list of securities. We would appreciate your comments. We are considering buying South Coast Life and Sears, Roebuck. What is your opinion?" — G. P.

A) You deserve to be complimented on a good list of stocks, which is too long to reproduce here.

Your Teledyne has doubled in price this year, but I like the company and would hold these shares.

I believe you will find growth by switching General Foods.

Otherwise, I have no comments

As to your suggested purchase, South Coast Life in relatively small and operates entirely in the state of Texas. I understand that management is competent and that insurance in force jumped a huge 45 per cent last year. I believe you would be justified in buying this stock.

Sears, Roebuck would be a fine addition to any list.

Q) "We own 90 shares of Tidewater Oil. Do you think this is worth holding? We'd like to give our grandchildren a few shares of stock. Do you think it would be advisable to sell Tidewater and reinvest proceeds for the children in other issues?"—C. R.

A) I think it is very fine of you to want to do something for your grandchildren.

For the purpose that you have in mind, I would switch Tidewater into a solid growth issue paying a dividend — which Tidewater does not.

Your stock was run up in price earlier this year, when it negotiated the sale of its western operations to Humble Oil, a subsidiary of Jersey Standard. This $329 million deal was considered beneficial for Tidewater, and when the Justice Department filed an antitrust suit to block the sale, the price of your shares declined.

As a replacement for Tidewater, I suggest Texaco, where dividends have been increased consistently in recent years.

Pacers to Appear In Area Parades On Memorial Day

The prize-winning Pacers Drum and Bugle Corps of Poughkeepsie will participate in the Kingston Memorial Day Parade and the Port Ewen Memorial Day Parade on May 30, it was announced today.

Third Straight Title

Winners of the Junior Championship of the Hudson Valley for the third consecutive year in the recent Hudson Valley Drum Corps Association competition at Poughkeepsie, the Pacers competed against such corps units as the Troop 12 Indians of Kingston and the Poughkeepsie Vagabonds. The Pacers also took first place honors as the best appearing unit, for having the largest corps in the contest and for the best female color guard.

Miss Janet Rexhouse, of Poughkeepsie, who majored the corps for the first time, won the second place medal for the best female majorette with a score of 95. The Pacemakers of Poughkeepsie, making their first appearance in any contest, won the open class Junior Championship and the first place award for having the best female color guard. Both the Pacers and the Pacemakers are sponsored by the Polish-American Citizens Club of Poughkeepsie.

James Strubel, of Kingston, well-known figure in drum corps circles, is director of the Pacers and music arranger and instructor of both the Pacers and Pacemakers. His son, Jimmy, 11, is a member of the Pacers soprano horn line, and his daughter, Jo Ann 9, is a member of the color guard and a flag bearer for the Pacers Color Guard. Ray Horvers, of Port Ewen, is a cymbal player for the Pacers.

In addition to their other laurels, the Pacers won two more awards recently in the Loyalty Day Parade in Poughkeepsie for being the best musical group and for presenting the best drill performance.

Johnson Victor In Landslide Mock Vote at Syracuse

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — President Johnson scored a landslide victory over every Republican in the field Thursday in a mock election at Syracuse University.

Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge was an easy winner in a mock GOP presidential primary conducted at the same time. He polled 399 votes in the primary, while Gov. Rockefeller came in fifth with 85.

Other Republicans in the primary, and their votes, were Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, 123; former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, 113; Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, 111, and Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, 34.

In the mock election, Johnson was paired against each of the Republicans. The results:

Johnson over Lodge, 898-584; Johnson over Scranton, 772-269; Johnson over Nixon, 750-261; Johnson over Rockefeller, 800-200; Johnson over Goldwater 842-186; Johnson over Smith, 864-107.

Church-Going State

ATLANTA (AP)—The Georgia State Chamber of Commerce says the state's spiritual atmosphere is conductive to good industrial relations.

In its 1964 industrial survey, the chamber reports that 78 per cent of Georgia's residents are church members.

Assault Charge Denied By College Instructor

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A State University of Buffalo instructor, who allegedly began a fight with another man during the House Committee on Un-American Activities hearing April 30, has pleaded innocent to a charge of third-degree assault.

Paul Sporn, an English instructor, was arraigned Thursday in City Court. The charge was made by Michael Russell of Buffalo, who said Sporn grabbed and shook him by the shoulders and threatened his life while the two were picketing outside the Federal Court House.

Russell said he was picketing in support of the committee and its work. Sporn was a witness at the two-day hearing and later joined a picket line opposing the committee, police said.

Trial of the charge, a misdemeanor, was set for May 28. Sporn, 42, of Buffalo, was released in the custody of his attorney.

Steals From a Dog?

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Mrs. Julia Warmuth chained her black Cocker Spaniel to a post in her backyard Wednesday night. When she awoke Thursday morning, she found the dog on the back porch — minus his collar, chain, license and rabies shot tag. They were nowhere to be found.

The "harem" of a male elk may include as many as 60 cows.

Ready to Cut Phone Cable Over Bill Fuss

PALESTINE, Tex. (AP)—Something has to give on Juan Macias' place today—either the Texas Telephone and Telegraph Co.'s cable underlying the land, or the farmer's determination in a phone bill fuss.

Macias has his tractor parked beside the cable ready to jerk it out unless the company begins removing it by 4 p.m.

He received verbal support Thursday from the Rev. Collin Furr, president of a telephone subscribers association opposing a recent rate increase of 33½ per cent.

The farmer and some 2,000 other subscribers want the rate hike rescinded, or their phones removed. The company cut Macias' service after he paid part of a back bill, but he contends that if he doesn't have service, the company shouldn't have access across his land.

"I've got to do this to show them I mean business," Macias said.

200 Acres Burn In Adirondacks Near Lake Placid

SARANAC LAKE, N.Y. (AP) —Firefighters in the Northeastern Adirondacks kept a wary eye today on unusually dry woodlands after three forest fires, fanned by gusty winds, charred more than 200 acres yesterday.

The wind dropped after the sun went down Thursday night, and all three fires were brought under control.

The largest of the fires burned over 100 acres near Vermontville, a hamlet about 12 miles northeast of here.

Another spread through about the same amount of acreage north of the village of Keeseville. The latter fire began at the village dump.

The third fire was stopped quickly after it burned over about a half acre in the South Meadows area at the foot of Mt. Marcy, the highest peak in the state.

Circumstances to Be Guide

Johnson Not Deciding About TV Debate Until Time Come

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shortly before his death President John F. Kennedy said he would take on his Republican opponent in the 1964 presidential race in television-radio debates. So far President Johnson has declined to say what he will do.

It would have been easy for Kennedy, an old hand at it after his four debates with Vice President Richard M. Nixon in 1960. All of them did Kennedy good. And no Republican then in sight seemed likely to outdo him.

Johnson, with no experience in this kind of national encounter, gave this answer when asked about the debates at his Dec. 18 news conference.

"I will make those decisions at the time I am the nominee and in the light of the circumstances existing then. For the present, I am not going to discuss any political matter."

He didn't stick to that absolutely. He has made some cracks about Republicans and practically everything he has done since has been a political matter in the sense of building up his voter appeal.

He's been so homey and down-to-earth and folksy and reassuring to so many people in so many fields of interest that he has created a picture of himself as a sort of national big daddy.

The public opinion polls indicate the people are eating it up. If he doesn't overdo it, no Republican candidate could possibly match him in public exposure since he's President and everything he does is news.

That raises the first question: Why, with this advantage, should he let an opponent, in one leap before the cameras and with one turn of the dial, enjoy the same spotlight with and perhaps do him damage by outdoing him?

The same question could have been asked about Kennedy, although not in 1960. Then Nixon was the national figure who had spent eight years as vice president building himself up. Kennedy was just a senator from Massachusetts.

But after the very first debate, in which many felt he had bettered Nixon, he had to be equated in the public mind with the vice president.

Kennedy Was Confident

As President, by debating a Republican contender, Kennedy would have been granting his opponent the same kind of exposure he himself got in his set-to with Nixon. Why do it, then?

One guess is that Kennedy felt supremely confident about handling anyone the Republicans sent against him. If only for lack of experience, Johnson can't be sure he'd make out as well.

Through the fresh insights they'd get into Johnson and his opposition arguing the issues in 1964, voters would be able to reach more intelligent decisions about both of them.

But Johnson, like Kennedy, is a politician with a race to win and the main problem of how. That would be the primary consideration for both. That's a practical reason for Johnson wanting to wait till he sees what he's up against.

Unpredictable Now

By campaign time Johnson may decide, danger or not, the debates are necessary.

For instance:

To restore public acceptance through serious discussion if by then he has made some goofs in the presidency or suffered disfavor by too much running around and too much talking off the cuff.

Besides, he is thin-skinned. If he says he won't debate, the Republicans no doubt would try to needle him into changing his mind by attacking his reluc ance to face his opponent.

There's a good reason now think he might welcome the d bates. He seemed a little unce tain of himself, starting out; b he seems to be developing much confidence in his voter a peal that he is now unpredic able from hour to hour.

MAY BACHELOR STAY WITH SISTERS

Q: Twice a year, the bachelor son of a family friend comes to this city on business. In the past he has always stayed at our house. Recently, both our parents died leaving my sister and me alone. Will it be proper for him to continue to stay in our house? He is in his late 30's and my sister and I are in our 20's.

A: I do not think that anyone will criticize you for allowing this old friend of the family to continue staying in your house on his visits to your city.

Greeting Those Coming to Funeral Home

Q: My sister died recently and as friends and relatives arrived at the funeral home they came over to where I and other members of my family were seated, to express their sympathy. We did not rise and have been criticized for not having done so. Was this criticism justified?

A: Correctly, you should have risen but your not doing so was excusable under the circumstances.

Invitations to Golden Wedding Anniversary

Q: My parents will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary shortly and we, their children, are going to give a reception for them. We would like to know if gold lettering may be used on the invitations? I think it would be very suitable on this occasion but my sister says it would be in bad taste and the conventional black ink should be used.

A: Gold lettering on invitations to a 50th wedding anniversary is permissable, but black ink is in best taste.

It's Commencement Day today and we are handing out diplomas for Coach House Players has graduated into a bigger league performing group.

The local little theatre group, which is no longer little judging by last night's cast, performed a monumental achievement with comparative ease.

Coach House tackled its first musical and despite first night jitters, a few flubbed lines and overtaxed vocal chords, the cast came up "smelling like a rose."

The musical-comedy is "Say Darling" and it will be repeated tonight and tomorrow with curtain at 8:30 each evening in the George Washington School, this city.

By all means, see it! If for no other reason than to see Richard Becker do the Twist!

There were several distinctive qualities which greeted my eye almost immediately. One—fresh talent; two — good talent; three — outstanding artistry; four — enthusiasm; and five — a near capacity house which astounded me. Most opening nights for Coach House have been weak in attendance and if last night was any indication, tonight and tomorrow will be sell-outs.

The production reflected results of conscientious training under its director William Skilling. And the 12 scene changes are a credit to the versatility of Ralph Harper.

Three outstanding performances were turned in by Francis Matteson, Raymond Caddy and Frank Policano. Matteson, a familiar figure on the stage, is his usual composed unflurried self. He applies his own professional polish to the role of a co-producer. He's a delight to watch.

Raymond Caddy, who portrays the hayseed writer, moved cautiously into his role last night but by the time the third act rolled around you could almost see the hay coming out of his ears. Caddy is talented and his exhilarating finish leaves the audience in a gay mood.

Frank Policano as the composer is another example of budding talent in this area. He has a very pleasant lyric tenor (it's too bad a mike doesn't pick up his voice for the benefit of those in the last row) and he executed his part with great competence. You will not be able to separate Policano from his role, he welds them together.

Kenneth Post plays a fast talking, fast moving co-producer and although he started out on the over-anxious side, he ends up on a par with Matteson - Caddy - Policano. You will thoroughly enjoy his portrayal and handling of the part.

The female lead is done by Dolores Crosby who turns in a creditable performance. One or two ballads in the show do more for Miss Crosby's voice and if she relaxes for the offbeat selections, she's a winner.

The show is complete with dancing and I must draw special attention to Richard Paine in this category. The Husking Bee Waltz is his original idea. Harrison Muller, well known Broadway and TV star served as dance consultant for this production.

Last night's production, coupled with the recent Coach House presentation of "Anastasia," brings our civic theatre group to a crossroads. I hope Coach House will take the road to even greater challenges. I am sure with George N. Betts at the helm as president, it will.

With even greater dedication, I can't see why Coach House couldn't do such popular hits as "Oklahoma" and "Carousel." By keeping goals high, by opening the doors to more talent, I would even brave a production of "Three Penny Opera," Mr. Skilling. How about it? It certainly is a challenge.

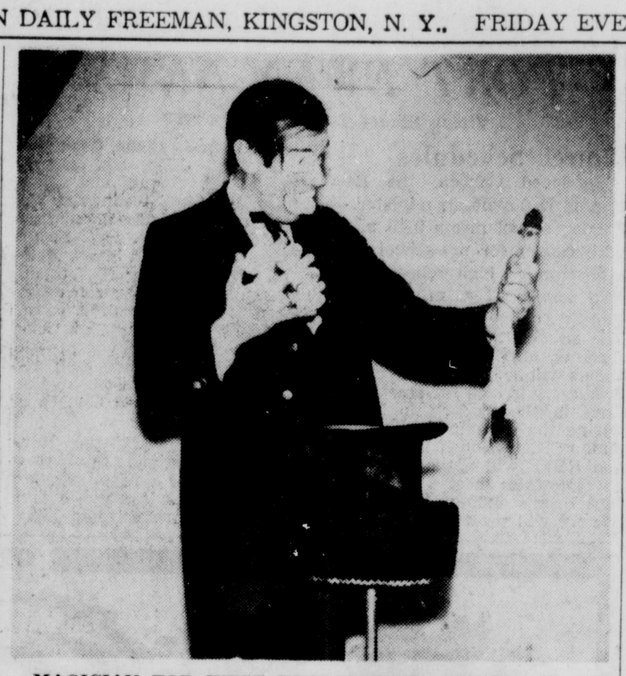

Last night's production left the amateur field behind and planted itself in the semi-professional battlefield. Granted, you will always have the "green beginners" who will be helped along the path by the more experienced, but you can become the finest civic theatre group in the state.

Also in the cast are W. Scott Foster, June Boyle, William Hawk, John Novi, Vickie Schacht, Frank Witt, Matthew Duer, Mary Dugan, Merrillee Kelly, George Lissandrello, Doris Urell, James Stack, Carmen Good, Murray Fletcher and Barbara Purcell.

The dancers include Elizabeth Dugan, Merrille Kelly, Barbara Purcell, Tom DeWitt and John Novi. In the chorus are Linda Caddy, Joan Landsman, Vilma Burdett, Shaun Northrup, Doris Udell, Mary Dugan, George Lissandrello and James Stack.

Costumes were handled by Emilia Wehye and Kathleen Griffin. At the piano was June Munson and the rhythm section was handled by Martha Ann Eddy and Vincent Bertone.

Margaret Mellert is in charge of the box office and properties handled by Diane Pickering and Mary Becker. Hilda Krum was in charge of the ushers.

MAGICIAN FOR WEST HURLEY FAIR—The Rev. Paul C. Hoyt, pastor of the West Hurley Methodist Church, will do a magic act for the upcoming P-TA sponsored country fair on the grounds of the West Hurley School and firehouse this Saturday. Festivities will get underway at 11 a. m. and the public is invited. Known to his many friends as "Hoyt—The Mad Magician," the minister will present a program of comedy magic. He will portray an old "pro" who, though once famous, now in the years of his decline fumbles and bumbles his way through a series of magic tricks much to his consternation and the amusement of the audience. The Rev. Mr. Hoyt is a member of the Puppeteers of America and has given his show before various groups.

Girls and Gags Make Shakespeare Palatable For All Theatregoers; Comedy Coming Here

A lot of high brow theatregoers will help to celebrate the impending 400th anniversary of Shakespeare's birth this year. But they will also be joined in the celebration by all theatregoers who enjoy musicals more than they enjoy dramas dealing with the fate of kings or addled princelings.

The latter group will have a chance to cheer on Thursday evening, (May 14), when "The Boys From Syracuse," a racy jokeful song-and-dance version of "The Comedy of Errors" comes to the stage of the Community Theatre in Kingston.

The abbreviated costumes worn by the curvaceous chorus girls in "The Boys From Syracuse" are a far cry from the flowing, sedate robes of the costumes worn when Shakespeare wrote the original thesis on which Richard Rodgers, Lorenz Hart and George Abbott based their hopped up version of the show. But modern theatregoers seem to prefer it that way. They like the songs, the jokes, the handsome men, and most of all, the stage full of pretty girls who crowd the scene.

The group in attendance at the Community Theatre this Thursday night will not be the first in America to pick girls and gags over iambic pentameter. Stage impressarios have learned, to their financial horror, that the audience for Shakespeare is always limited one. They have also learned, to their financial delight, that a bevy of beautiful girls, a brace of comedians, and a half dozen hit tunes by Richard Rodgers are worth their weight in gold. Small wonder that impressario Dick Weaver has elected to fill the stage of the Community Theatre with girls, comedians and songs.

Unlike most American musicals, which seem to lose appeal within 10 years or so (Showboat" is the most notable exception), "The Boys from Syracuse" has remained as enduringly lively for the present as when it was new new in 1938. A presentation that opened 23 years later in New York — in April 1963 — has been so overwhelmingly popular that it is still running there, and the organization of a national company to tour it to other American cities became obligatory.

Those who have not brushed up recently on their Shakespeare might take some assurance that the source of "The Boys from Syracuse" does not make it highbrow, as this hit is a hopped-up modern version of the least-known of Shakespeare's comedies, that is least known because it's been too spicy to give kids to study in school.

It's the story of the uproarious complications resulting when wives, sweethearts, friends and creditors can't tell which of two twins is the phoney. The wife's hilarious dilemma is that she can't tell whether the man in her house is her husband or his twin brother.

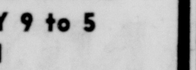

This racy story's musical version contains a baker's dozen of lyrically lovely hit-parade numbers that have continued to be hummable ever since Rodgers and Hart first tossed them off, including "Sing for Your Supper," "This Can't Be Love," "The Shortest Day of the Year" and "Falling in Love With Love" —all long-time juke-box favorites, but still fresh.

In the company coming here John Smolko and Chet Sommers will be seen as the look-alike twins, Laurie Franks and Carol Woodruff as the ladies their resemblance confuses, and Ralph McWilliams and Martin Ross will appear as their twin servants who double the fun. Norma Doggett will sing and dance the role of the seductive courtesan who gets mixed up in the proceedings, and Rudy Vejar and Marcie Stringer have other important roles.

Dear Abby . . .

It Pays to Be Honest!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: The boy who sits in front of me in History is very smart and gets 100's on almost all his tests. I was stuck during a test last week and asked him for some answers. He gave them to me WRONG! I didn't know it until we got our papers back. He got 100 and I got 65! I was plenty mad and told him I thought he was a dirty cheat. I admit I wasn't very honest to ask him for the answers, but don't you think he was twice as dishonest to have purposely given them to me wrong?

CHEATED

DEAR CHEATED: Don't expect to find an honest partner for a crooked deal.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: What can a woman of 42 do to get a compliment out of her husband? I have spent hours in the beauty parlor getting a new hair-do. No comment. I bought material and made myself a beautiful outfit in his favorite color — blue. No comment. I use cosmetics artistically and even searched for a subtle perfume I thought he'd like. No comment. Everyone else tells me I am a fine-looking woman, but he never says a word. I know he loves me and our children, but sometimes I think, "Oh, what the heck!"

NO COMPLIMENTS

DEAR NO: You're lucky. Some women get plenty of sweet talk from their husbands, and nothing else. By the way, when was the last time you complimented HIM?

DEAR ABBY: Last night I served blueberry pie for dessert and my husband, whom I shall call Dr. Jeykll, turned into a regular Mr. Hyde. He stormed around like a wild man, saying he never cared for blueberry pie because it took him two days to get the seeds out of his teeth, and asked why I insist on shoving it down his throat. Abby, I have been baking blueberry pie for 26 years (it's my favorite) and I always thought my husband liked it. I felt so bad I cried all night. Was I wrong or was he?

BLUEBERRY MARY

DEAR MARY: If a man doesn't like something his wife cooks (or bakes), he shouldn't wait 26 years to tell her. Tell Mr. Hyde you are no mind reader. And let him eat cake!

• • • •

CONFIDENTIAL TO SAN ANTONIO ROSE: It's anybody's guess as to why he changed his name twice, but if I were you I would quit guessing and find out.

Artificial bubbles are for seltzer —not for beer.

The idea of shooting CO_2 into beer has never appealed to me somehow.

Oh, the process is widely used and accepted in the industry today, and I'm sure there's nothing wrong with it.

It saves time and space and refrigeration, and hence money, by making it possible for a brewer to cut the aging time down to two or three weeks and still turn out a beer with "life."

But it just doesn't appeal to me.

I always felt that beer should have a natural life of its own, and that's the only thing you'll ever find in a bottle of Utica Club beer.

I think it makes a difference in the beer.

I think it's the only way you can turn out a beer that has mellowness and maturity — by aging it properly.

And judging by the amount of Utica Club we're selling, there are still plenty of stubborn characters around who agree with me.

Sophomore Brian Bach, who sparkled in a couple of relief roles, was given the starting nod against the Pioneers and he turned in a solid route-going performance

Berardi Triples

His mates gave him a run in the third inning when Lou Perry singled with two outs and rode home on a booming triple by left by Nick Berardi.

A three base blast by Bob Aposporus and Bob Somogyi's single evened the score in the fifth. Aside from that short threat, Bach was in command of the situation.

Rod DeVeau reached first on an error to begin the bottom of the sixth. Two outs later, Mike Canning also reached safe on a bobble. He went to second and DeVeau to third.

Suskie then hit a slow grounder to the infield. He beat the throw to first base and the winning run scored.

In picking up the decision, Bach walked two and struck out 10. Loser Ed Johnson had a pair of walks and three whiffs.

Coach Al Gruner's team will host Saugerties Wednesday in a non-league game and will play at Port Jervis next Thursday in the most important contest of the season.

Onteora Cindermen Decision SHS Squad

Two records were tied and three broken yesterday at the Onteora Central school track as the Indians from Boiceville won a dual meet, 70⅓-51⅔ from visiting Saugerties High.

The Onteora 880 yard relay team set a school mark by winning in the crisp time of 1:37.5. The frosh relay team from Onteora set a freshman mark, going the distance in 49.8 second.

Dashing Richie Giannotti of Saugerties tied the school's 220-yard record, set last year by Frank Fusick, with a winning clocking of 22.6 seconds. Art Hawkins of Onteora tied the school record in the high jump with a winning effort of 5 feet, 10 inches.

Top Central N. Y. Soccer Aces Meet Sun. at Oehler's

All-star selections from the Central New York Soccer League will play an exhibition match at 2:30 p. m. Sunday on Oehler's Mountain Lodge field, Route 28A.

The public is invited to see 25 of the most outstanding players in the league, including eight Kingston players. They include Lee Roberts, Jimmy Reinhardt, George Vizvary, Alex Dirks, Peter Fukes, Carlos Bustamente, Al Miller and Mike Newmerzhycy. Other players have been selected to represent Troy, Schenectady, Utica, Poughkeepsie and Albany clubs.

Following the game, there will be selection of an official All-Star squad to represent the CNYSL at Randalls Island on May 17 in a meet with the Long Island League All Stars.

Kingston Soccer Club, managed by Bob Graves, holds first place in the CNYSL with a mere one-point lead over Albany Soccer Club. The locals have four games left to play while Albany has only three.

After last Sunday's 3-2 win over the Albany reserves, Tony Alexander's second team booters are looking forward to a return engagement. Game time will be 1 p. m. Sunday prior to the main contest.

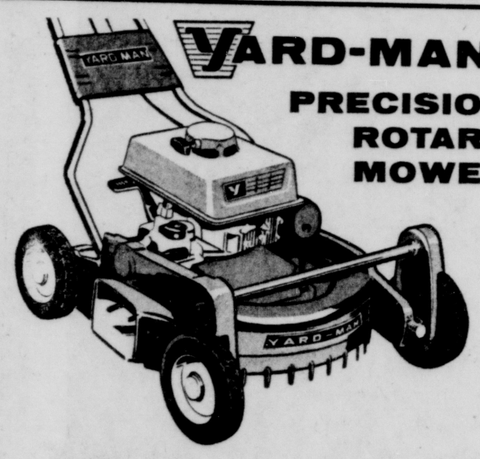

The pressure is expected to be in evidence through the remaining games, which will determine the title and championship. Kingston has won and retained the league trophy for the past two seasons. It takes three consecutive league victories to keep the league trophy permanently.

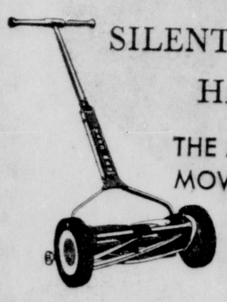

Kingston S. C. officials urged the support of Kingston rooters in backing the local team in its effort to win the 1964-65 championship.

State U. Suffers 18-1 Loss

The Hawks of State University scored first yesterday at East Stroudsburg but after that they were never in the game, losing an 18-1 decision to the home side.

Jerry Hawkins of Kingston doubled and tallied the game's first run and coach Al Miller's side had a 1-0 lead starting the last last of the first.

The winners pounced on starter Tom Clarke for five markers and continued their assault against three other New Paltz hurlers to hand the Hawks their seventh loss in eight starts.

Included in the 15-hit barrage were a pair of doubles, a triple and a home run.

New Paltz will try to get back on the winning track Saturday at Albany State.

Your Merc dealer invites you to compare

Merc's high-strength design and construction with any competitor's outboard.

From their powerheads to their shear-proof props, Mercs are designed and constructed to last . . . with less maintenance and cost to you.

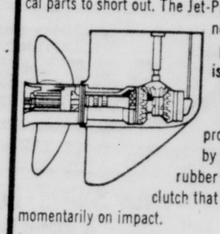

The entire engine block of a Merc is one-piece die-cast aluminum. There is no head gasket to blow . . . fewer joint faces to loosen and leak. The pistons in a Merc are forged aluminum . . . lighter in construction yet tougher, more durable and cooler running than the cast aluminum pistons found in most competitors' outboards.

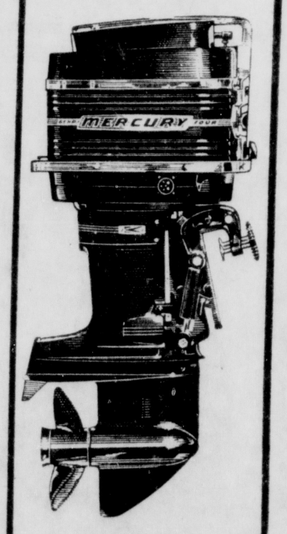

Mercury's aluminum drive shaft housing is die-cast in one piece. It does not depend on the holding power of nuts, bolts, studs and miscellaneous parts.

The forged-aluminum clamp brackets on a Merc are heat-treated to the strength of steel and are virtually unbreakable. Even on the higher horsepower Mercs, the clamp brackets have wing bolts that clamp to the transom . . . in addition to a provision for security bolts through the transom. The lower unit of a Merc has more backbone than that of any other outboard. It is die-cast in one piece to keep the husky gears and shafts permanently aligned. There is no protruding nose to snag rocks and logs or gather weeds. The gearshift is mechanical with no underwater electrical parts to short out. The Jet-Prop has no shear pins. It is spline driven and is protected by a live-rubber safety clutch that yields momentarily on impact.

These are just a few of the comparisons in design and construction that you can make. Your Merc dealer can point out many more. See him soon. See how you can get more RUN for your money with Mercury . . . 100, 85, 65, 50, 35, 20, 9.8, 6 and 3.9 hp outboards and MerCruiser Stern Drives . . . 110 to 310 hp gasoline; 60 and 100 hp diesel.

Rocky Hits Out At Hate Peddlers

ASTORIA, Ore. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller attacked right-wing extremists today for calling Republican leaders, including himself, friends of Communism. He said it was "the big smear."

The New York governor, a candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, said in a speech prepared for delivery at a campaign breakfast, "The peddlers of hate are still circulating around the country a book entitled 'The Politician,'" which was written by Robert Welch, the founder of the John Birch Society.

"This is the notorious book that not only brands former President Eisenhower as a pro-Communist," but goes so far as to charge him with 'treason.'"

Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, one of Rockefeller's opponents for the GOP presidential nomination, has said he would not refuse support of the Birch Society.

Rockefeller did not mention Goldwater. But he said Republican leaders should "repudiate the extremism of the radical right."

The governor said "other current hate sheets," which he did not identify, have made pro-Communist comments about Henry Cabot Lodge, ambassador to South Viet Nam, and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, both unannounced rivals for the presidential nomination."

"The hate peddlers have not spared me," he continued. "Like the others, I have been smeared as a Communist collaborator. One fantastic diatribe now in circulation even accuses me of being a behind-the-scenes leader in the international Communist conspiracy.

"I earned the enmity of the Communists long before I came under fire from the radical right."

He said he has "fought Com-

Capitol News In Brief

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the news from Washington:

JOBS: There were 69.9 million Americans at work last month—a 1.4-million increase from March—and still the jobless rate was unchanged at 5.4 per cent.

The reason: The labor force itself increased—by about 1 million to 73.7 million.

Most of the increase in jobs was among women doing such household work as domestic service and babysitting.

Unemployment declined an expected 400,000, bringing the total number of jobless down to 3.9 million.

WHITE HOUSE: Sales of the White House guidebook are expected to provide at least $100,000 this year to help refurbish the White House.

Almost 1 million guidebooks, at $1 each, have been sold since their publication last year.

JFK: A bronze bust of President John F. Kennedy has been presented to his widow for the Kennedy Memorial Library.

It is a gift of the late president's three military aides: Maj. Gen. Chester V. Clifton of the Army, Capt. Tazewell T. Shepard Jr. of the Navy and Brig. Gen. Godfrey T. McHugh of the Air Force.

The sculptor is Felix de Weldon, who designed the Iwo Jima monument in Arlington, Va.

The bust will be placed in the White House Cabinet Room until the library at Cambridge, Mass. is completed.

DEVIATES: The Navy has issued a toughly worded new order stressing that homosexuals "are security and reliability risks" and providing an avenue for getting them out of the service faster.

"Their prompt separation from the naval service is essential," said the order from Secretary of the Navy Paul N. Nitze.

The new order speeds the ouster of deviates by allowing offenders in certain kinds of serious cases to resign from the service and escape court martial.

To resign, a man must sign a statement acknowledging that he may be deprived of virtually all his veterans rights "and that I may expect to encounter substantial prejudice in civilian life."

Tornadoes Lash Midwest Sectors, 30 Persons Hurt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thunderstorms rolled across the central part of the nation today after another outbreak of severe weather in sections of the Midwest.

Tornadoes ripped across areas in Iowa and Wisconsin Thursday night, injuring more than 30 persons and damaging scores of homes and business establishments.

The early morning thunderstorm belt extended from Texas to the Upper Great Lakes region. Heavy rain, with hail and strong winds, hit many areas as the warm humid air from the Gulf region set off the storms.

About 20 persons were injured when a twister struck a residential area of Waterloo, Iowa, a city of about 78,000, and a trailer court in nearby Raymond. Fifteen persons were hospitalized. A tornado also skipped across farm areas northwest of Waterloo in Fayette County, damaging buildings on at least 10 farms.

Fourteen persons were injured and at least 10 mobile homes damaged as a tornado slammed into a trailer court northeast of Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., a town of about 15,000.

Summer-like weather prevailed in much of the eastern half of the nation but unseasonably cool temperatures were reported in parts of the Far West.

Warm, Humid For Weekend, Cooler Later

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Extended forecasts, as prepared by the U.S. Weather Bureau, from 7 p.m. today to 7 p.m. Wednesday:

Eastern New York—Temperatures will average well above normal. Warm, humid weather will extend through the weekend, but a cooler trend is indicated for early next week. Scattered thundershowers likely over the weekend and again Tuesday or Wednesday.

Western New York—Temperatures will average 5 to 9 degrees above normal. Cooler early next week and little day to day change through Wednesday. Precipitation will average one-half inch or more in the form of scattered showers or thundershowers about Sunday and again toward the middle of the week.

Temperature normals — Daytime highs, 58-66. Nighttime lows, 39-46.

Whirlwind Recital

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—None of that panty raiding or cramming of telephone booths for the students of Trinity College. At least not this weekend.

Noon Saturday will signal the start of a nonstop, 12-hour recital involving 70 agile fingers, a piano in Trinity's Seabury Hall, some Bach, some Beethoven and perhaps some sing-along music.

"I don't know for certain if the continuous 12 hours on the same piano will be a world record," said Dr. Clarence Barber, the man behind the marat[illegible], "but it will be a collegiate record anyway."

Parkers Pay $3,845.85

City Treasurer M. G. Richardson today reported $3,845.85 collected from local parking meters in April, bringing the total collected, to date, this year to $14,020.61. The April total was $192.37 under that of March, and $233.74 less than the April, 1963 total. The total, to date, this year, however, is $934.13 above that in 1963.

LARGEST PIECE OF PLANE WRECKAGE—Wreckage from a Pacific Airlines transport that crashed near Concord, Calif., lies strewn on hillside. A rancher, Gordon Rassmussen, said the "plane exploded into small bits . . . there wasn't a piece larger than a foot in diameter." It was reported there were no survivors among the 44 persons aboard. (AP Wirephoto)

Weapon Brings FBI Into Crash Probe

CONCORD, Calif. (AP) — A cocked and loaded pistol found in the trail of wreckage left by a Pacific Air Lines plane has brought the FBI into the investigation of Thursday's crash.

All 44 persons aboard the turbo-prop airliner were killed.

A quarter-mile of metal fragments, a garbled tape recording, the gun and bits of the victims' bodies were all the evidence that Civil Aeronautics Board investigators had to work with.

The plane, a morning flight from Reno, Nev., went down after stopping in Stockton, Calif., just 40 miles east, San Francisco, its destination.

Seconds before the airliner plunged nose first to earth, a garbled message came over its radio but was lost in a screech of static and electronic squeals. The Federal Aviation Agency had a tape recording of it that investigators hoped would provide some clue.

The FBI took charge of a cocked and loaded 38-caliber revolver. At first it was believed to belong to a San Francisco police inspector, George Lacau, who with his wife, Betty, was a passenger on the plane.

A check in police records, however, showed that none of the three revolvers registered by Lacau had the serial numbers of the weapon found in the wreckage.

Would Fingerprint Dead

"Our captains are authorized to carry a gun," said a Pacific Air Lines spokesman. "But none has ever done so to our knowledge."

Sheriff Walter Young asked the FBI disaster squad to use their special fingerprint techniques to make positive identification of the dead. Coroner Dr. William Bogart refused to allow relatives to view the remains.

"We saw the plane coming in low, flying in kind of a glide, with its left engine not turning at all," said David Silva, 21, who was washing his car when the airliner came in over his house.

Like Sonic Boom

"The right engine was making a terrible roar, revving hard," Silva continued. "Then the plane vanished over the top of a little hill, and at that instant we heard this tremendous explosion, like a sonic boom."

Aboard were about a dozen persons who had taken advantage of an offer by Reno Casinos to gamble all night in exchange for a refund of their plane fares.

At San Francisco airport, Dale Stopp wept. Years ago he lost both legs under a train. His mother, Clara Stopp, and his wife, Judy, had helped him back to an almost normal life. The two women were aboard the plane.

Hoover to Mark 40th Anniversary With FBI Sunday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forty years and seven presidents ago, a young and nervous Justice Department lawyer was summoned to the office of the attorney general, Harlan Fiske Stone.

"Young man," the scowling Stone told John Edgar Hoover, 29, "I want you to be acting director of the Bureau of Investigation."

No Signs of Quitting

Moments later, the young man departed, launched on a career unparalleled in the annals of law enforcement.

J. Edgar Hoover's name was to become a byword for relentless, incorruptible, scientific crimefighting. His organization was to become a beacon to the professions of law enforcement and intelligence throughout the world.

Sunday will be the 40th anniversary of that historic job promotion. And Hoover, now 69, shows no sign of quitting.

He will reach the compulsory government retirement age of 70 next New Year's Day. But President Johnson is expected to issue an executive order today to waive the requirement in Hoover's case. Thus the stocky FBI boss may be expected to stay at the helm as long as he feels fit.

Today, unquestionably, Hoover is fit. His aides report him to be in top physical condition. They say his annual checkups continue to result in clean bills of health.

He moves and speaks with vigor. He maintains his weight at 169 pounds. In public speeches and in private conversation, his voice takes on the familiary angry edge when he talks about

Egypt Tightening Security Plans For Khrushchev

CAIRO (AP)—Maximum security precautions are being quietly tightened for the arrival of Premier Khrushchev Saturday, and special communication equipment has been installed to give the Soviet leader instant contact with Moscow.

Troops, police and plainclothes agents from Egyptian army intelligence have been assigned to guard Khrushchev. Reports said as many as 200 Soviet security agents will accompany the premier.

Special telephone lines to Moscow were reported being set up from Cairo and Aswan, 430 miles to the south, to Moscow.

Khrushchev's route will take him from Alexandria, his port of landing, to Cairo, Port Said and other points.

As a further precaution two special planes have been sent from the Soviet Union to take Khrushchev around the United Arab Republic. Soviet sources said the premier would not fly aboard Egyptian planes—many of which were built by the Soviet Union.

GREETINGS—Former President Harry S. Truman seems pleased to receive birthday greetings from President Johnson. The call to Truman came during a birthday luncheon at Kansas City to honor Truman's 80th birthday which is today. President Johnson called from Washington. (AP Wirephoto)

Truman, 80 Today Has Busy Slate In Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harry S. Truman, feeling just fine thank you on his 80th birthday today, solved problems right and left but confessed that a worry was gnawing at him.

The worry: What will Bess, the former first lady whom he left back home in Independence, Mo., think of his performance in Washington?

"She is always afraid," he said, "that I will insult somebody I am not supposed to insult."

So far Truman, special guest of President Johnson and the nation, has avoided insulting anybody.

But he has given an elder statesman's advice on several problems including:

1. How long should a president work each day. Fourteen hours, Truman said flatly.

2. How can a president avoid being assassinated as he rides through crowds. "Put back the two Secret Service guards who used to ride on the rear bumpers," Truman said.

About Those Hounds

Truman arrived from Independence Thursday in an Air Force plane, and quickly went to Johnson's defense on the handling of hound dogs. The President had got into some hot water recently by lifting "Him" and "Her" by the ears.

Districts May Plan On Balance

Court of Appeals Hands Down Rule

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — In a major decision of only narrow application, the state's highest court has ruled for the first time that school districts may actively seek racial balance in public-school enrollments.

The State Court of Appeals asserted that fundamental principle in a 6-1 decision handed down Thursday. The court held that, in drawing attendance lines for a new school, racial factors could be considered in an effort to achieve racial balance in the schoool's enrollment.

Racial imbalance in school enrollments, resulting from segregated housing patterns in many cities and suburban areas throughout the state, has become the center of bitter controversy.

Many Questions Yet

Because the Court of Appeals ruling was based on a special—and in some ways, unusual—set of circumstances, it left many questions in the controversy unanswered.

The court stated specifically that it had not considered in this case the question of whether school districts were required under law to attempt to eliminate racial imbalance.

The decision left up in the air what legal steps a schoool district might take to achieve balance. A spokesman for the State Education Department said the question of how the decision would be applied in specific instances probably would be the subject of a long series of lawsuits.

Starts in Brooklyn

The case was brought by a group of white parents in Brooklyn who protested an attendance plan by the New York City Board of Education. Under the plan, their children were assigned to a new junior high school, No. 275.

Under previously existeng attendance lines, the children would have attended Junior High School No. 285.

In drawing the lines for the new schoool, the school board expressed the goal of an enrollment that was one-third Negro, one-third Puerto Rican and one-third "non-Puerto Rican white."

A State Supreme Court justice held that the board's plan violated a state law that says "no person shall be refused admission into or be excluded from any public school...on account of race, creed, color or national origin.'"

Reversal Made

The Appellate Division of State Supreme Court reversed the justice's ruling and said that the law he cited was "on its face and from its history and plain purpose an anti-segregation statute only."

To apply the law as the justice did, the Appellate Division said, would turn it into a segregation law, "a result exactly opposite to its purpose."

In the majority opinion, writ-

Grand Jury Directs Bookstore Owner, Professor to Justice of Peace Court

A 25-year-old New Paltz bookstore proprietor, James Conrad Warner, operator of The Place bookstore, and a State University College professor, Dr. Gerson Robison, 55, of 10 South Oakwood Terrace, New Paltz, will both have to face magistrate's court as a result of an altercation which took place at the bookstore on April 7.

In a partial report today to County Judge Raymond J. Mino, the April grand jury directed that District Attorney David W. Corwin file an information referring the matter back to the New Paltz magistrate's court for further prosecution.

After hearing the case, the grand jury recommends that the district attorney file an information in justice's court charging Warner with third degree assault and Dr. Robinson with disorderly conduct.

District Attorney Corwin presented to the court an order directing that the directives of the grand jury be carried out and Judge Mino signed the order sending the matter back to magistrate's court.

Corwin said he would prepare and file such information by the first of the week in Justice of the Peace S. Parks Glenn's court in Town of New Paltz.

The matter grew out of an incident on April 7 when, according to State Police who investigated, Dr. Robison was struck on the head with a ball bat after he had allegedly removed a copy of "Common Sense" from the window of the bookstore. The newspaper had been posted in the window. A headline in the issue contained the statement, "Judaism Is Communism."

Prof. Robison entered the store and allegedly removed the paper. An argument ensued in which it is alleged Warner told Prof. Robison "get out of here, you kike." It is alleged Warner then went behind the counter and returned with a ball bat and another paper called "The Thunderbolt" and told Dr. Robison if he tore that one down he would hit Robison with the bat.

A group of college students in front of the store, according to state police, reported they saw the professor tear down the paper and Warner hit him on the back of the head inflicting a wound which required eight sutures at the New Paltz Medical Center.

Warner was held in the county jail under $500 bail on a charge of second degree assault. He later posted bail.

Later Dr. Robison stated that he was "impulsive."

Warner came from Elizabeth, N. J., not long ago to operate the bookstore, which is in a building that formerly housed a restaurant and is owned by George Tsontardies, of Tillson, who operated a service station across the street.

In its partial report to the Court, the grand jury filed 25 open indictments and four dismissals.

The following open indictments were filed by District Attorney David W. Corwin. None of the defendants was arraigned:

Ralph Eaton Wynkoop, burglary third degree, petit larceny, unlawful entry.

Business Heads Say Johnson Understands

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP)—There were plentiful signs, as the Business Council began weekend meetings with high administration officials today, that President Johnson has gone far toward winning the confidence of business.

Several of the 100 top industrialists here for the council's spring conference—mostly Republicans — told reporters privately they feel Johnson has shown sympathy and understanding for the problems of businessmen.

Some said they believed this view was widely held in the industrial and financial community.

Feel He Listens

One explained: "They feel a lot more comfortable with him than they did with President Kennedy.

"They think he really listens to them when he asks for their advice, and they know he always did ask advice from business friends, when he was senator and vice president."

Said another: "He got off on the right foot with business from the start by cutting the budget and promising a dollar's value for every taxpayer's dollar spent."

Appealing Factors

The $11.5-billion tax cut, paring of the federal pay rolls, and the President's apparent appreciation of the role of corporate profits as a basic ingredient of economic growth were among other factors cited as appealing to business leaders.

Most of the council's active membership — which embraces many of the biggest names in industry—have had close contact with Johnson since he became President. Two of them, railroad president Stuart Saunders and auto manufacturer Henry Ford II, headed the Business Committee for Tax Reduction.

Pledge of Welcome

About one-third of the council's members were among the 70 prominent industrialists and financiers who were Johnson's guests at a White House dinner last week and heard the President pledge:

"For as long as I am Presi-

Johnson's Appeal Is Justice Among Races

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—President Johnson, touring the Deep South, called today for "justice among the races." And he suggested that much of the South will find racial peace "before the end of racial strife in the cities of the North."

Johnson made his dramatic appeal for the civil rights cause in an address prepared for a breakfast meeting with members of the Georgia Legislature. His remarks, canvassing what he termed the "many troubles" of the South, were certain to be regarded as unusually significant.

Cites Faithful Guide

Winding up a six-state tour of poverty-pocked Appalachia, the President suggested that in searching for racial justice, Georgia and the South "have a sure and faithful guide—the Constitution of the United States."

He declared: "Because the Constitution requires it—and because justice demands it—we must protect the constitutional rights of all of our people.

"For no one of us is fully free until all of us are fully free. And the rights of no single American are truly secure until the rights of all Americans are secure."

No Single Section

Johnson said that "racial problems have deep roots in Southern soil." However, he emphasized his view that such problems are not peculiar to any single section, saying: "They also trouble the passions of men on the shores of Maryland, in the slums of Philadelphia and in the streets of New York."

Actually, he took a hopeful view of the tributations of the South, with these words: "We may well find racial peace in much of the South before the end of racial strife in the cities of the North."

Johnson also appealed for rejection of extremism. Conjuring memories of the Civil War, he said:

"Heed not those who come waving the tattered and discredited banners of the past—who seek to stir old hostilities and

Peking Rejects Soviet Move to Resolve Split

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China disclosed today it has turned down a Soviet bid to hold a preliminary meeting this month on the issue of resolving the split between Moscow and Peking. The Chinese Communists suggested May of next year as the earliest possible date.

A Peking broadcast said a reply was sent on Thursday to the Soviet Union's proposal for two-party talks this month to be followed by an international meeting of all Communist parties in the fall.

"Judging by present circumstances, not only is it impossible to hold the two - party talks in May, but it will also be too early to hold them in October," the Red Chinese reply said.

"We consider it more appropriate to postpone them until sometime in the first half of next year, say May. And if either the Chinese or the Soviet party then considers that the time is still not ripe, they can be further postponed."

The final public hearing on the UR project is scheduled for Wednesday night, May 13, in the Common Council Chambers of City Hall. The hearing will start at 7:30 p. m.

To date, all organizations contacted have favored the project. Contacts have been made by the UR Committee of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce.

Much to Be Cut Out at Onteora If Austerity Budget Is Adopted

Children in the Onteora Central School District could lose transportation, cafeteria and school lunch services, workbooks, instructional supplies, free textbooks and even uniforms for the athletic teams, if the District Board of Education adopted a so-called "austerity budget" under state law, it was learned today.

Dr. George R. Sullivan, district superintendent, said the possibility of adopting an austerity budget, was one of three courses which the board could take after district voters defeated a $2,696,435 budget in the annual district election Wednesday. The vote was 805 to 787—a margin of 18 votes.

Of 2,822 eligible registered voters, only 1,683 exercised their franchise. A total of 1,139 failed to vote.

Dr. Sullivan said after a special meeting of the board Thursday night, that another special meeting has been called for 8 p. m. Monday in the board rooms. He said that it was expected that thet board would select one of three courses of action at Monday's meeting. The other two alternatives which could be taken, he said, included a revision of the budget or presentation to the voters of same budget, which represents an increase of $426,199 over the 1962-63 budget. Those two alternatives would require another referendum by the district voters, it was learned. The alternative of adopting an austerity budget could be accompanied by vote of the board and under law does not require a public referendum.

Dr. Sullivan, in response to the request of a number of voters in the OCS District, stated a short time ago that legal procedures were provided in case a school budget is defeated at the annual meeting of a Central District.

He said the board of education was empowered to adopt what is known as an austerity budget which is limited to teachers salaries and the ordinary contingent expenses of running a school unless a budget is approved prior to the time the tax must be levied.

In April 1960, he said, Dr. Charles A. Brind, counsel of the State Education Department, issued a list of examples which have been determined as not constituting ordinary contingent expenses and can not be included in an austerity budget.

George Smith, business manager of the OCS District, told the Freeman that adoption of an austerity budget could mean a budget savings of approximately $150,000 to the school district. He emphasized that provisions for such a budget were made under state law and not by the individual school district.

Service loses under such a budget, would include:

1. General control. Elimination of fees for evaluation of the school system by the Middle States Association of College and Secondary Schools and for surveying the school system by various individuals, groups or organizations. Loss of rental of

Ball Challenges De Gaulle's Idea

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk flies to Europe today to urge NATO allies to contribute more to the fight against Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam and to support the U.S. economic boycott of Cuba.

Rusk will attend a meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization foreign ministers at the Hague next week following a visit to Brussels.

On the eve of Rusk's departure, Undersecretary of State George Ball sharply challenged the idea attributed to President Charles de Gaulle of France that the Atlantic Alliance serves the defense of the West and should be preserved but that its organization is a bad idea.

Some U.S. officials said this reasoning could lead to a conclusion that the basic defense pledge of NATO should be preserved but that the military command system should be radically altered and weakened if not actually abandoned.

Outspoken Discussion

Ball did not mention France or De Gaulle by name, but his speech at Georgetown University was in some ways the most outspoken discussion of the dangers facing NATO heard in a long time.

"The Atlantic world feels increasingly strong and confident of the future," Ball said. "There is danger that, if this happy state persists for long, some may be tempted to regard the obligations of a massive enterprise such as NATO as unnecessarily heavy, and some of our European friends — out of a sense of newfound confidence — may be led to consider NATO as too much an American show. There is already an apparent trend that way."

Wants Suggestions

Officials said Rusk would welcome any suggestions for improving or strengthening NATO, but he does not expect decisions at the Hague conference on NATO issues.

What he hopes to accomplish is agreement by individual Allied leaders to provide greater assistance to the embattled government of South Viet Nam — assistance in the form of technical experts in transportation, agriculture, and the like and also direct economic help.

In the case of Cuba, Rusk be-

Drawing Places Newcombe First On June 2 Ballot

The drawings for position on the June 2 Republican primary ballot held this week in Albany placed Catskill Businessman Lloyd A. Newcombe, aspirant for the GOP senatorial candidacy on the top row and incumbent Sen. E. Ogden Bush, the regular party designee on the second row.

In the draw for ballot position in the contest for delegates to the GOP national convention from the 28th Congressional District, the regular party designees, Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson of Ulster County; Mrs. Myrtle Tinkelpaugh of Columbia County; Neal Brandow of Greene County and Roy Ketchum of Dutchess County were placed on the top line.

Goldwater-for-President delegates Kent Leavitt of Millbrook, Louis Hall of Hurley, Alice Lafko of Poughkeepsie and Archie Fehecht of Valatie drew second position.

The drawings were held in the office of Secretary of State John P. Lomenzo.

Attending in addition to the senatorial hopefuls were Delaware County GOP Chairman Wilbur S. Olds and Maurice Goldberg of Woodstock, representing Ulster County GOP Chairman Wilson, who appeared with Sen. Bush, and Henry Werker of Catskill, who appeared with Newcombe.

Drawings for the position by the secretary of state are held in primary contests above the county officer level. In other instances the drawings are by the county election board.

Paper ballots will be used as usual for the primary elections in Ulster County.

NewTrialOrdered Because Witness Judged Insane

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Because a key witness in a murder trial later was judged insane, the State Court of Appeals has ordered a new trial for a man under a death sentence.

The state's highest court, in a 4-3 decision Thursday, reversed the conviction of Lawrence Rensing of Brooklyn. Rensing had been condemned to die in the electric chair for the shooting of Arthur Holst, 17, a fellow worker in an ice-cream parlor, on Sept. 20, 1962.

The court's majority said there was no question that, "on the record before us, (Rensing's) guilt was established beyond a reasonable doubt."

But the majority contended that the witness' long history of mental illness should have been brought out at the Rensing trial.

With that information, the court said, the jury would have been able to "assess and evaluate the testimony given by him and not accepted it, as undoubtedly they did, as the statement of a normal individual."

The minority opinion held that the evidence against Rensing was so convincing that the jury would have found him guilty without the questioned testimony.

Capt. Alfred Svenson, 31, was returned to U.S. military control at Wartha Thursday. The East-West checkpoint is near Eisenach, where Svenson crossed into East Germany on May 4, 1963, while his tank unit was on maneuvers. The East Germans said he asked for asylum.

Much of Clean-Up Is Accomplished As Alaska Rises Again From Quake

EDITOR'S NOTE — Associated Press writer Joe Rigert [illegible] several weeks in Alaska after the March 27 earthquake. He visited areas of major damage and interviewed dozens of officials and citizens. Here is his appraisal of the situation six weeks after the disaster.

By JOE RIGERT

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)— Alaska is rising from the death and destruction of her Good Friday disaster, North America's greatest earthquake.

There are no miracles—only the resolute will of the Alaskan people, their faith in the future, and generous support from fellow Americans.

Time, Money, Work

It is taking time, money and hard work.

The people of this state, a pioneering breed familiar with the challenges of a frontier, have bent to the task.

Much of the clean-up has been accomplished.

Shattered cities are deeply involved in plans to rebuild and even relocate.

Many businessmen have patched up their shops or moved to new quarters.

Repairs are being rushed on the lifeline transportation network of ports, highways and the government-owned Alaska Railroad, which link the cities and towns of the south-central Alaska heartland.

Marks Still Visible

Yet the marks of the earthquake and seismic waves remain plainly visible, despite the clean-up and repair.

The two battered skyscrapers, the hulk of the J. C. Penney department store, the sunken 4th Avenue area — all can still be seen at Anchorage, the state's largest city.

Down the Kenai Peninsula, the Seward waterfront remains cluttered with twisted track, scattered railroad engines and blackened oil storage tanks—the only remains of a once-thriving railport industrial center.

Official Toll Is 115

And throughout the disaster area, damaged or destroyed buildings still offer mute testimony to the terrible force of nature.

The damage estimated from the March 27 catastrophe continues at $750 million, a sizeable portion of the $1.2 billion value of private property in the state. The official Alaska death count has been put at 115.

There has been little actual reconstruction so far — nearly six weeks after the disaster.

It takes time to plan for the rebuilding o cities, even when, as in Alaska now, the planners have been doing months of work in weeks.

Even if the plans were completed and the money available, which is not the case, there would be other obstacles to any immediate start on the Alaskan reconstruction.

Must Await Soil Tests

The short Alaska construction season does not begin until after the spring thaw this month.

Cities like Anchorage, Seward and Valdez also must await the results of soil tests to determine what can be built, if anything, in areas where geologists have warned of landslide hazards.

Major rebuilding is being held up in Anchorage until the land has thawed and settled. The city fears the thaw may trigger more slides, upset foundations and cause additional damage.

Finally, Alaskans are waiting to see what aid they can expect from the federal government.

This is still the biggest uncertainty, the type and extent of assistance to come from Uncle Sam — the benevolent patron who controlled Alaska until statehood in 1959 and continues to play a dominant role in her development.

The Congress, acting in almost unprecedented speed after the earthquake, voted $50 million in disaster relief to help repair the utilities, roads and other public facilities.

More to Be Needed

The Alaska Legislature provided a $50-million bond issue. Other aid has come from the military, scores of state and federal agencies, private relief organizations, sister cities, labor unions, churches and businessmen in other states.

But many Alaskan officials, bankers and businessmen say they will need a great deal more from the federal government, particularly for hard-pressed private businesses and homeowners.

The $50-million bond issue voted by the legislature, says Gov. William A. Egan, is the most this state of 226,000 population can afford.

Egan says he hopes Congress will provide the state with enough budget support to meet anticipated revenue loss and emergency spending caused by the quake.

But the key to future recovery progress, he says, is change in existing law to permit federal agencies to deal adequately with a disaster of the magnitude of the Alaskan experience.

Savings at Stake

Existing uncertainties fall heavily on homeowners whose houses were destroyed or heavily damaged. For some, life savings are at stake. How can they afford a double mortgage—one for a new home and the other on the house that was destroyed?

Businessmen express concern about surviving their setbacks. Low-interest federal disaster loans will help some of them. Federal tax writeoffs also will soften the impact.

Bankers report that many of them also are delaying construction plans until they know how much other aid will come from the federal government.

The Army Corps of Engineers is well under way on the restoration of public facilities, a job it says will cost $92 million.

Water, electricity and other utilities have been restored in most of the disaster area through temporary repairs. Water pipes and even hoses have been placed above ground in many places.

In heavily damaged Valdez, where the utility system was severely ruptured, much of the city still without water and electricity.

The waterfront business-industrial areas of Kodiak and Valdez have been cleared of most of their debris

The survival of Seward, say officials, has been assured by the federal government's decision to restore Alaska Railroad facilities there rather than move the railport north to Whittier.

Anchorage, Seward, Valdez and Kodiak — which bore the brunt of the earthquake-tidal wave damage — are all looking to urban renewal projects to clear their now-blighted areas and rebuild.

The projects could qualify for 75 per cent federal aid.

Anchorage is considering a $50-million plan that would transform damaged areas into parks and parking facilities and shift the central business core slightly to the south.

Valdez, where a bulk of the homes and buildings were damaged or destroyed and geologists have warned of an unstable soil foundations, is planning to move the entire town four miles away.

Seward has developed a proposal that would put a park in its low-lying waterfront area and shift its major industrial section across Resurrection Bay to firm ground.

Additional reconstruction may be necessary as a result of a massive tilting of the earth, leaving sunken coastal areas exposed to periodic flooding from high tides.

SCHOOL ELECTION APATHY

If the vote cast in Tuesday's school election is representative of local public interest in our school system, then a deplorable situation exists. The disgraceful display of apathy in our educational system should be of the deepest concern to all citizens of the Kingston Consolidated School District.

It would seem that more public interest is needed to encourage more candidates to try for these vital public offices. There were but four candidates listed to fill vacancies of three trustees. A large number of candidates with outstanding credentials undoubtedly would generate more interest.

Is it possible that this shameful response in this school district is the result of an ineffectual approach to the selection and election of trustees of the board of education?

The some 30,000 eligible voters who failed to turn out at the polls in the school election forfeited their right to complain about the schools system or the school taxes. However, when new school projects are required, which call for the expenditure of money, then many of these people who shirked their civic duty suddenly become profoundly interested in the education system. On matters of financing, they become wizards and start expounding.

DRESS FOR PEACE

The Russians may shoot down straying planes, but they seem to be unable — and unwilling — to stop the invasion of Western affluence and influence.

The good life, with the problems that come with it, is seeping into the Soviet Union as if the Iron Curtain were no more solid than a sieve, judging by some remarks made recently by Alexei I. Adzhubei, Premier Khrushchev's son-in-law who is editor of Izvestia.

Speaking in Paris, he was quoted as saying that Russian children have "too many things."

"For some years we have brought them up like little Americans, with the result that they are unbearable," he said.

Mr. Adzhubei also revealed Khrushchev's latest party line regarding the ideal wardrobe for the Soviet man and woman.

"He wants the man to own at least three suits, three pairs of shoes, 10 shirts and 10 pairs of socks.

"For women: Two winter dresses or suits, three spring and summer dresses, three dresses and blouses in traditional costume, five pairs of shoes and 10 pairs of stockings.

How long it will be before this ideal is realized is not the important thing. What is significant is that the Russian people, with official encouragement, are devoting more and more energy to raising their standard of living.

When you're wearing a new suit and new shoes, you don't usually go around picking fights.

ELECTRONIC SNOOPING

We have almost arrived at the time when inviolate privacy will be a thing of the past. No man can any longer feel certain — in his home or office, in a hotel room, even riding in his car — that what he says is not being listened to by those who have no right to listen.

This is true because keen, miniaturized electronic apparatus that can be "planted" almost anywhere without so much as a wire to give it away is now available to private detectives and other eavesdroppers. Corporate espionage and other even less savory manifestations of the snooper's art increase as such devices improve.

Further light was cast on the problem when three private investigators were convicted, in Washington, of elertonic eavesdropping with tiny broadcasting devices. The charges were founded on violations, not of wiretapping statutes but of federal broadcasting regulations. Thus a new dimension is added to the already troublesome and complex matter of control over invasions of privacy.

The difficulties are certain to increase rather than diminish. More and more sensitive and sophisticated devices — not only to overhear supposedly private and even whispered conversations, but also to scan mail without even opening it — are being developed. Before the use of these and other techniques gets out of hand, the whole broad problem should be considered with tighter controls in mind. If this is not done soon, the sound concept springing from the old idea that a man's home is his castle will have gone down the drain.

'These Days'

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

THEY ARE STILL GUNNING FOR MacARTHUR

Someone in the Pentagon has it in for the memory of General Douglas MacArthur.

For, out of "hitherto not declassified" files, there is coming a stream of material designed to prove that MacArthur, by wantonly pursuing the North Koreans to the Yalu River, brought the Red Chinese into the Korean War in spite of warnings from Washington that this would happen if he baited them.

Moreover, the same Pentagon source has claimed that MacArthur's plan to spread a radioactive belt across Korea, as outlined to reporter Bob Considine, was both impractical and impossible, and that there simply weren't enough atom bombs in the U. S. armory to permit their use by MacArthur against Red Chinese concentration points if any such points could be found.

The ridiculous aspect of these latest attempts to discredit a great general is that they are mainly a replay of a controversy that was pretty much settled ten years ago.

It will be recalled by anyone with a long memory that MacArthur, both before and after President Truman had relieved him of his command, was under severe criticism for chasing the North Koreans into their own home territory. He had, so it was said at the time, done this in "reckless defiance of superior authority"; he had been victimized by "faulty intelligence" relating to the Red Chinese build-up; and he had chosen to ignore a telecon message from Washington, dated October 4, 1950, that "the potential exists for Chinese Communist forces to openly intervene . . . if U.N. forces cross the thirty-eighth parallel."

The answer to all this was that the United Nations General Assembly, on October 6, 1950, had voted its explicit approval of the crossing of the thirty-eighth parallel, and that the Joint Chiefs of Staff in Washington, in transmitting orders to Tokyo, gave MacArthur permission to go as far as the Manchurian border in pursuit of the demoralized enemy. What MacArthur was warned against was employing air or naval action against Manchuria itself or the Siberian territory of the U.S.S.R.

As for the imputation that MacArthur's own intelligence about the warlike intentions of the Red Chinese was at fault, General Willoughby, MacArthur's G-2 from Bataan to Tokyo, answered the charge way back in 1953 by submitting a random list taken from his daily intelligence summaries that had gone to Washington by special report and radio. These summaries showed that a warning about the Red Chinese build-up had been forwarded from Tokyo to Washington as early as June 6, 1950. On August 31, a Tokyo summary had it that "troop movements from Central China to Manchuria over a considerable period suggest preliminary to entering the Korean theatre . . . total Chinese strength in Manchuria estimated to be 246,000 Regular and 374,000 Military Security forces."

The point which Willoughby, in rebutting the slanders of 1952 and 1953, was careful to make was that MacArthur was briefed every day on what the Red Chinese were doing. The warning of possible Red Chinese interference that went from Washington to Tokyo was simply a relay of Tokyo's own stuff. MacArthur chose to risk the danger of bringing in the Red Chinese because he believed he could isolate them in North Korea by bombing the bridges over the Yalu River, thereby destroying their avenues of supply. However, when the "planned . . . air-interdiction of the Yalu bridges" was countermanded by Washington, in fear that MacArthur's planes might violate Manchurian air space, the possibility of isolating the Red Chinese forces was lost. Moreover, when the knowledge that MacArthur would not be permitted to bomb supply points inside Manchuria was "tipped" by someone to the Red Chinese, the chances of bluffing them out of the war were nullified.

The Pentagon's recent claim that the U. S. lacked enough radioactive cobalt to spread a protective belt across a narrow peninsula might be technically true. But "cobalt," with MacArthur, was a figure of speech. Any radioactive waste from atomic installations would have served the purpose. And it would have taken only three low-grade atomic bombs to discourage Red Chinese use of the three supply roads leading from Manchuria to North Korea. Even conventional bombing would have been sufficient as a deterrent if applied to the right strategic points in Manchuria.

The Doctor's Mailbag

Operation for Hernia Not Always Successful

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—About three years ago I was operated on for a hernia. About six months ago it came back and I have been wearing a truss ever since. I am 60 and don't want another operation if I can help it.

A—Every surgeon in repairing a rupture tries to insure that it will not recur but this sometimes happens even with the best of surgery. The only danger involved with this type of hernia is strangulation—the locking of a segment of intestine in the hernial sac. If your hernia slips back in place easily when you lie on your back and if your truss keeps it from protruding when you are up, there is no harm in treating it in this way.

Q—Is a yeast infection contagious? What would the symptoms be? My doctor says I have a yeast diarrhea. Does this kind of infection come back after it is cured?

A—There are at least 15 kinds of yeast or fungus that may cause disease in man, but none of these diseases primarily attacks the intestines. Some attack the skin; others the lungs or the brain. Diarrhea could be complication of a number of fungus diseases. They vary widely in the degree of contagiousness.

Q—A friend of mine has blood in his urine all the time. Is this because he is an alcoholic?

A—This is always a sign of serious trouble. Alcohol is not a cause but your friend should have a doctor find the true cause without delay.

Q—I read where a woman was nearly blind and she took Hetrazan and was cured. Where could I get this drug?

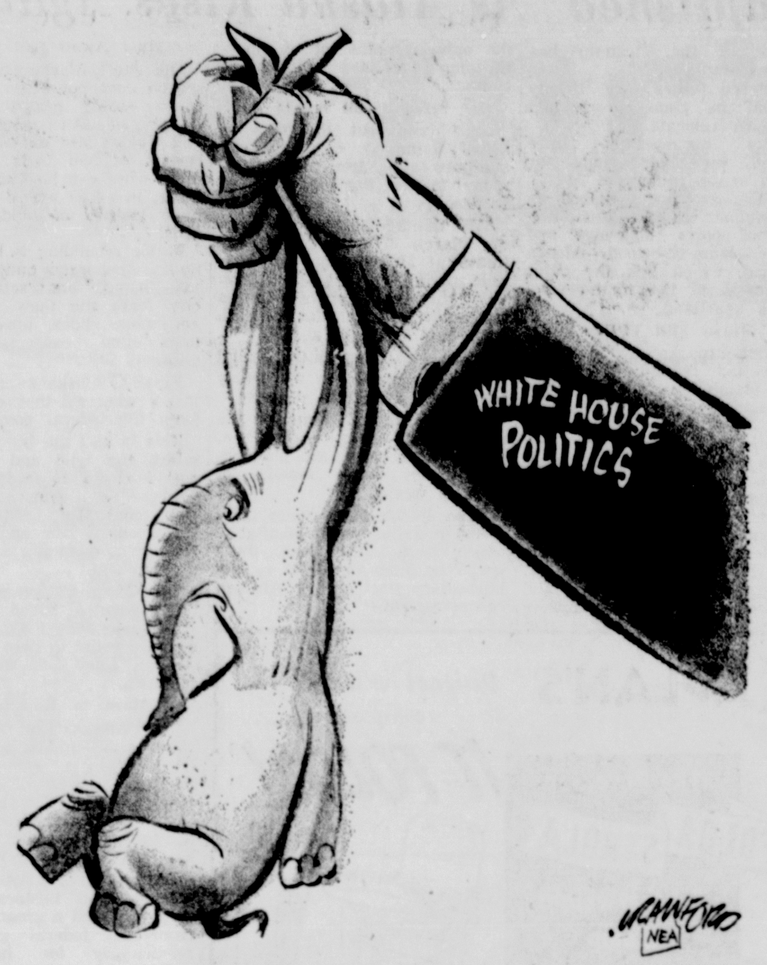

It is true that diethylcarbamazine (Hetrazan) can save the sight of a person whose eye involvement is due to the tropical parasitic disease, onchocerciasis. It would be of no value in persons with any other kind of eye disease.

Q—My nephew, 52, had a blood tumor removed about seven years ago. It seems to be coming back. What should he do now?

A—Your nephew should be examined to determine whether he is having a return of the same condition or whether a different kind of tumor is developing. In either case it would seem wise to have it removed completely.

BABSON on BUSINESS

By Roger W. Babson

BABSON PARK, Mass., May 8 — I have long declared that moral rejuvenation is a "must" if we are to come through the rigors and dangers of the present day and age with our civilization intact. In an effort to specify ways of bringing this about, I have talked with you about religion, ethics, thrift, education, and even a closer attention to land ownership and its responsibilities as possible remedies for today's "moral" problems. At this time I want to discuss the importance of keeping rugged individualism alive in our society.

Trend Against Individualism

Undoubtedly the greatest threat to individuals is the dependence on social groups to bring about "improvements" in today's changing world. For example, politicians and labor leaders want men to be manageable in units. Their goals can be far more easily achieved if individualism can be suppressed. It is next to impossible to get a story across to men separately, one at a time; but if ideas and thoughts can be instilled in social groups, objectives can be gained.

Look at the history of the Soviet Union and its successful expansion of Communism — not only within its borders but in many other countries as well. The Soviets developed collective farms chiefly because an independent farmer would think too much as an individual for them to be able to fit him into the Russian program. Even though the Russians and the Chinese leaders are now in open conflict, they still agree that individuality must be stifled for Communistic success.

Our History of Democracy

It is worth while for us to look back occasionally on the sort of past that brought about the democratic way of life for which we have often been willing to lay down our lives. In America's a-borning period, the rugged individual never let his private convictions be smothered by the group judgement of a committee, a board of directors, or even a political party. A man believed that "one with God is a majority." Democracy came from many hours of "cracker-barrel" discussion in country stores where quiet reigned. Thinking requires quiet, and time enough to relax and chew things over.

The change from the Little Red School House to the conformist type of school of today marked the end of a healthy era. A farmer's son in the days of the Little Red School House began his education in the early dawn. His best schooling actually began with his daily chores, —feeding and watering the animals, operating the farm machinery, planting, growing, and harvesting crops. He had to be alert and ingenious enough to meet emergencies. Sane reasoning was essential. Out of such a life came honesty, thrift, common sense, industry.

Independence and Health

At schooltime, such a lad was not loaded into a bus and driven to some regional school many miles away. He walked to school, building up his independence and his bodily vigor. Even if he had to face into a blizzard, the very resistance to such a storm gave him strength of will at an early age. Even in his local Red School House his individualism was developed by his having to dig out most of the facts he wanted. The rule of "God helps those who help themselves" was implanted in him right at the start.

At recess and at noon there were healthful diversions,—baseball, tag, run-sheep-run. During the walk home at the end of the school day, he had time to go over in his mind and stash away what he had learned. After supper there was homework, a kind of discipline and refresher that some "educators" now talk of eliminating. He did not have to buck the noise and confusion of radio and TV, indiscriminately distracting the eyes and ears, usually making it impossible to think out problems of the day.

Swinging Back Toward Individualism

The atmosphere of the Little Red School House gave America its greatest men, strong and fearless and very definitely rugged individualists. The pendulum has now swung too far in the other direction, tending to make "softies" of our young citizens. We can't swing back simply by noting these facts. But we can encourage our youngsters to do reguler chores, to read more, to think for themselves, and to engage in healthy pursuits such as gardening. I still think gardening — next to the Red School House — is a wonderful character builder.

On School Prayer Ruling: Search for a Compromise

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — A unique idea has come from the chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, Rep. Emanuel Celler, of New York, Democrat. He has suggested that maybe the House and Senate should pass a joint resolution "advising" the Supreme Court of the United States that Congress is in favor of voluntary worship in public schools, and calling for an affirmation of that principle by the court.

Lots of people for years have tried to "advise" the Supreme Court, but to no avail. The members of the court, who are appointed for life, can make any rulings they please, and the only recourse is to adopt a Constitutional amendment to reverse any decision of which the people disapprove.

Actually, there have been many drafts of a new amendment to the Constitution on the question of prayer in the schools, but there are some people in Congress who feel that maybe the problem can be solved another way. Rep. Celler, for example, points to a case in a Federal court in New York which upheld voluntary worship, and he says maybe the Supreme Court will uphold this concept before long.

Meanwhile, those who favor a Constitutional amendment are convinced that nothing is going to be done by the Supreme Court, and that the only way out is to adopt a new amendment.

The situation has been pointedly summed up by Dr. Charles Wesley Lowry, an Episcopal minister here who now is president of the Foundation for Religious Action in the Social and Civil Order. It was in questioning Dr. Lowry that Chairman Celler suggested a joint resolution to "advise" the Supreme Court. Dr. Lowry nevertheless stood by his testimony, as follows:

"The years 1962 and 1963 will appear to posterity as years of revolution in the relations of church and state, religion and government in the United States.

"The first stage was the decision which struck down the nonsectarian New York school prayer. As this prayer had been uniquely and inter-faith effort, developed by and under Catholic, Protestant, and Jewish leaders, its demolition created a furor. There was a tremendous outburst of indignation throughout the country. The great power elites of our society were aroused nearly as much as the plain people. For example, His Eminence Francis Cardinal Spellman denounced the decision in no uncertain terms. The eminent Protestant theologian Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr, criticized it in the pages of The New Leader. Bishop James A. Pike asserted that the Supreme Court had deconsecrated the nation. Another bishop, I am told, remarked that the court had enacted an Eleventh Commandment; Thou shalt not pray in school. Not a few Jewish teachers were disturbed, among them Rabbi Bernard Zlotowitz and Professor Will Herberg.

"The atmosphere also in both Houses of Congress was very heated. The most outspoken alarm and anger were voiced. The Senate Committee on the Judiciary proceeded almost immediately to hold hearings, which were published in a voluminous and informative volume.

"Then it was, Mr. Chairman, that something quite singular occurred. A combination educational and public relations campaign was initiated, aimed at explaining the court, smoothing down the ruffled feathers of the Congress, quieting the fears of the people, developing support for the extreme illberal outlook on issues of religion in the public schools, and generally preparing Americans for further and more decisive action by the highest court.

"Members of the Supreme Court themselves get into action to explain their decision—in itself an unusual act. They were joined by various eminent Protestant clergymen ,some as individual voices, others in concert. Many lawyers, civic leaders, publicists, and academicians as well as clergy of the major faiths, were drawn into the picture. By the early spring of 1963, when the Supreme Court heard new cases involving the Lord's Prayer and Bible-reading in public schools it was evident that a far-ranging and concerted movement, involving influential elements of key power structures in the country, as in full swing and that its weight was being directed to prepare and condition the American people for a still more definitive and sweeping development.

"The sequel we all know. In June, 1963, the highest court again struck hard. This time there was no technicality available about state officials having composed a prayer or usurping the role of a church. But this lack did not stay the reformatory broom of the justices. They again invoked the no-establishment clause and forbade as prohibited religious exercises saying the Lord's Prayer and reading from the Bible . . .

"So we come back to the remedy of a Constitutional amendment. I was originally reluctant to resort to it, because I am such a believer in the Constitution as we have known it . . . I am, however, now persuaded that an amendment is the only sure, clear, and definite answer. Without such an antidote, the present confusion and cross purposes among our people will increase. Ahead on this course lie treacherous morasses and beyond them an unfathomable abyss. In addition, I am persuaded that intolerance in our country is on the upgrade and I would like to see this quieted by the application of proper remedies rather than allowed to fester and become more inflamed."

Jim Bishop: Reporter

The pride of the prisoner humbled the captors. He stood quietly in the late morning sun, the wrists bound behind him, looking everywhere but up at the rope noose, swinging feebly in the September breeze. The fair, handsome face was alert, interested in the platoon of British grenadiers around him. He asked for a clergyman. The Provost Marshal declined. He asked for a Bible. It was refused.

The prisoner was a spy. His name was Nathan Hale. He was 21 years old, a captain in the colonial Continental Army. He watched the hangman steady a rickety ladder against the old oak, and climb it to gather the loose end of the rope in his hand. The place was 66th Street and Third Avenue, New York City, and the day was September 22, 1776.

Hale was born in Coventry, Conn. He was one of 12 children. They were all patriots, all interested in public affairs. Nathan's mother, Elizabeth Strong Hale, taught the youngsters to be unafraid to speak, unafraid to fight, unafraid to die.

The boy was 14 when he entered Yale College. In spite of his tender years, he was invited to join Linonia, a fraternity devoted to "literary exertion." Nathan was a dedicated reader, but he was also a dedicated athlete. He was 5 feet 9 inches tall, and he was a competitive sportsman at swimming, wrestling, football and track.

When he was 16, he made such a prodigious broad jump that the student body at Yale kept the marks and built a fence around them. He graduated when he was 18, and spent the summer with his uncle, Samuel Hale, at Portsmouth, N. H. There he fished and hunted with his first cousin, Sam.

The views of the boys were divergent. Nathan felt that the colonies should free themselves from Great Britain. Sam was equally certain that there was no better world than that of George III. In Sept. 1773, Nathan began to teach school in Connecticut. His manner was so engaging that he charmed the students and their parents. When the news of the Battle of Lexington reached New London, Nathan Hale made a speech which unified the community to fight for liberty.

On July 1, 1775, he became a lieutenant of militia. Within six months, he was a captain. Hale took part in the siege of Boston and, in a daring feat, stole a sloop loaded with food from under the guns of His Majesty's ship-of-the-line, Asia. The combination of bravery and calculated risk caused Colonel Thomas Knowlton to select him for service in his Rangers.

The British gave George Washington a bad mauling on Long Island. The Continental Army retreated to Harlem, and General Washington told Knowlton that he "had to know" the disposition of the British forces under General Howe. Would they pursue his crippled forces? Or would they retire for a rest in New York City?

Colonel Knowlton stood in front of his Rangers and asked for volunteers. No man moved. He called a second time. Nathan Hale stepped forward. Later, his friend Captain William Hull tried to dissuade him. "No," said Hale. "I wish to be useful, and every kind of service necessary to the public good becomes good, becomes honorable by being necessary."

Hale disguised himself as a school teacher and rode to a point above Hell Gate, hired two men to row him to Long Island at night and walked through the British lines. He counted the soldiers and units and they were few. Between Sept. 12th and the 21st, he made numerous drawings of forts, guardposts and roads in Queens and Brooklyn. Then he took a ferry to Manhattan and was proceeding north through the British lines when he was challenged.

Captain Hale was taken by grenadiers to the headquarters of General Howe. There, he was giving a good account of the life of a schoolteacher when he saw Howe's Deputy Commissioner of Prisoners. It was his cousin Sam. Hale surrendered. In one shoe was found sketches of British formations and forts. He stood erect and gave his name, his rank in the Continental Army, and the object of his mission.

General Howe ordered him to be hanged in the morning, without trial. The prisoner did not flinch. He asked permission to write two letters. Captain John Montresor, His Majesty's Chief Army engineer, stepped forward and offered Hale the use of his tent for the night. Nathan Hale wrote one letter to his brother Enoch; one to Col. Knowlton, who had been killed in action the day before.

When the hangman came down the ladder, the young prisoner with the fair hair and the sturdy legs, made a few remarks about liberty. None of the officers and men listened, except to the last sentence. None of them could ever forget the words, nor the peaceful manner of their utterance.

The rope was already around Nathan Hale's neck when he said: "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country." . . .

Britain was a Roman colony from A.D. 43 to A. D. 410. Its road system was laid out to meet the strategy of the conquest. The line of attack was fed by a series of roads radiating out from the Roman base at London.

Adm. Nomura Dies

Spoke of Peace As Japs Struck

TOKYO (AP)—Adm. Kichisaburo Nomura, Japan's ambassador to the United States when his country attacked Pearl Harbor, died today after a long illness. He was 86.

Stiff Tongue-Lashing

Nomura and special envoy Saburo Kurusu received one of the stiffest tongue-lashings in diplomatic annals when they arrived at the State Department on Dec. 7, 1941 bringing Japan's rejection of the latest U.S. peace formula. Bombs had just begun falling on the Pacific outpost.

Seething with anger, Secretary of State Cordell Hull kept Nomura and Kurusu waiting 15 minutes in an anteroom.

They entered Hull's office smiling and bowing and handed him the Japanese note. He read it slowly, without betraying his fury, even at the sentence, "The immutable policy of Japan is to promote world peace."

Then Hull exploded, telling the two shocked envoys:

"In all my 50 years of public service, I have never seen a document that was more crowded with infamous falsehoods and distortions — infamous falsehoods and distortions on a scale so huge that I never imagined until today that any government on this planet was capable of uttering them."

Nomura, who had been assigned to Washington nine months earlier, repeatedly denied any advance knowledge of the attack which brought the United States into World War II.

"I must have been the worst-informed ambassador in history," he said on a visit to the United States in 1953.

U.S. officials generally accepted Nomura's denial and did not press for his prosecution as a war criminal.

A tall soft-spoken career navy officer, Nomura was drafted for the diplomatic assignment because he was known in Washington as an advocate of peace with the United States.

In the postwar years, he was a business executive. He was elected to the Japanese Senate in 1959, and he opposed the leftist campaign against the U.S.-Japan Security Treaty.

His health failed in recent years and he was under treatment for a brain ailment. He is survived by his widow and a son.

Battle Canada's Fires

TORONTO (AP)—Firefighters battled blazes across Eastern Canada's parched forests today with little help expected from the elements.

One of 24 Ontario fires was raging out of control in Algonquin Park 140 miles northwest of Ottawa. The army was standing by in Quebec. Nova Scotians finally gained the upper hand in battles with 50 blazes.

Rigaud, 40 miles northwest of Montreal, was threatened as strong winds pushed a fire along a two-mile front to within three-quarters of a mile of the town.

Power Fails as Jeep Parachutes to Line

FORT WALTON BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Suburban residents searched for almost an hour before they found the cause of an electricity failure Thursday.

When two employes of the city golf course located the trouble, no one believed them.

A jeep from an Air Force C130 cargo plane apparently fell out of the aircraft and parachuted onto a power line.

A spokesman from the Tactical Air Warfare Center at Eglin Air Force Base said the jeeps are normally secured in the plane.

No one was injured. A power company workman said the lines were only burned.

Wharton Opposes Flight Service Station Closing

Twenty-five statements were presented recently by Congressman J. Ernest Wharton (R-28th District) to officials of the Federal Aviation Agency and the Weather Bureau in Washington in vigorous plea against closing the Flight Service Station at the Dutchess County Airport.

It was reported that most of the statements quoted by Congressman Wharton referred to the peril involved in removing the Flight Service Station and replacing it with a remote control system.

Charles A. McKinnon, manager of the IBM Flight Operations at the Dutchess airport in New Hackensack, was quoted as saying, "I feel that this program of closing Flight Service Stations is really a political play by the FAA which has picked this issue as the one that is most likely to cause the flying public to place the largest protest."

Harold Hurst, a Millbrook farmer pilot who long has used the service, said, "I like to see my tax dollar spent wisely, but not at the expense of someone's life, and it may be your own if you ever fly this way."

21 Appointments Made, 12 Resign

Local School Board Is Out of Co-op Bidding

Members of the Board of Education of the Kingston School District (Consolidated) at a regular meeting Wednesday night, voted to withdraw from an informal agreement entered into with seven other school districts for cooperative bidding on paper and duplicating supplies.

The Board approved 21 professional appointments on recommendation of Superintendent of Schools W. Wendell Hoover, and accepted 12 resignations with regret.

Can Save Alone

Some time ago the board of education entered into an informal agreement with the boards of education of seven other districts for cooperative bidding of paper requirements and duplicating supplies. The other districts were Onteora, Wallkill, Ellenville, New Paltz, Rondout Valley, Saugerties and Highland Central School Districts.

The Kingston board contends that results of cooperative bidding, on the basis of bids received, do not appear to be to the advantage of the taxpayers of the Kingston School District.

It was noted that informal quotations received by the school district's business office indicate a considerable saving to be possible, if the Kingston district purchases these supplies individually.

A resolution to withdraw from its informal agreement with the seven other districts, was unanimously passed at last night's meeting of the board, which authorized Richard V. Roth, business manager, to secure bids for the Kingston School District requirements of paper and duplicating supplies for the school year 1964-65.

Appointments Made

Professional appointments approved on probation were: Mrs. Emma Aduchefsky, Miss Carol Cerny, Mrs. Joanne Coutant, Mrs. Lorraine Denis, William Gruner III, Miss Mary Jesinger, Miss Mary Ann Kennedy, Mrs. Mary M. McMickle, Mrs. Alice Pedersen, all elementary teachers; Miss Susan Alexander, physical education; Mrs. Selma DiMuccio, art teacher.

Others appointed were: Science teachers — Peter Castka, John Halvorson, James P. Martyn, and Miss Alice E. Post; Math teachers — Miss Nancy Jo-An Nichols, Mrs. Joanne E. Petramale; English teachers — Miss Paulette Tirc, Miss Susan Umpleby.

Mrs. Viola M. Haggerty was appointed a nurse-teacher, and Nicholas Hondrocostas a social studies teacher.

On recommendation of Dr. Hoover, the board appointed William A. Scafidi as summer high school principal during the summer of 1964. Gabriel Porto was named assistant football coach at M.J.M. School, with a differential in salary of $150.

Resignations Accepted

Resignations accepted with regret included: Mrs. Alice Cross, elementary teacher at Tillson; Thomas J. Giroux, math teacher at Kingston High School; John G. Glennon, art teacher; Thomas Guerriero, elementary supervisor; Frances M. Lake, elementary teacher, Chambers School; Miss Lorraine Lawrence, elementary teacher, Tillson; Miss Nora O'Sullivan, elementary teacher, George Washington School; Miss Lois Prescott, guidance counsellor; Mrs. Louise B. Smith and Gordon E. Eaton, science teachers, MJM school; Miss Georgette R. Dunn, physical education teacher, and Mrs. Viola Opdahl, social studies teacher.

Leaves of absence were approved for Mrs. Marianne Darrow, speech therapist, June 30, 1964 to Sept. 1, 1965; Mrs. Barbara K. Shulman, elementary teacher, June 30, 1964 to June 30, 1965, and Mrs. Veronica Corcoran, elementary teacher, June 30, 1964 to Sept. 1, 1965.

Civil Service terminations and resignations approved: Adolph Scholl, cleaner; Barbara Scheffel, Teri Debrosky Smurl, stenographers; Florence Milano and James A. McCoy, food service helpers; Virginia Robinson, school lunch driver.

New Employes:

Other appointments approved were: Jacob F. Boss, cleaner; Patricia Larkin, a student, clerical with Project Able; Rose Tsitsera, stenographer in MJM School guidance office; Roger S. Jones, school lunch driver, and John Nilsen, a student, high school stage lighting as needed.

The board approved a change in job classification for Mrs. Rose Hopper from machine operator in the business office to payroll clerk.

Flags Fly for Sam

DECORAH, Iowa (AP)— Somebody flubbed and flags in honor of VE Day, the day of Allied victory in Europe during World War II, were put up a day in advance Thursday.

When people telephoned Bill Walker, Chamber of Commerce manager, and Bob Bernatz, street commissioner, they were told:

"Today the flags are being flown in honor of Sam Sande's birthday. They also will be flown tomorrow in honor of VE Day."

Sam was a member of the crew that put up the flags.

Cain Company Plans Largest Ad Campaign

BOSTON, Mass — The John E. Cain Company has unveiled its largest advertising and promotion campaign in the 50-year history of the company as the highlight of its Jubilee Anniversary celebration.

The observance, which was attended by over 800 employes, both wives and husbands, and distributors, was marked by many awards and citations. Mrs. Winifred Cain, widow of John E. Cain who founded the company in 1914, was presented a 50-year pin by her son, Robert H. Cain, president, for "her continous unselfish service to the company for a half century. She also was presented 50 yellow roses by the employes and a gold mantle clock by the officers of the company.

Secretaries of the Retail Grocers Associations throughout New England, representing more than 20,000 retail grocers, presented President Cain a scroll citation for "his outstanding contribution to the New England Grocery Industry."

A complete "new look" in package design and corporate identification was revealed for the first time by Robert Cain. A striking, modern-looking label design of the word "Cains" has been created to tie the complete line together. All corporate communications used by the company will include a new and different corporate signature.

Advertising plans spelled out during the sales meeting include large space newspaper advertising and television commercials.

Today's Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—More jobs are opening up as the economy expands. But the percentage of those in the labor force that can't find work stays stubbornly high.

Jobs Not Enough

Just adding 750,000 more jobs in April—nicely above the usual seasonal trend—isn't enough.

Some years back an unemployment rate of 4 per cent of the labor force was considered too much. Now government officials are happy when they can report it's under 5.5 per cent. Somewhat wistfully they talk of chances of getting it below 5 per cent maybe by next year.

The labor force is the total at any one time of those with jobs or looking for them. The unemployment rate is the percentage of this total that reports it wants to work but can't find a job.

The number of those with jobs keeps rising. It's now above 70 million, some 1.8 million more than a year ago.

But the labor force keeps rising just as fast or faster.

Part of this is due to the much discussed population explosion—the fact that now, and in the next few years, increasing numbers of young people will be reaching the job-holding or job-seeking age.

Attractive Jobs for Some

But in recent months a growing prosperity has increased the labor force from another source. Attractive jobs are opening up now and luring those who aren't interested at other times. They enter the labor force or drop out as the kind of work they like or can handle expands or declines in their communities.

Modern home appliances have made it possible for more married women to handle both housework and outside jobs.

Also complicating any assessment of the nation's labor picture is a growing amount of moonlighting in recent years. This is the holding of more than one job by the same person. Often this is to gain much needed additional income. But often it is to lift the family into a higher status, to provide desired gadgets or more expensive vacations.

Colony Liquor Is Buying 11 Acre Cider Mill Tract

Purchase of an 11-acre tract on Flatbush Avenue, formerly the Deyo Cider Mill, by Vincent J. Andretta of the Colony Liquor Distributors Inc., of Kingston and Albany, was expected to be finalized today.

It was reported that a building will be constructed, containing 45,000 square feet of floor space, which will be utilized as a warehouse and offices for the Colony Liquor Distributors Inc.

A firm spokesman reportedly noted the location will produce a possible nucleus for an industrial park, a good site for industries.

Troopers Step Up 31 to Sergeant

Arthur Cornelius Jr., superintendent of New York State Police, today announced the promotion of 31 state troopers to the rank of sergeant. The troopers are presently assigned to stations in various parts of the state and will assume their new duties on May 18.

The 31 troopers successfully completed a recent examination for sergeant, and comprise the third group promoted to that office in a move to provide more trained men for first line of supervisory duty in the state police department.

Prior to being assigned to new substations in their new office, the 31 men will attend a comprehensive course of training at the State Police Academy for two weeks. This training is in line with the continued improvement in the department for preparing officers for their assignment in higher posts.

Troopers promoted in the Troop C area were: T. J. Chura, Steve Kurpil, L. W. Merritt formerly of the Phoenicia substation under Sergeant H. S. Rhodes, W. L. Pettite, D. C. Ellis, R. W. Richard Rauch, who is being transferred to Troop G, and E. C. Matthewson, who is being transferred to the Troop D Thruway detail.

Can Will Face Firing Squad in Saigon Saturday

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Ngo Dinh Can, younger brother of the late President Ngo Dinh Diem and former viceroy of central Viet Nam, is to die before a firing squad in a Saigon prison Saturday.

Can, 53, who ruled the northern capital of Hue and surrounding provinces with an iron hand until his brother was overthrown last November, was convited last month of murder.

A military tribunal also convicted him of corruption, extortion and abusing his power in addition to ordering the torture death of three persons in 1956, 1957 and 1958.

Can, member of a family dominant in South Viet Nam for a decade until all except him were killed or exiled, maintained he was innocent.

Cambodia Kayoes Viet Armored Car

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A Cambodian tank knocked out a Vietnamese armored personnel carrier on the border today and captured the vehicle and its crew.

Military sources said at least 10 other Vietnamese vehicles were poised on the frontier, ready to move in and retake the personnel carrier if ordered to do so. It appeared doubtful, however, that the order would be given.

Cambodia charged that 13 South Vietnamese armored vehicles crossed its border Thursday and attacked the village of Taey, in southeastern Cambodia two miles inside the frontier.

Military authorities in Phnom Penh, capital of Cambodia, said a rural guard and five villagers were killed at Taey.

No Americans were involved in the new border incident.

Informants said the Cambodian tank apparently was lying in wait and opened up on the Vietnamese armored car with a salvo.

The tank then quickly moved up to the stricken vehicle, the sources said, and Cambodian soldiers surrounded it. Vietnamese at the scene did not report seeing any casualties.

Orlow Kent Killed

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanganyika (AP)—Orlow Kent, director of the American Society of Friends' Service Committee in Tanganyika, and Rebecca Tatum, wife of the committee's central African representative, were killed in an automobile crash Wednesday.

Mrs. Tatum's husband, Lyle, and their son, Steve, 16, were dragged to safety through the rear window of the blazing car.

Tatum and his family arrived in Dar Es Salaam by air only a few hours before the accident.

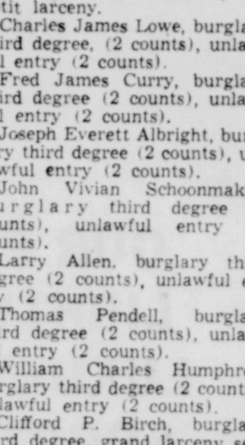

Playwright to Direct

NEW YORK (AP) — John Patrick, a Pulitzer Prize playwright with "The Teahouse of the August Moon," is returning temporarily to stage directing. He is set to stage "Balloon Going Up," a comedy by Sol Saks, for summer tour prior to Broadway exhibit. Patrick last directed a White Way play in 1947 with his "The Trial of Mary Surratt."

N. H. Clamps Down on Woods

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Restrictions on the use of the woods in New Hampshire have been severely tightened as a result of the very dry conditions which have greatly increased the forest fire danger in New England.

Gov. John W. King signed a proclamation Thursday banning smoking in the woods.

New Hampshire already had limited activities in the woods due to the drought buildup the Weather Bureau says won't be relieved by rain soon.

New Hampshire had a prior ban on permits for woods fires. Massachusetts closed the 1,800-acre Mt. Tom reservation in the Holyoke area Thursday and many main communities have issued bans on all outdoor fires.

Vermont State Forester Albert Gottlieb said conditions in the Vermont woods were the worst they have been in the last six springs. He said he would recommend that the woods be closed if there is a substantial outbreak of fires. Outdoor fires are banned in the state.

Reverse Hatred Trend, Is Advice on Nixon

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon says the civil rights cause is suffering "from the effect of allowing its leadership to fall into the hands of irresponsible extremists."

They are creating race hate which is endangering civil rights legislation, he said Thursday night.

Uncalled for demonstrations and boycotts have created "a wall of race hatred" in northern metropolitan centers, Nixon said.

"Now this hatred has developed so that any law might not be worth the paper it is written on," he declared. "A law is only as good as the will of the people to obey it."

"What we need now is to reverse this trend of hatred," he told a Brotherhood dinner during a speech in which he called for "an offensive to create understanding and personal responsibility."

Reds Back Sukarno

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Indonesia, which has built the mightiest war machine in Southeast Asia with Soviet aid, has a new promise of Soviet help in its drive to crush Malaysia.

The official news agency Antara said today Soviet Ambassador N. A. Michailov promised "the Soviet government will keep on helping the Indonesian people in their campaign to crush the neo-colonialist project of Malaysia."

"The Soviet support to the Indonesian struggle is concrete and not merely in words," Michailov said.

It was not clear whether this meant the Soviet government would increase the 1961 arms deal which provided Indonesia with $1 billion in modern Soviet weapons, including jet fighters and missiles.

Kindergarten Registration Is Set for May 16

Ronald P. Vanni, Director of Elementary Education at the Onteora Central Schools, has announced that kindergarten registration for next September will be held on Saturday, May 16, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 12 noon at the Reginald R. Bennett School, Boiceville, and the West Hurley elementary school, West Hurley.

Registration will be from 1 to 4 p. m. at the Woodstock elementary school in Woodstock.

Letters will be mailed during the week of May 4 informing parents of the registration location for their child. Children should generally be registered in the building they will attend in the fall. Children who will be attending the new Phoenicia School, however, should register at the Bennett School, Boiceville. Newcomers to the area may call the Bennett School, Boiceville, to determine the building at which their child should be registered.

Must Furnish Proof

In order to be eligible for kindergarten in September 1964, a child must be five years old on or before December 1, 1964. Proof of the childs birthdate in the form of a birth or baptismal certificate and records of vaccination and immunization and a completed health history form should be presented when the child is registered. Health history forms will be mailed in the letters informing parents of the registration location.

The 1964-65 editions of Onteora's kindergarten and Health Department's booklets will be distributed on registration day. The booklets, revised annually by staff members, contain information of interest to parents and will serve as a handy reference throughout the yar. A physical examination of the child will also be distributed. The teacher, school nurse, and principal will be available to answer questions. The children will have the opportunity to tour the building, visit their classroom and meet their teacher and future classmates.

Promotions Set By Fire Company

Three new promotions were announced at the May meeting of Woodstock Fire Company No. 1 by Fire Chief George Haythorne.

Duncan Wilson, who was appointed Deputy Fire Chief by the fire commissioners, tendered his resignation as first lieutenant. The vacancy was filled by elevating 2nd lieutenant Peter Koehn to first lieutenant.

Bruce Reynolds was elected to fill Koehn's unexpired term as second lieutenant.

The company also voted to purchase a 2,200-gallon tank truck to improve service at locations where there is no water available or only a limited supply.

The chief's monthly report revealed that April was a busy month for the firefighters. There were 14 alarms during the month classified as two building fires, eight brush fires, two oil burner fires and two false alarms.

Captain Robert Breitenstein reported that the company held a fire drill on the Bearsville flats. There were two phases in the drill. The first section consisted of setting fire to 200 gallons of oil and then notifying the company by radio. The truck was dispatched to the scene of the fire. The hose was laid, pumper connected to the hydrant and the pump stream extinguished the blaze.

The second section was the setting up of a 1,000-gallon canvas portable tank and filling it with water. The water was then pumped from the portable tank to the tank of the pumper and used to put out the fire. He further stated that there was a good turnout, as the men were still in the firehouse, having just returned from brush fire calls received while they were getting ready for the drill.

Women's League Adopts Rights Study for Year

Mrs. Alvin E. Moscowitz, president of the Woodstock League of Women Voters and its delegate to the national convention of the League of Women Voters of the United States held in Pittsburgh, Pa., April 20-24, today announced the 1964-1966 National League Program adopted at the convention.

A new study item was chosen entitled Development of Human Resources: Evaluation of U. S. policies and programs to provide for all citizens equality of opportunity for education and employment.

The League is concerned with people who may not be able to share in the American way of life and feels that education and employment are a logical starting point for this item. Study possibly could include youth employment, older people and automation, productive vocations, responsibility of the Nation toward people in certain areas, availability of employment opportunities, racial discontent, and other related problems.

Continue Studies

The League will continue their study of (1) United Nations: Support of U. S. policies which strengthen the U.N. system and its ability to keep peace; (2) Foreign Economic Policy: Support of U. S. policies which promote world economic development, maintain a sound U. S. economy, and further international and regional cooperation; and (3) Water Resources: Support of National policies and procedures which promote comprehensive long-range planning for conservation and development of Water Resources.

The League is retaining as their continuing responsibilities the past studies on (1) Loyalty Security: Support of standardized procedures, "common sense" judgement, and greatest possible protection for the individual under the federal loyalty-security programs; opposition to extension of such programs to nonsensitive position; (2) District of Columbia: Support of self-government and representation in Congress for citizens of the District of Columbia; (3) Tax Rates: Opposition to Constitutional limitations on tax rates; and (4) Treaty Making: Opposition to Constitutional changes that would limit the existing powers of the Executive and the Congress over foreign relations.

The League, as an organization, backs only issues on which they have taken a position which is decided on after careful and independent study and discussion by its members.

At Kingston Airport

Gale Brownlee First Woman Accredited as Private Pilot

A Woodstock glamour girl and professional model, is the first woman flier to be accredited for a private pilot's license at the Carroll Air Service.

Gale Brownlee, a native of Woodstock who started flying in September, 1963, in Kingston, is also her instructor's first female student to get a license. The instructor, Henry Cramer, resides in Jewitt, N. Y.

She had taken several jaunts in planes before taking a formal lesson. She soloed on election day, then went to Florida for a week and took additional instruction at the Tilford Flying Service at Palm Beach International.

The private pilot's license arrived on April 10, just under seven months after her first lesson.

She attended ground school in Kingston Airport and now plans to strive for higher ratings, commercial, instruments, etc.

Miss Brownlee has been signally honored by an invitation to join the 99ers, a nationally recognized women's club. She hopes to race as a co-pilot in the annual Powder Puff Derby, if not this year, certainly next year.

The longest cross country jaunt she has attempted so far was to Annapolis, Maryland. She has also been to many other airports around the eastern United States and this past weekend flew up to Burlington, Vt.

The name of her plane, Cessna 172, is "Skyhawk."

Miss Brownlee is also well known in ski circles in the area, as a competitor and writer of ski activities. But this new flying career is the most exciting thing that has happened to her. And in a footnote she adds: "Don't forget to point out that it took a Woodstockian to get the first woman's private pilot's license in this part of the country.

Her offer to take a spin in Skyhawk has been taken under advisement.

Mt. Marion Group Asks Town Board For Assistance

Residents of Mt. Marion Park housing development presented a problem to Saugerties Town Board Thursday night regarding the maintenance of roads in the park, the mall, the flag pole and the picnic beach area.

In a letter signed by 10 families in the park, four situations were outlined in which the group ask the board for assistance.

The letter said the roads in the park are in poor condition; the mall where the flag pole stands needs grass cutting, the flag pole is rusted and the picnic area is in bad shape and requires maintenance.

The board suggested that the group attend a future meeting for a full discussion of the matter.

Thomas R. Trainer, senior building constuction engineer of the State Building Codes Bureau presented the State Building Code for consideration by the board.

Superintendent of Highways William R. Brown told the board that in response to many requests for a full stop sign at the Route 212 intersection with Mt. Marion Road, he is contacting the State Department of Public Works to remedy the situation. The dangerous condition of the intersection was noted.

Scout Pack 130 Has Inspection

The annual uniform inspection, advancements in rank, arrow awards, and induction of two new Cubs were the highlights of the April meeting of Pack 130 at Trinity Episcopal Parish House.

Opening ceremonies were conducted by Den 4.

Cubmaster Thomas Farnham welcomed the guests and parents and announced the schedule of events for the meeting. After the roll call, Farnham introduced John Carlson and William Poythrus from Rip Van Winkle Council who were to conduct the annual inspection. Each Den received a thorough inspection for general neatness and grooming plus a close examination for uniform correctness.

Pack honors went to Den 1 who scored the highest per cent grade for the inspection. However, Dens 2, 3, and 4 were close behind and Mr. Carlson announced that the per cent grades for all dens were very high.

During the inspection the group was entertained with a piano solo by Richard Mandt of Den 1.

Following the inspection, Den 3 directed by Mrs. Lorraine Whittaker entertained the attendance with an original skit on "Beatles" showing the similarity in the garden variety and the more common and recently publicized singing variety.

Advancement ceremonies conducted by Farnham included induction of two new cubs, three advancements to Wolf, advancement to Bear, and Lion and arrow awards to seven cubs.

Awards were as follows: Bobcats, Paul Gosseth and Donald Courselle; Wolf, David Connard, Robert Shultis and Richard Lorenz; Bear, Mark Warfel and Lion, Thomas Cole.

Arrow awards were presented to Fred Maldanado, gold; James Myers, silver; Carlton Whittaker, two silver, Douglas Smith, two silver; Richard Lorenz, gold, and Robert Shultis, one gold and two silver.

Farnham announced the next pack meeting would be held May 29, and the theme would be "Indians." He also announced that there are two vacancies on the pack committee and any interested cub father should contact the committee chairman, John Warfel.

The meeting was formally closed by the cubmaster and refreshments served.

Class of 1939 Reunion Dinner Attended by 113

Saugerties High School Class of 1939 left its mark of accomplishments on the school and the community, it was revealed at a reunion dinner last week at The Flamingo Restaurant attended by 113.

The Sawyer's Reunion name was adopted for the occasion by the committee in order to include the entire class of 1939, as some had to leave before graduation. The committee pointed out that this was a depression year and some students had to leave and go to work before graduation.

Guests included Dr. Grant D. Morse, who was superintendent of schools; Mrs. Morse; High School Principal David Cunningham, who taught science and math at that time; Mrs. Cunningham; Maurice Clements and Mrs. Leona Hogan Clements, who was class advisor; Transportation Supervisor Lawrence Cahill, who was athletic coach; Mrs. Cahill, and Donald Lockwood, who was music teacher.

A moment of silent prayer was observed for the eight deceased members. The committee nounced that it had made 100 per cent contact with all graduates of the class.

Richard Smith, toastmaster welcomed the guests and introduced William Bleidner, of Delaware, class president, who delivered the welcoming address.

Mrs. Emily Ricci Spada traced plans for the reunion and said the class had changed the school ring by adding a stone; initiated the use of spiral binding on the Sawyer, an innovation 25 years ago; launched Mrs. Leona Clements as class advisor, a post she held until her retirement.

The Alma Mater song was published in 1939 and the class was happy to have Mr. Lockwood, its composer at the piano while they joined in singing it as a finale to the event.

Mrs. Ellen Gunderson Wolfe was recognized as the member who traveled the farthest to attend, from Bellaire, Ohio. She was editor-in-chief of the Sawyer yearbook.

Others on the committee not already mentioned include Joseph Pfleghaar, who gave a rather hilarious treasurer's report; Dorothy Calder Gade, Mary Frisbie Bonack, Mildred Newkirk, Dorothy Hennegan Stauss, Robert Youngs, Frank C. Sloboda, Ernest R. Ackert, Rhoda Hommel Mower.

Mrs. Spada and Richard Smith were co-chairmen; Catherine and Dean Van Etten were in charge of name tags and Virginia Shackett Gilmore made table decorations.

In conjunction with the reunion, an ambitious souvenir journal was published including a memoriam page listing deceased members and a complete roster listing names and ages of children and present occupations.

Stratton Backed By Nine More Counties, 22 Now

NEW YORK (AP) — Nine more Upstate counties have announced support of Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., for the U.S. Senate, according to a Stratton spokesman.

That brings the total of counties in Stratton's corner to 22, the spokesman added.

The announcement said the counties whose Democratic committees announced their support Thursday were Onondaga (Syracuse), Lewis, Delaware, Jefferson, Madison, Chenango, Cortland, Otsego and Cattaraugus.

Earlier statements by New York City leaders were interpreted as indicating opposition to Stratton as an opponent for incumbent Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y.

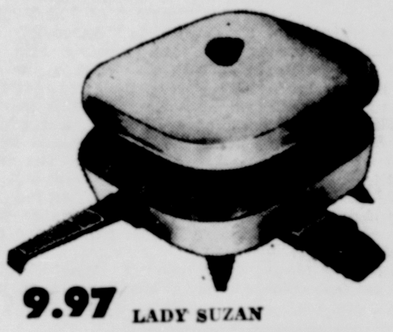

Stratton is regarded as an unannounced candidate for the nomination.

Court Decision Favors DeSapio, Orders New Vote

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Carmine G. DeSapio, former leader of Tammany Hall and one-time power in the national Democratic party, was embarked today on another attempt at a political comeback, thanks to the state's highest court.

The Court of Appeals, in a unanimous decision Thursday, ordered a new primary election in the contest in which DeSapio lost his bid to regain the Democratic leadership of the 1st Assembly District in Manhattan.

When he lost that post in 1961 to Edward I. Koch, a reform movement Democrat, DeSapio became ineligible to continue as chairman of the New York County (Manhattan) Democratic Committee—Tammany Hall.

After he was declared the loser to Koch last year by 41 votes, out of more than 9,000, DeSapio went to court to seek a new election. He contended that 65 invalid ballots had been cast in the first election.

Lower courts upheld DeSapio's challenge of 35 ballots but said 30 others were valid.

DeSapio had contended the 65 ballots could not be counted because the voters had failed to sign registration records at the polling places.

The court of appeals agreed that "the votes so cast were invalid..."

But the court said it could not declare DeSapio the winner because the irregularities made it impossible to determine who had been elected.

The high court ordered the State Supreme Court in which the case originated to arrange a new election and set a date.

A series of photos shows objects made of blue stone by local craftsmen during the town's quarrying years.

Whitehead Photos

Photos of Ralph Radcliffe Whitehead and the buildings which he began to erect at Byrdcliffe in 1902 are included. The coming of the Art Students League, outdoor sketching classes with John Carlson teaching, the activities of Woodstock's art students of many years ago are shown in a series of photographs never before exhibited. They were taken by the late Sam Wylie about 1912. A panoramic photograph of participants in one of the Maverick Festivals of the 1920's shows many people still active in Woodstock life in imaginative costumes.

To many people, the most interesting of all the photographs in the exhibition will be a remarkable portrait of Hervey White as a young man. It's thought to have been taken by the well known photographer and one time resident of Byrdcliffe, Eva Watson Schuetze.

The entire exhibition has been arranged by Alf Evers, Woodstock Town Historian, with the assistance of Leon Carey and Walter Peters. Many Woodstock people helped by lending material or giving information.

Easy to Bid, Hard to Make

BY OSWALD JACOBY

There are any number of ways for South to reach seven hearts. I suppose that many of the players in the Inter-collegiate Bridge Tournament reached that contract.

But I also doubt if many of them made it although the play is clear-cut even if you aren't looking at all 52 cards.

South wins the opening club lead in dummy and wants to get to his own hand to pull trumps. He cashes dummy's ace of spades and ruffs a spade with the seven or eight of trumps.

Then he lays down a high trump and gets a slight jolt. West fails to follow.

Still, if South has gone this far, he should be able to go the rest of the way, provided he can get back to dummy. If he tries to get there with a club, he will go right down. Undoubtedly, he will lead a diamond and once he is in dummy he is home free.

He will start by cashing dummy's remaining high spade and will discard his last diamond.

Then he will play high diamonds. If East ruffs, South will simply overruff and draw trumps. If East fails to ruff, South will discard clubs. Eventually both he and East will be down to nothing but trumps. East will have to ruff a club, but South will overruff.

N. Y. Naturalists Find Cranes Out of Habitat

LOCKPORT, N.Y. (AP)—Authorities at the Iroquois National Wildlife Refuge are puzzled by the presence of four demoiselle cranes.

The natural habitat of the cranes is North Africa, the Near East and Southern Europe.

The Buffalo Audubon Society identified the birds, said to resemble American blue herons.

Lawrence Smith, chief of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service at the refuge said he does not know whether the cranes can survive New York State climate. He believes the birds may have escaped from a zoo or someone's private preserve.

CHARLES H. GAFFNEY JR.

Named Selectee To Boys' State

A Kingston High School junior, Charles H. Gaffney Jr., son of Attorney and Mrs. Charles H. Gaffney, was recently named one of 10 selectees chosen by members of the school faculty to attend American Legion Boys' State.

Boys' State sessions will be held the last week in June at Colgate University, Hamiliton.

He will attend under the sponsorship of Kingston Post 150, American Legion.

His extra-curricular activities include membership and treasurer of the Ski Club; membership in the Key Club, Hi-Y, French Society and Junior Class Executive Council.

Districts May

ten by Chief Judge Charles S. Desmond, the Court of Appeals referred to this reasoning of the Appellate Division.

It also noted, however, that the school board's attendance plan did not exclude pupils from any school since the only pupils assigned to the new school had not attended any junior high previously.

"The plan...excludes no one from any school and has no tendency to foster or produce racial segregation," the opinion said.

To the contention of the protesting parents that the new school was not their "neighborhood" school, the court said their homes were "within walking distance of new School 275 and nearer to—or at least no farther from — School 275 than School 285."

Dissenting Opinion

The dissent was written by Associate Judge John Van Voorhis, who argued that the school board's action in drawing the attendance lines to achieve racial balance was "the reverse of anti-discrimination."

"The principle of anti-discrimination is that each person shall be treated without regard to race, religion or national origin," he said. "If persons can legally be admitted because they belong to (minority) groups, then they can be excluded for the same reason."

Ben Is Back, Forgetting

NEW YORK (AP) — Ben Gazzara, who starred in last year's revival of O'Neill's "Strange Interlude," returns next to Broadway as a victim of strange amnesia. Gazzara has signed for "Traveller Without Luggage," an ironic drama by Jean Anouilh, that is marked in for Sept. 17 Broadway arrival.

Drugged Attaches Leave for Rest, To Return Later

MOSCOW (AP)—Two of the American military attaches who said they were drugged in Odessa left today for Leningrad and Finland.

An American Embassy spokesman said they were going to Helsinki, the Finnish capital, for a brief holiday and would return to Moscow.

The attaches are Air Force Lt. Col. William L. Van Meter and Marine Lt. Col. James M. Landrigan.

A third American who said he was drugged, U.S. Navy Cmdr. Summer Shapario, remained on duty in Moscow.

The embassy disclosed Thursday night that it had protested to the Soviet government that the three officers were drugged March 25 while on a trip to the Black Sea port of Odessa, where American ships have been docking with wheat shipments.

The British Foreign Office announced that an assistant British naval attache, Lt. Cmdr. John Harvey-Samuel, was with the Americans and also was drugged. The British joined in the American protest.

British sources said Harvey-Samuel and his wife also had left Moscow, for Warsaw but the sources said they left their year-old son with his English nurse and would return.

The attaches reported they felt unusually drowsy after dinner. The State Department said medical tests showed the men had been given enough barbiturates to cause drowsiness. They suffered no physical harm, however, the department said.

U.S. officials said they did not know of any theft of documents or attempts to compromise the attaches while they were asleep in their hotel rooms.

Last February, two U.S. naval attaches were harassed by a mob in Leningrad. In March, two U.S. Air Force attaches and a British air force attache were surrounded by a mob in Tula. These incidents also were protested, and a U.S. Embassy spokesman said the embassy suspected both mobs were "inspired" by Soviet officials.

Senate Is Taking Saturday Off, CR Pressure Easing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders announced there would be no session Saturday in the civil rights debate. It was another sign that pressure through prolonged sessions was easing off.

Senators applauded when Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., the assistant leader, said the Senate would recess at the close of today's business until Monday.

The Senate has met every Saturday since the debate started March 9 except for the Easter weekend.

Tories Lose More

LONDON (AP)—Heavy gains in local elections increased the opposition Labor party's prospects today for victory in Britain's general election this fall.

Results from all but three of the 358 boroughs that voted Thursday gave labor a gain of 254 seats on borough councils, the great majority from Conservatives and pro-Conservative independents.

The Conservatives showed a loss of 132. Laborites won control of 10 towns, including the industrial centers of Portsmouth and Darlington.

Truman, 80 Today

whether that was the way to handle hounds, Truman asked:

"Have you ever had any hounds?"

"No," the newsman said.

"Then what the hell are you hollering about?" Truman said. "That's the way to handle hounds."

Many events are on Truman's schedule today, including an off the cuff talk National Press Club and a dinner meeting with old buddies of the famous World War II Truman investigating committee.

But it is unlikely that any will surpass an event of Thursday when Truman got the Grand Golden Cross of Austria in the plush home of the Austrian ambassador.

Truman on this occasion proved himself adept at shifting from bourbon to champagne and back again without stripping a gear.

Praised by Platzer

The ambassador, Dr. Wilfried Platzer, presented him the magnificent decoration as both men stood under an oil painting of Archduchess Christine, favorite daughter of Empress Maria Theresa of the Hapsburgs.

The ambassador praised Truman for helping rebuild Austria after World War II and keep it free.

Last stop for Truman Thursday night was a dinner of the Washington Masons where he got the award for distinguished service from the grand lodge of the district.

He sent the Masons by confiding that although a lot of hard things had been said about him "I don't give a damn as long as they can't prove them."

Much to Be Cut

office equipment under a new contract.

2. Instructional services.

a. Free Textbooks. Section 703 of the State Education Law provides these may be furnished only when authorized by the voters. However, under section 701 textbooks may be rented or sold to pupils in accordance with rules or regulations established by the board of education. If free textbooks have been provided in the past, new textbooks may be acquired to supplement the stock on hand. In such case a rental charge must be made for all books both new and old.

b. Student workbooks.

c. Pupil instructional supplies such as pencils, paper and art even though uniformity is educationally desirable.

d. Conference expenses of teachers and administrators, except for teachers' conferences called by superintendents and State School Boards Association, as authorized by board of education.

3. Operation of plant.

a. Use of school buildings by outside organizations.

4. Auxiliary agencies.

a. Transportation of pupils. No transportation can be furnished unless it is ordered by the Commissioner of Education as a result of an appeal to him pursuant to Section 310 of the State Education Law. The Commissioner has no authority under the statute to order transportation for elementary pupils (K through 8) who live less than two miles from the school they attend and for secondary pupils (9 through 12) who lives less than three miles from the school they attend, except in the case of physically handicapped children. The maximum distance that the Commissioner will order for non-public school pupils is at present 8 miles. If the voters authorized a long-term transportation contract at some previous time, the money to defray the annual payment of such a contract could be raised by the board without further appropriation by the voters; in such an event the long-term contract would be carried out in accordance with the provisions thereof.

b. Transportation and maintenance of interscholastic athletic teams.

c. Pupil uniforms whether for athletic activities or otherwise.

d. Cafeteria and school lunch operation, whether or not it is considered self-supporting.

Lack of Interest Blamed

"Lack of Interest" on the part of the school district voters were cited as a "possible' cause for the failure of district voters to approve the 1963-64 budget.

Smith told The Freeman that there were 4,032 eligible voters in the 1962-63 budget year when voters approved a bond issue calling for construction of three new elementary schools. Of that total, 1,517 voted and 2,515 didn't.

This year there were only 2,822 eligible voters, 1,210 less than those eligible last year. The budget vote was 805 to 787 for a total of 1,592 votes on the budget, which meant that some 90 eligible voters failed to vote on the budget.

Classics Next Season

NEW YORK (AP) — Theater classics are to be included in next season's repertory schedule of the Lincoln Center company. Exact choices haven't been set yet, but Harold Clurman — executive consultant for the troupe — said that "they will most probably be foreign plays."

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market moved further into record high ground early this afternoon as steels and Chrysler continued their leadership. Trading was active.

Rails began to move higher after an uncertain start, lending their support to the industrials.

The rest of the stock list had a muddled appearance. Tobaccos and airlines were lower. The pattern was mixed among oils, chemicals, nonferrous metals, retails, aerospace issues and electronics.

A number of the higher-priced office equipments, photographic and computer stocks moved up in response to renewed trading demand.

As the market advance moved into its sixth straight day, however, there were plenty of soft spots. Many issues were unchanged.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .3 at 307.7 with industrials up .4, rails up .3 and utilities up .2.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 1.02 at 831.19.

Chrysler gained a full point.

The rally by steels simmered down. Fractional gains were posted for such leaders as U.S. Steel, Jones & Laughlin and Republic.

Texas Gulf Sulphur advanced more than a point.

Control Data ran up more than 3 and IBM added 2.

Prices rose on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds were slightly higher.

Methodists Eye Relief

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Methodists who suffer hardship by joining in racial demonstrations will be able to get financial aid from a fund set up by the church's General Assembly.

A resolution, passed Thursday by the some 900 delegates over protests of Southerners, said both ministers and laymen will be eligible for relief.

Funds, to be collected at Sunday services and in special local drives, will go to "Methodist ministers and laymen who, on the basis of conscience, witness to a racially inclusive church (and) may suffer economic deprivation."

Johnson's . . .

kindle old hatreds—who preach battle between neighbors and bitterness between states. That is the way back toward the anguish from which we came."

The President, covering considerable ground in 2,400 words, even made indirect reference to his own unannounced but obvious plans to seek election to a four-year term in November.

Declaring that "we are today one nation, one people, one America," Johnson said: "I would not be looking forward to November, were this not true. And I am looking forward to November."

Likes His Job

In his swift passage Thursday through Maryland, West Virginia, Ohio, Tennessee and North Carolina, Johnson also made clear his zest for his job and his hope of retaining it.

This was most clear in a speech at Knoxville, Tenn., when he coupled an appeal for support of his antipoverty program with jabs at two Republicans who may try to get his job in the fall—former Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

Johnson said Republicans already are calling his antipoverty proposals a "cruel hoax"—words used last week by Nixon. And he said that if such men had their way, "The 'for sale' sign would be on TVA this very hour." It was Goldwater who once suggested that the Tennessee Valley Authority be put up for sale.

The sharpest jabs, included in Johnson's prepared text, were omitted in delivery. But the traveling White House said he stood by them.

Says Vision Narrow

In these passages, he labeled "cruel hoax" critics and those who would sell TVA as "men of timid faith and narrow vision."

And he added: "I do not believe you want to entrust the American dream to men who would turn it into a nightmare."

In Atlanta and half a dozen other cities in Appalachia and the South, cheering thousands turned out to greet the President. Total official estimates of the crowds along the way came to nearly half a million.

Whatever the number, and official estimates often get inflated, the number was impressive.

For his address to the men who make the laws of Georgia, Johnson obviously sought to make his remarks the more acceptable by linking them to the state's motto—wisdom, justice, moderation.

About Problems

He cited justice in talking about civil rights. He cited wisdom in urging the rejection of extremism. And he cited moderation in touching on the problems of poverty, urban expansion and conservation.

On the latter point, Johnson said: "To meet such problems, in such a varied and ample land as ours, bold action requires broad agreement—and consensus requires moderation."

Recalling Georgian Henry Grady's 1886 prophecy of a "New South," Johnson said Grady's words not long ago "seemed less a hopeful prophecy than a hollow promise."

Alluding to the aftermath of the Civil War, the President continued: "Old ways had crumbled—carrying with them that which was fine as well as that which was flawed—replaced by a blighted land and a bitter people."

Today, he said, "we see a New South—a South of union and freedom."

"You bear the mark of a Southern heritage," he said, "but that which is Southern is far less important than that which is American."

ROGER E. SPEAR

Q) "We are an investment club owning the enclosed list of securities. We would appreciate your comments. We are considering buying South Coast Life and Sears, Roebuck. What is your opinion?" — G. P.

A) You deserve to be complimented on a good list of stocks, which is too long to reproduce here.

Your Teledyne has doubled in price this year, but I like the company and would hold these shares.

I believe you will find growth by switching General Foods.

Otherwise, I have no comments

As to your suggested purchase, South Coast Life in relatively small and operates entirely in the state of Texas. I understand that management is competent and that insurance in force jumped a huge 45 per cent last year. I believe you would be justified in buying this stock.

Sears, Roebuck would be a fine addition to any list.

Q) "We own 90 shares of Tidewater Oil. Do you think this is worth holding? We'd like to give our grandchildren a few shares of stock. Do you think it would be advisable to sell Tidewater and reinvest proceeds for the children in other issues?"—C. R.

A) I think it is very fine of you to want to do something for your grandchildren.

For the purpose that you have in mind, I would switch Tidewater into a solid growth issue paying a dividend — which Tidewater does not.

Your stock was run up in price earlier this year, when it negotiated the sale of its western operations to Humble Oil, a subsidiary of Jersey Standard. This $329 million deal was considered beneficial for Tidewater, and when the Justice Department filed an antitrust suit to block the sale, the price of your shares declined.

As a replacement for Tidewater, I suggest Texaco, where dividends have been increased consistently in recent years.

There will be a series of speeches and talks with Nasser, visits to factories, the pyramids and sphinx, and tours of the massive Soviet-financed Aswan High Dam project. But 13 afternoons have been kept free so Khrushchev can rest.

Next Thursday, after the dedication ceremonies at Aswan, Khrushchev and Nassser will spend a day fishing in the Red Sea from the official yacht Hourryia.

The Soviet leader's flight home is scheduled for May 25 but unofficial sources said there is a possibility he will stay one more day to rest.

Talk to People: Ike

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) —If the Republicans are to regain their position as the majority party, they "must get down and talk to the people," says former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The prize-winning Pacers Drum and Bugle Corps of Poughkeepsie will participate in the Kingston Memorial Day Parade and the Port Ewen Memorial Day Parade on May 30, it was announced today.

Third Straight Title

Winners of the Junior Championship of the Hudson Valley for the third consecutive year in the recent Hudson Valley Drum Corps Association competition at Poughkeepsie, the Pacers competed against such corps units as the Troop 12 Indians of Kingston and the Poughkeepsie Vagabonds. The Pacers also took first place honors as the best appearing unit, for having the largest corps in the contest and for the best female color guard.

Miss Janet Rexhouse, of Poughkeepsie, who majored the corps for the first time, won the second place medal for the best female majorette with a score of 95. The Pacemakers of Poughkeepsie, making their first appearance in any contest, won the open class Junior Championship and the first place award for having the best female color guard. Both the Pacers and the Pacemakers are sponsored by the Polish-American Citizens Club of Poughkeepsie.

James Strubel, of Kingston, well-known figure in drum corps circles, is director of the Pacers and music arranger and instructor of both the Pacers and Pacemakers. His son, Jimmy, 11, is a member of the Pacers soprano horn line, and his daughter, Jo Ann 9, is a member of the color guard and a flag bearer for the Pacers Color Guard. Ray Horvers, of Port Ewen, is a cymbal player for the Pacers.

In addition to their other laurels, the Pacers won two more awards recently in the Loyalty Day Parade in Poughkeepsie for being the best musical group and for presenting the best drill performance.

Johnson Victor In Landslide Mock Vote at Syracuse

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — President Johnson scored a landslide victory over every Republican in the field Thursday in a mock election at Syracuse University.

Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge was an easy winner in a mock GOP presidential primary conducted at the same time. He polled 399 votes in the primary, while Gov. Rockefeller came in fifth with 85.

Other Republicans in the primary, and their votes, were Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, 123; former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, 113; Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, 111, and Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, 34.

In the mock election, Johnson was paired against each of the Republicans. The results:

Johnson over Lodge, 898-584; Johnson over Scranton, 772-269; Johnson over Nixon, 750-261; Johnson over Rockefeller, 800-200; Johnson over Goldwater 842-186; Johnson over Smith, 864-107.

Church-Going State

ATLANTA (AP)—The Georgia State Chamber of Commerce says the state's spiritual atmosphere is conductive to good industrial relations.

In its 1964 industrial survey, the chamber reports that 78 per cent of Georgia's residents are church members.

Assault Charge Denied By College Instructor

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A State University of Buffalo instructor, who allegedly began a fight with another man during the House Committee on Un-American Activities hearing April 30, has pleaded innocent to a charge of third-degree assault.

Paul Sporn, an English instructor, was arraigned Thursday in City Court. The charge was made by Michael Russell of Buffalo, who said Sporn grabbed and shook him by the shoulders and threatened his life while the two were picketing outside the Federal Court House.

Russell said he was picketing in support of the committee and its work. Sporn was a witness at the two-day hearing and later joined a picket line opposing the committee, police said.

Trial of the charge, a misdemeanor, was set for May 28. Sporn, 42, of Buffalo, was released in the custody of his attorney.

Steals From a Dog?

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Mrs. Julia Warmuth chained her black Cocker Spaniel to a post in her backyard Wednesday night. When she awoke Thursday morning, she found the dog on the back porch — minus his collar, chain, license and rabies shot tag. They were nowhere to be found.

The "harem" of a male elk may include as many as 60 cows.

Ready to Cut Phone Cable Over Bill Fuss

PALESTINE, Tex. (AP)—Something has to give on Juan Macias' place today—either the Texas Telephone and Telegraph Co.'s cable underlying the land, or the farmer's determination in a phone bill fuss.

Macias has his tractor parked beside the cable ready to jerk it out unless the company begins removing it by 4 p.m.

He received verbal support Thursday from the Rev. Collin Furr, president of a telephone subscribers association opposing a recent rate increase of 33½ per cent.

The farmer and some 2,000 other subscribers want the rate hike rescinded, or their phones removed. The company cut Macias' service after he paid part of a back bill, but he contends that if he doesn't have service, the company shouldn't have access across his land.

"I've got to do this to show them I mean business," Macias said.

200 Acres Burn In Adirondacks Near Lake Placid

SARANAC LAKE, N.Y. (AP) —Firefighters in the Northeastern Adirondacks kept a wary eye today on unusually dry woodlands after three forest fires, fanned by gusty winds, charred more than 200 acres yesterday.

The wind dropped after the sun went down Thursday night, and all three fires were brought under control.

The largest of the fires burned over 100 acres near Vermontville, a hamlet about 12 miles northeast of here.

Another spread through about the same amount of acreage north of the village of Keeseville. The latter fire began at the village dump.

The third fire was stopped quickly after it burned over about a half acre in the South Meadows area at the foot of Mt. Marcy, the highest peak in the state.

Circumstances to Be Guide

Johnson Not Deciding About TV Debate Until Time Comes

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shortly before his death President John F. Kennedy said he would take on his Republican opponent in the 1964 presidential race in television-radio debates. So far President Johnson has declined to say what he will do.

It would have been easy for Kennedy, an old hand at it after his four debates with Vice President Richard M. Nixon in 1960. All of them did Kennedy good. And no Republican then in sight seemed likely to outdo him.

Johnson, with no experience in this kind of national encounter, gave this answer when asked about the debates at his Dec. 18 news conference.

"I will make those decisions at the time I am the nominee and in the light of the circumstances existing then. For the present, I am not going to discuss any political matter."

He didn't stick to that absolutely. He has made some cracks about Republicans and practically everything he has done since has been a political matter in the sense of building up his voter appeal.

He's been so homey and down-to-earth and folksy and reassuring to so many people in so many fields of interest that he has created a picture of himself as a sort of national big daddy.

The public opinion polls indicate the people are eating it up. If he doesn't overdo it, no Republican candidate could possibly match him in public exposure since he's President and everything he does is news.

That raises the first question: Why, with this advantage, should he let an opponent, in one leap before the cameras and with one turn of the dial, enjoy the same spotlight with and perhaps do him damage by outdoing him?

The same question could have been asked about Kennedy, although not in 1960. Then Nixon was the national figure who had spent eight years as vice president building himself up. Kennedy was just a senator from Massachusetts.

But after the very first debate, in which many felt he had bettered Nixon, he had to be equated in the public mind with the vice president.

Kennedy Was Confident

As President, by debating a Republican contender, Kennedy would have been granting his opponent the same kind of exposure he himself got in his set-to with Nixon. Why do it, then?

One guess is that Kennedy felt supremely confident about handling anyone the Republicans sent against him. If only for lack of experience, Johnson can't be sure he'd make out as well.

Through the fresh insights they'd get into Johnson and his opposition arguing the issues in 1964, voters would be able to reach more intelligent decisions about both of them.

But Johnson, like Kennedy, is a politician with a race to win and the main problem of how. That would be the primary consideration for both. That's a practical reason for Johnson wanting to wait till he sees what he's up against.

Unpredictable Now

By campaign time Johnson may decide, danger or not, the debates are necessary.

For instance:

To restore public acceptance through serious discussion if by then he has made some goofs in the presidency or suffered disfavor by too much running around and too much talking off the cuff.

Besides, he is thin-skinned. If he says he won't debate, the Republicans no doubt would try to needle him into changing his mind by attacking his reluctance to face his opponent.

There's a good reason now to think he might welcome the debates. He seemed a little uncertain of himself, starting out, but he seems to be developing so much confidence in his voter appeal that he is now unpredictable from hour to hour.

MAY BACHELOR STAY WITH SISTERS

Q: Twice a year, the bachelor son of a family friend comes to this city on business. In the past he has always stayed at our house. Recently, both our parents died leaving my sister and me alone. Will it be proper for him to continue to stay in our house? He is in his late 30's and my sister and I are in our 20's.

A: I do not think that anyone will criticize you for allowing this old friend of the family to continue staying in your house on his visits to your city.

Greeting Those Coming to Funeral Home

Q: My sister died recently and as friends and relatives arrived at the funeral home they came over to where I and other members of my family were seated, to express their sympathy. We did not rise and have been criticized for not having done so. Was this criticism justified?

A: Correctly, you should have risen but your not doing so was excusable under the circumstances.

Invitations to Golden Wedding Anniversary

Q: My parents will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary shortly and we, their children, are going to give a reception for them. We would like to know if gold lettering may be used on the invitations? I think it would be very suitable on this occasion but my sister says it would be in bad taste and the conventional black ink should be used.

A: Gold lettering on invitations to a 50th wedding anniversary is permissable, but black ink is in best taste.

Repeat Performances of 'Say Darling' Will Be Held Tonight, Saturday; Entertaining

By DOROTHY A. NAREL
Freeman Society Editor

It's Commencement Day today and we are handing out diplomas for Coach House Players has graduated into a bigger league performing group.

The local little theatre group, which is no longer little judging by last night's cast, performed a monumental achievement with comparative ease.

Coach House tackled its first musical and despite first night jitters, a few flubbed lines and overtaxed vocal chords, the cast came up "smelling like a rose."

The musical-comedy is "Say Darling" and it will be repeated tonight and tomorrow with curtain at 8:30 each evening in the George Washington School, this city.

By all means, see it! If for no other reason than to see Richard Becker do the Twist!

There were several distinctive qualities which greeted my eye almost immediately. One—fresh talent; two — good talent; three — outstanding artistry; four — enthusiasm; and five — a near capacity house which astounded me. Most opening nights for Coach House have been weak in attendance and if last night was any indication, tonight and tomorrow will be sell-outs.

The production reflected results of conscientious training under its director William Skilling. And the 12 scene changes are a credit to the versatility of Ralph Harper.

Three outstanding performances were turned in by Francis Matteson, Raymond Caddy and Frank Policano. Matteson, a familiar figure on the stage, is his usual composed unflurried self. He applies his own professional polish to the role of a coproducer. He's a delight to watch.

Raymond Caddy, who portrays the hayseed writer, moved cautiously into his role last night but by the time the third act rolled around you could almost see the hay coming out of his ears. Caddy is talented and his exhilarating finish leaves the audience in a gay mood.

Frank Policano as the composer is another example of budding talent in this area. He has a very pleasant lyric tenor (it's too bad a mike doesn't pick up his voice for the benefit of those in the last row) and he executed his part with great competence. You will not be able to separate Policano from his role, he welds them together.

Kenneth Post plays a fast talking, fast moving co-producer and although he started out on the over-anxious side, he ends up on a par with Matteson - Caddy - Policano. You will thoroughly enjoy his portrayal and handling of the part.

The female lead is done by Dolores Crosby who turns in a creditable performance. One or two ballads in the show do more for Miss Crosby's voice and if she relaxes for the offbeat selections, she's a winner.

The show is complete with dancing and I must draw special attention to Richard Paine in this category. The Husking Bee Waltz is his original idea. Harrison Muller, well known Broadway and TV star served as dance consultant for this production.

Last night's production, coupled with the recent Coach House presentation of "Anastasia," brings our civic theatre group to a crossroads. I hope Coach House will take the road to even greater challenges. I am sure with George N. Betts at the helm as president, it will.

With even greater dedication, I can't see why Coach House couldn't do such popular hits as "Oklahoma" and "Carousel." By keeping goals high, by opening the doors to more talent, I would even brave a production of "Three Penny Opera," Mr. Skilling. How about it? It certainly is a challenge.

Last night's production left the amateur field behind and planted itself in the semi-professional battlefield. Granted, you will always have the "green beginners" who will be helped along the path by the more experienced, but you can become the finest civic theatre group in the state.

Also in the cast are W. Scott Foster, June Boyle, William Hawk, John Novi, Vickie Schacht, Frank Witt, Matthew Duer, Mary Dugan, Merrillee Kelly, George Lissandrello, Doris Urell, James Stack, Carmen Good, Murray Fletcher and Barbara Purcell.

The dancers include Elizabeth Dugan, Merrille Kelly, Barbara Purcell, Tom DeWitt and John Novi. In the chorus are Linda Caddy, Joan Landsman, Vilma Burdett, Shaun Northrup, Doris Udell, Mary Dugan, George Lissandrello and James Stack.

Costumes were handled by Emilia Wehye and Kathleen Griffin. At the piano was June Munson and the rhythm section was handled by Martha Ann Eddy and Vincent Bertone.

Margaret Meliert is in charge of the box office and properties handled by Diane Pickering and Mary Becker. Hilda Krum was in charge of the ushers.

MAGICIAN FOR WEST HURLEY FAIR—The Rev. Paul C. Hoyt, pastor of the West Hurley Methodist Church, will do a magic act for the upcoming P-TA sponsored country fair on the grounds of the West Hurley School and firehouse this Saturday. Festivities will get underway at 11 a. m. and the public is invited. Known to his many friends as "Hoyt—The Mad Magician," the minister will present a program of comedy magic. He will portray an old "pro" who, though once famous, now in the years of his decline fumbles and bumbles his way through a series of magic tricks much to his consternation and the amusement of the audience. The Rev. Mr. Hoyt is a member of the Puppeteers of America and has given his show before various groups.

Girls and Gags Make Shakespeare Palatable For All Theatregoers; Comedy Coming Here

A lot of high brow theatregoers will help to celebrate the impending 400th anniversary of Shakespeare's birth this year. But they will also be joined in the celebration by all theatregoers who enjoy musicals more than they enjoy dramas dealing with the fate of kings or addled princelings.

The latter group will have a chance to cheer on Thursday evening, (May 14), when "The Boys From Syracuse," a racy jokeful song-and-dance version of "The Comedy of Errors" comes to the stage of the Community Theatre in Kingston.

The abbreviated costumes worn by the curvaceous chorus girls in "The Boys From Syracuse" are a far cry from the flowing, sedate robes of the costumes worn when Shakespeare wrote the original thesis on which Richard Rodgers, Lorenz Hart and George Abbott based their hopped up version of the show. But modern theatregoers seem to prefer it that way. They like the songs, the jokes, the handsome men, and most of all, the stage full of pretty girls who crowd the scene.

The group in attendance at the Community Theatre this Thursday night will not be the first in America to pick girls and gags over iambic pentameter. Stage impressarios have learned, to their financial horror, that the audience for Shakespeare is always limited one. They have also learned, to their financial delight, that a bevy of beautiful girls, a brace of comedians, and a half dozen hit tunes by Richard Rodgers are worth their weight in gold. Small wonder that impressario Dick Weaver has elected to fill the stage of the Community Theatre with girls, comedians and songs.

Unlike most American musicals, which seem to lose appeal within 10 years or so (Showboat" is the most notable exception), "The Boys from Syracuse" has remained as enduringly lively for the present as when it was new new in 1938. A presentation that opened 23 years later in New York — in April 1963 — has been so overwhelmingly popular that it is still running there, and the organization of a national company to tour it to other American cities became obligatory.

Those who have not brushed up recently on their Shakespeare might take some assurance that the source of "The Boys from Syracuse" does not make it highbrow, as this hit is a hopped-up modern version of the least-known of Shakespeare's comedies, that is least known because it's been too spicy to give kids to study in school.

It's the story of the uproarious complications resulting when wives, sweethearts, friends and creditors can't tell which of two twins is the phoney. The wife's hilarious dilemma is that she can't tell whether the man in her house is her husband or his twin brother.

This racy story's musical version contains a baker's dozen of lyrically lovely hit-parade numbers that have continued to be hummable ever since Rodgers and Hart first tossed them off, including "Sing for Your Supper," "This Can't Be Love," "The Shortest Day of the Year" and "Falling in Love With Love" —all long-time juke-box favorites, but still fresh.

In the company coming here John Smolko and Chet Sommers will be seen as the look-alike twins, Laurie Franks and Carol Woodruff as the ladies their resemblance confuses, and Ralph McWilliams and Martin Ross will appear as their twin servants who double the fun. Norma Doggett will sing and dance the role of the seductive courtesan who gets mixed up in the proceedings, and Rudy Vejar and Marcie Stringer have other important roles.

Dear Abby . . .

It Pays to Be Honest!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: The boy who sits in front of me in History is very smart and gets 100's on almost all his tests. I was stuck during a test last week and asked him for some answers. He gave them to me WRONG! I didn't know it until we got our papers back. He got 100 and I got 65! I was plenty mad and told him I thought he was a dirty cheat. I admit I wasn't very honest to ask him for the answers, but don't you think he was twice as dishonest to have purposely given them to me wrong?

CHEATED

DEAR CHEATED: Don't expect to find an honest partner for a crooked deal.

• • • • •

DEAR ABBY: What can a woman of 42 do to get a compliment out of her husband? I have spent hours in the beauty parlor getting a new hair-do. No comment. I bought material and made myself a beautiful outfit in his favorite color — blue. No comment. I use cosmetics artistically and even searched for a subtle perfume I thought he'd like. No comment. Everyone else tells me I am a fine-looking woman, but he never says a word. I know he loves me and our children, but sometimes I think, "Oh, what the heck!"

NO COMPLIMENTS

DEAR NO: You're lucky. Some women get plenty of sweet talk from their husbands, and nothing else. By the way, when was the last time you complimented HIM?

DEAR ABBY: Last night I served blueberry pie for dessert and my husband, whom I shall call Dr. Jeykll, turned into a regular Mr. Hyde. He stormed around like a wild man, saying he never cared for blueberry pie because it took him two days to get the seeds out of his teeth, and asked why I insist on shoving it down his throat. Abby, I have been baking blueberry pie for 26 years (it's my favorite) and I always thought my husband liked it. I felt so bad I cried all night. Was I wrong or was he?

BLUEBERRY MARY

DEAR MARY: If a man doesn't like something his wife cooks (or bakes), he shouldn't wait 26 years to tell her. Tell Mr. Hyde you are no mind reader. And let him eat cake!

• • • • •

CONFIDENTIAL TO SAN ANTONIO ROSE: It's anybody's guess as to why he changed his name twice, but if I were you I would quit guessing and find out.

Artificial bubbles are for seltzer —not for beer.

The idea of shooting CO_2 into beer has never appealed to me somehow.

Oh, the process is widely used and accepted in the industry today, and I'm sure there's nothing wrong with it.

It saves time and space and refrigeration, and hence money, by making it possible for a brewer to cut the aging time down to two or three weeks and still turn out a beer with "life."

But it just doesn't appeal to me.

I always felt that beer should have a natural life of its own, and that's the only thing you'll ever find in a bottle of Utica Club beer.

I think it makes a difference in the beer.

I think it's the only way you can turn out a beer that has mellowness and maturity — by aging it properly.

And judging by the amount of Utica Club we're selling, there are still plenty of stubborn characters around who agree with me.

Sophomore Brian Bach, who sparkled in a couple of relief roles, was given the starting nod against the Pioneers and he turned in a solid route-going performance

Berardi Triples

His mates gave him a run in the third inning when Lou Perry singled with two outs and rode home on a booming triple by left by Nick Berardi.

A three base blast by Bob Aposporus and Bob Somogyi's single evened the score in the fifth. Aside from that short threat, Bach was in command of the situation.

Rod DeVeau reached first on an error to begin the bottom of the sixth. Two outs later, Mike Canning also reached safe on a bobble. He went to second and DeVeau to third.

Suskie then hit a slow grounder to the infield. He beat the throw to first base and the winning run scored.

In picking up the decision, Bach walked two and struck out 10. Loser Ed Johnson had a pair of walks and three whiffs.

Coach Al Gruner's team will host Saugerties Wednesday in a non-league game and will play at Port Jervis next Thursday in the most important contest of the season.

Following the game, there will be selection of an official All-Star squad to represent the CNYSL at Randalls Island on May 17 in a meet with the Long Island League All Stars.

Kingston Soccer Club, managed by Bob Graves, holds first place in the CNYSL with a mere one-point lead over Albany Soccer Club. The locals have four games left to play while Albany has only three.

After last Sunday's 3-2 win over the Albany reserves, Tony Alexander's second team booters are looking forward to a return engagement. Game time will be 1 p. m. Sunday prior to the main contest.

The pressure is expected to be in evidence through the remaining games, which will determine the title and championship. Kingston has won and retained the league trophy for the past two seasons. It takes three consecutive league victories to keep the league trophy permanently.

Kingston S. C. officials urged the support of Kingston rooters in backing the local team in its effort to win the 1964-65 championship.

In a companion game, Tigers beat the Cubs, 4-1, on Mike Cline's 4-hitter. Richard Ambrose of the Cubs and Steve Riddick of Tigers hit home runs.

Three Marks Set

Onteora Cindermen Decision SHS Squad

Two records were tied and three broken yesterday at the Onteora Central school track as the Indians from Boiceville won a dual meet, 70⅓-51⅔ from visiting Saugerties High.

The Onteora 880 yard relay team set a school mark by winning in the crisp time of 1:37.5. The frosh relay team from Onteora set a freshman mark, going the distance in 49.8 second.

Dashing Richie Giannotti of Saugerties tied the school's 220-yard record, set last year by Frank Fusick, with a winning clocking of 22.6 seconds. Art Hawkins of Onteora tied the school record in the high jump with a winning effort of 5 feet, 10 inches.

State U. Suffers 18-1 Loss

The Hawks of State University scored first yesterday at East Stroudsburg but after that they were never in the game, losing an 18-1 decision to the home side.

Jerry Hawkins of Kingston doubled and tallied the game's first run and coach Al Miller's side had a 1-0 lead starting the last last of the first.

The winners pounced on starter Tom Clarke for five markers and continued their assault against three other New Paltz hurlers to hand the Hawks their seventh loss in eight starts.

Included in the 15-hit barrage were a pair of doubles, a triple and a home run.

New Paltz will try to get back on the winning track Saturday at Albany State.

Letter for Rattray

James Rattray, a freshman on the Kenyon College wrestling team, was awarded a numeral for the 1964 season. A 1963 graduate of St. Peter's School in Peekskill, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Rattray of Meadowview, Port Ewen.

Your Merc dealer invites you to compare
Merc's high-strength design and construction with any competitor's outboard
From their powerheads to their shear-proof props, Mercs are designed and constructed to last... with less maintenance and cost to you.

The entire engine block of a Merc is one-piece die-cast aluminum. There is no head gasket to blow... fewer joint faces to loosen and leak. The pistons in a Merc are forged aluminum... lighter in construction yet tougher, more durable and cooler running than the cast aluminum pistons found in most competitors' outboards.

Mercury's aluminum drive shaft housing is die-cast in one piece. It does not depend on the holding power of nuts, bolts, studs and miscellaneous parts.

The forged-aluminum clamp brackets on a Merc are heat-treated to the strength of steel and are virtually unbreakable. Even on the higher horsepower Mercs, the clamp brackets have wing bolts that clamp to the transom... in addition to a provision for security bolts through the transom. The lower unit of a Merc has more backbone than that of any other outboard. It is die-cast in one piece to keep the husky gears and shafts permanently aligned. There is no protruding nose to snag rocks and logs or gather weeds. The gearshift is mechanical with no underwater electrical parts to short out. The Jet-Prop has no shear pins. It is spline driven and is protected by a live-rubber safety clutch that yields momentarily on impact.

These are just a few of the comparisons in design and construction that you can make. Your Merc dealer can point out many more. See him soon. See how you can get more RUN for your money with Mercury... 100, 85, 65, 50, 35, 20, 9.8, 6 and 3.9 hp outboards and MerCruiser Stern Drives... 110 to 310 hp gasoline; 60 and 100 hp diesel.

The fire was reported at about 10 p. m. and firemen from Clintondale and New Paltz were at the scene about two hours. Clintondale firemen returned to the farm at about 4:30 a. m. after burning embers rekindled.

Chief Peter Savago of New Paltz, and Chief Larry Capozzo of Clintondale, were in charge of firefighters. The building reportedly was used as a storage place for apple crates.

Capitol News In Brief

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the news from Washington:

JOBS: There were 69.9 million Americans at work last month—a 1.4-million increase from March—and still the jobless rate was unchanged at 5.4 per cent.

The reason: The labor force itself increased—by about 1 million to 73.7 million.

Most of the increase in jobs was among women doing such household work as domestic service and babysitting.

Unemployment declined an expected 400,000, bringing the total number of jobless down to 3.9 million.

WHITE HOUSE: Sales of the White House guidebook are expected to provide at least $100,000 this year to help refurbish the White House.

Almost 1 million guidebooks, at $1 each, have been sold since their publication last year.

JFK: A bronze bust of President John F. Kennedy has been presented to his widow for the Kennedy Memorial Library.

It is a gift of the late president's three military aides: Maj. Gen. Chester V. Clifton of the Army, Capt. Tazewell T. Shepard Jr. of the Navy and Brig. Gen. Godfrey T. McHugh of the Air Force.

The sculptor is Felix de Weldon, who designed the Iwo Jima monument in Arlington, Va.

The bust will be placed in the White House Cabinet Room until the library at Cambridge, Mass. is completed.

DEVIATES: The Navy has issued a toughly worded new order stressing that homosexuals "are security and reliability risks" and providing an avenue for getting them out of the service faster.

"Their prompt separation from the naval service is essential," said the order from Secretary of the Navy Paul N. Nitze.

The new order speeds the ouster of deviates by allowing offenders in certain kinds of serious cases to resign from the service and escape court martial.

To resign, a man must sign a statement acknowledging that he may be deprived of virtually all his veterans rights "and that I may expect to encounter substantial prejudice in civilian life."

Rocky Hits Out At Hate Peddlers

ASTORIA, Ore. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller attacked right-wing extremists today for calling Republican leaders, including himself, friends of Communism. He said it was "the big smear."

The New York governor, a candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, said in a speech prepared for delivery at a campaign breakfast, "The peddlers of hate are still circulating around the country a book entitled 'The Politician,'" which was written by Robert Welch, the founder of the John Birch Society.

"This is the notorious book that not only brands former President Eisenhower as a pro-Communist," but goes so far as to charge him with 'treason.'"

Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, one of Rockefeller's opponents for the GOP presidential nomination, has said he would not refuse support of the Birch Society.

Rockefeller did not mention Goldwater. But he said Republican leaders should "repudiate the extremism of the radical right."

The governor said "other current hate sheets," which he did not identify, have made pro-Communist comments about Henry Cabot Lodge, ambassador to South Viet Nam, and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, both unannounced rivals for the presidential nomination."

"The hate peddlers have not spared me," he continued. "Like the others, I have been smeared as a Communist collaborator. One fantastic diatribe now in circulation even accuses me of being a behind-the-scenes leader in the international Communist conspiracy.

"I earned the enmity of the Communists long before I came under fire from the radical right."

He said he has "fought Com-

Tornadoes Lash Midwest Sectors, 30 Persons Hurt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thunderstorms rolled across the central part of the nation today after another outbreak of severe weather in sections of the Midwest.

Tornadoes ripped across areas in Iowa and Wisconsin Thursday night, injuring more than 30 persons and damaging scores of homes and business establishments.

The early morning thunderstorm belt extended from Texas to the Upper Great Lakes region. Heavy rain, with hail and strong winds, hit many areas as the warm humid air from the Gulf region set off the storms.

About 20 persons were injured when a twister struck a residential area of Waterloo, Iowa, a city of about 78,000, and a trailer court in nearby Raymond. Fifteen persons were hospitalized. A tornado also skipped across farm areas northwest of Waterloo in Fayette County, damaging buildings on at least 10 farms.

Fourteen persons were injured and at least 10 mobile homes damaged as a tornado slammed into a trailer court northeast of Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., a town of about 15,000.

Summer-like weather prevailed in much of the eastern half of the nation but unseasonably cool temperatures were reported in parts of the Far West.

Warm, Humid For Weekend, Cooler Later

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Extended forecasts, as prepared by the U.S. Weather Bureau, from 7 p.m. today to 7 p.m. Wednesday:

Eastern New York—Temperatures will average well above normal. Warm, humid weather will extend through the weekend, but a cooler trend is indicated for early next week. Scattered thundershowers likely over the weekend and again Tuesday or Wednesday.

Western New York—Temperatures will average 5 to 9 degrees above normal. Cooler early next week and little day to day change through Wednesday. Precipitation will average one-half inch or more in the form of scattered showers or thundershowers about Sunday and again toward the middle of the week.

Temperature normals — Daytime highs, 58-66. Nighttime lows, 39-46.

Whirlwind Recital

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—None of that panty raiding or cramming of telephone booths for the students of Trinity College. At least not this weekend.

Noon Saturday will signal the start of a nonstop, 12-hour recital involving 70 agile fingers, a piano in Trinity's Seabury Hall, some Bach, some Beethoven and perhaps some sing-along music.

"I don't know for certain if the continuous 12 hours on the same piano will be a world record," said Dr. Clarence Barber, the man behind the marathon, "but it will be a collegiate record anyway."
